JOHN VERNON SELLS FORDS AT PETER POLLEN FORD

Canadian Unity Solid: PM to U.S.

WASHINGTON (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau told the U.S. Congress today that Canada will remain a united country despite the rise to power of a separatist government in Quebec.

"I say to you with all the certainty I can command that Canada's unity will not be fractured," he told a joint sitting of the Senate and House of Representatives in the first such speech by a Canadian prime minister.

"Accommodations will be made, revisions will take place. We shall succeed."

The speech, centrepiece of a three-day Washington visit by the prime minister, and televised across Canada, dealt at length with Trudeau's preception of independence moves by the Parti Quebecois government of Rene Levesque.

He emphasized that only a minority of Quebecers "feel they should leave Canada and strike out in a country of their own."

"The newly-elected government of that province asserts a policy that reflects that minority view despite the fact during the election campaign that during the election campaign it sought a mandate for good government and not a mandate for separation from Canada."

Trudeau gave President Carter the same assurance that he would keep Canada united during a black-tie White House dinner Monday. Carter, in a television interview, said he preferred that Canada remain united.

In his speech, Trudeau said Canada may have to alter its constitution—the 110-year-old British North America Act—to ensure that the country's 6.5 million French-speaking Canadians feel protected against submersion by the 15.5 million English-speaking

ALTA. WINS PWA APPEAL

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada today allowed Alberta's appeal over its purchase of Pacific Western Airlines.

In a 9-to-0 decision, the high court reversed a Federal Court of Appeal ruling that air regulations concerning airline purchases do apply to a provincial government.

Alberta secretly acquired control of the airline in August, 1974, through the purchase of 99 per cent of its common shares.

TOUGH NEW LEGISLATION

Salmon Poachers Face Crackdown

OTTAWA (CP) — Long-promised fisheries legislation to toughen penalties for poaching fish and polluting waterways was introduced in the Commons Monday.

Under the legislation, Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc can order the forfeiture of equipment belonging to anyone convicted of poaching. The legislation applies to fresh and salt water fishermen anywhere in Canada.

The bill also prohibits destruction of fish habitats and spawning grounds through construction or landfill projects. Fines for pollution also are increased.

LeBlanc promised about a year ago to bring in tougher poaching laws. While full-time fishermen could have their licences suspended if convicted of poaching, there was little to halt poachers who were not fishermen.

Now the minister will be able to order confiscation of the gear of anyone convicted of poaching. Before, many of them received light fines which were not a deterrent.

Lobster and salmon are the main targets of poachers. Fisheries officials said Monday that an estimated 2.5 million pounds of lobster worth about $3 million is taken illegally each year in the Maritimes. About 500,000 pounds of salmon, worth about $3.5 million, is taken by West Coast poachers every year.

The bill also gives fisheries officers the powers of peace officers which means they will be able to issue summonses and warrants against people they charge or arrest. The cases are heard in provincial courts.

At the same time, the officers will be able to ticket people committing minor infractions of fisheries regulations such as catching a couple of trout over the limit. Those ticketed will be able to pay fines much like motorists convicted of speeding or committing parking infractions. The move is to reduce the number of fisheries-related cases in the courts.

The fisheries officials said that, while the existing law controls pollution of waterways, the government thought it necessary to bring in protection for aquatic habitats where fish spawn or feed.

The bill allows the fisheries department either to prohibit or dictate modification to any plans that might destroy or disrupt aquatic habitats.

In less serious cases, the penalty for conviction ranges from $5,000 to $10,000 while in more serious cases, jail sentences of up to two years are provided for.

The bill expands anti-pollution laws to cover existing industries that foul waterways. The existing law places controls only on new industrial undertakings. It increases fines to a range of $5,000 to $100,000.

Failure to report a spill could result in fines between $5,000 and $10,000. Failure to clean up as directed could result in fines between $25,000 and $50,000.

M-B EARNINGS $22 MILLION

VANCOUVER (CP) — MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. today reported net earnings for 1976 of $22.8 million or $1.07 a share, compared with a loss of $18.9 million or 89 cents a share in 1975.

Sales and other income totalled $1,523.3 million, up from $1,297.5 million in 1975. Fourth-quarter earnings were $9.4 million, up $6.1 million from the third quarter.

The company forecasts increased improvements in sales and earnings in 1977.

VANDALISM $7M DRAIN

Vandalism in the provincial public school system cost B.C. taxpayers an estimated $7 million in a single year, says a report released Monday by the B.C. School Trustees Association.

But the Greater Victoria area has one of the lowest vandalism rates in the province.

This year the district has budgeted just over $100,000 for vandalism repairs — slightly more than $4 per pupil.

In the Fraser Valley, the cost per pupil is more than $25 while Vancouver Island as a whole averages $4.22 per pupil — the third lowest area in the province after the East Kootenays at $2.54 and Mainland Cariboo at $2.65.

The BCSTA said the figures include school fires which often throw the statistics out. For example excluding a large fire in Nanaimo, the Vancouver Island cost per pupil drops to $2.42.

Keith Hawkins, District 61 assistant superintendent of schools in charge of construction and maintenance, said the low incidence of vandalism in area schools is something to be proud of.

"The kids really deserve a lot of credit for the way they treat their schools," he said.

The report, which took more than six months to prepare, said fires account for almost 75 per cent of the damage, and points out that adults are responsible for $1 million worth of vandalism.

Sixty-five of the province's 75 school districts responded to the survey which covers July 1, 1975, through June 30, 1976, therefore "the results must be viewed as estimates only," researchers said.

Vandalism rates in school districts using technical preventive measures such as fences, full-time caretakers, and alarms, were only slightly lower than in districts where such measures were not in force, the study said.

Researchers examined factors thought to affect the vandalism rate, such as geographical location, size of district, discipline for offender, and economic status of community, and discovered than none of them "had any real effect on vandalism rates."

"It may be that the prophets of doom are correct: we can't do anything about the potential vandal," said the report. "Clearly, vandalism seems to occur at will, with the vandal being a creature of random habit, not tied to economic status, migratory behavior, fear of discipline."

U.S. Insurance Racket Financing PLO Tactics

By BILL RICHARDS
Washington Post

LOS ANGELES — A U.S.-wide ring of more than 100 apparent Palestine Liberation Organization sympathizers has been operating a massive auto-insurance fraud scheme that authorities here believe may have netted millions of dollars for the PLO.

More than 30 police organizations ranging from local district attorneys' offices in California to Interpol, are investigating the activities of the ring, police said.

Deputy California highway patrol chief Jerry Clemons said that members of the operation are mostly Arabs on student visas living in California, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan. Police have issued arrest warrants for a number of suspects.

Police said they based their belief that the money from the scheme was going to the PLO on separate statements by two alleged members of the ring. Both told police that millions of dollars in claims have been filed over the last five years, and that the profits ended up with the Palestinians.

"Our informants in the case have said that the money involved has been shipped out of the country," Clemons said.

Officials said the ring filed fraudulent claims with most of the nation's large insurance companies.

One fraudulent arson claim by members of the ring in Michigan was filed for more than $8 million, police here said. It was unclear whether this arson claim was paid, but police said a number of claims were rejected after insurance officials became suspicious.

DAM APPEAL MONDAY

A five-member cabinet committee has been established to hear the appeal against the granting of a licence to B.C. Hydro for building the Revelstoke dam, Enviroment Minister Jim Nielsen said Monday.

Members of the committee are Labor Minister Alan Williams, Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis, Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Rafe Mair, Highways Minister Alex Fraser and Health Minister Bob McClelland.

The B.C. Wildlife Federation, Canadian Cellulose Company, West Kootenay Outdoorsman, and the Scientific Pollution and Environmental Control Society (SPEC) have appealed the decision of the water rights comptroller to grant the licence.

The organizations are appealing the decision on a variety of grounds, mainly related to safety of the project and the effect it would have on the environment.

Nielsen said the cabinet committee, which will make a recommendation to full cabinet on whether the appeal should be allowed, will hold a preliminary meeting next Monday to discuss procedures.

Ex-BCPC Workers Lost On Grizzly Speculation

VANCOUVER (CP) — Both B.C. Petroleum Corp. employees fired for stock trading lost money on their speculation, BCPC chairman George Lechner said Monday.

Lechner told the Mr. Justice Walter Kirke Smith's judicial inquiry into stock and land speculation on the Grizzly Valley pipeline development that "trading in shares of companies that had involvement with the corporation was against policy."

Both employees knew it, he said, and admitted Jan. 10 they had bought and sold shares related to the line.

Weeks was fired from his post as administrative assistant to Economic Development Minister Don Phillips in December.

On Monday, Stephen Rogers (SC—Vancouver South) told the inquiry that Weeks offered friends stock and land investment information about the Grizzly Valley development before plans for the pipeline were officially announced.

Reservoir engineer Terrence Barrows purchased 600 Quasar shares at $4.75 a share on May 14, 1976, Lechner said, and sold them July 16, 1976. He received $4.25 a share for 200 shares and $4.50 a share for the rest for a net loss.

Geologist Donald R. Reid bought 1,000 Cheyenne shares Dec. 7 at $1.72 and sold them the same day for $1.56. Reid "realized he should not have done it," said Lechner. "It was almost done on a dare; it was an act of foolishness."

Lechner said that if Reid had acted on the basis of confidential information, he would have bought much earlier. Lechner learned of the two transactions Jan. 10 and demanded the men's resignations the same day.

Lechner said he also accepted the resignation of his secretary, Bruna Martinuzzi, who felt she could not sign an affidavit drawn up by company lawyers swearing she had not advised friends to trade in the stocks.

Miss Martinuzzi said she had mentioned the stock to her boyfriend, but he didn't buy any shares. Lechner said he hopes the inquiry will exonerate Miss Martinuzzi so she can be reinstated. The two other men have found other jobs.

NEWS BRIEFS

$459B U.S. Budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Jimmy Carter proposed a $459.4 billion budget today that puts less emphasis on defence and more on energy, housing and health — including price controls on hospitals. See story on page 14.

Cut-Rate Oil?

OTTAWA (CP) — Imports of Soviet oil might be providing substantial profits for some Canadian oil companies, but federal energy department officials are close-lipped about the situation. See story on page 3.

Chilliwack Probe

Quebec Barriers

MONTREAL (CP) — The Parti Quebecois government will work to reduce the role of multinational companies in Quebec and promote "home-grown" industries, Finance Minister Jacques Parizeau said Monday. See story on Page 21.

California Quake

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) A strong earthquake Monday night struck the Sierra Nevada about 60 miles southeast of Lake Tahoe, the University of California seismographic labratory reported. The tremor registered 5.0 on the Richter scale.

YONKERS, N.Y. (UPI) — Two masked gunmen robbed a bank today and escaped with the weekend receipts of Yonkers Raceway in a robbery that may have netted them more than $1 million, the FBI said.

GLIDING COMMUTERS NOT JUST A DREAM

WALLA WALLA, Wash. (AP) — Hang gliders, equipped with motors and propellers, may be the commuter vehicles of the future.

The idea may not be as far-fetched as it seems because, equipped with 12-horsepower engines, motorized hang gliders already are available for $1,300. They are lightweight, get 40 miles per gallon and are capable of reaching 50 miles an hour.

"Right now you can buy a powered hang glider without a pilot's licence and fly it across the United States," said Ron Petrie, 23, a hang glider enthusiast.

The gliders, even the powered variety, don't come under U.S. federal aviation administration regulations, said Petrie.

Petrie says commuters could launch their crafts by running along the ground. Takeoffs and landings would require no more room than a tennis court.

Parking would not present insurmountagle problems, either, Petrie said, since a hang glider needs little more room than an automobile.

Council Censures Grieve

North Saanich Mayor Paul Grieve was censured by his council Monday for firing Ald. George Westwood as chairman of the zoning committee.

Only Ald. Eric Sherwood and John Lapham voted against the censure motion proposed by Westwood and seconded by Ald. Robert Thompson.

Grieve removed Westwood last week when the committee refused to give precedence to a controversial zoning bylaw.

Grieve told council his lack of confidence in Westwood "will be borne out by the productivity of the new committee."

Grieve named Sherwood to replace Westwood and appointed committee member Ald. Wilf Price as new chairman.

Food Prices Climb 3% in Two Months

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Victoria food prices are up more than three per cent since December and further sharp increases are expected in selected items.

Coffee prices have been stable over the past 30 days but further increases are expected following Brazil's decision to increase bean prices. A six-ounce jar of instant coffee rose 58 cents to $3.19 from December to January and is expected to be up again before the end of March.

Victoria hot chocolate prices have been held firm despite reports of the world market being cornered by a cocoa cartel. These price increases are expected soon.

Egg prices have risen six cents per dozen locally over the past two months, from 96 to $1.02 for Grade A large, in response to higher feed prices. Producers give mixed views as to whether the next price action will be up or down.

Beef producers are expecting sharp price increases on a variety of cuts, mainly because the market is recovering from a low cycle. Beef and pork are considered to be greatly underpriced and the upward swing wiill be rapid when it begins.

However, in Victoria the price of beef has actually declined two cents per pound on average during the past 30 days, making it one of the genuine bargains in the grocery order.

The Times grocery order this week cost $103.25, up 3.25 per cent from $100 for the same order in December.

Products that have increased in price include coffee, eggs, bread and canned peas.

Beef and canned peaches are among products showing price declines.

The increase in bread prices was only one cent per loaf since December. Prices for both bread and milk have been remarkably stable during the past two months.

Products showing no change in price during the past two months include various soups, peanut butter, corn flakes and some meat cuts.

The price of canned tuna has been stable since November, having soared from 75 cents to $1.05 during the previous nine months.

More Gross Than Gras

SEATTLE (AP) — Seattle police were caught off guard and unprepared when a pseudo-Mardi Graas celebration in the downtown area unexpectedly drew 50,000 people.

The fun and frivilous festival called Fat Tuesday, turned into a policeman's nightmare with uncontrolled drinking in streets and raucous behavior.

Only 20 police were responsible for controlling the crowds and they were forced to throw out the rule book on law enforcement.

"We didn't expect what happened," said Sgt. Howard Johnson. "It seemed like everyone who wanted to get drunk was out there. It was a sad affair. I think that everyone came down here with the idea that this was Mardi Gras and no holds were barred."

A 22-year-old Seattle man, Craig Millar, was found dead early Sunday as the celebration was breaking up.

He had been sitting on a corner, apparently unconscious, when witnesses said four men tried to rouse him. One person kicked him in the head, then fled.

An autopsy Monday showed there was "no evidence of any violence" in connection with the death, said Donald Reay, chief medical examiner for King County. The man died of a hemorrage in the brain, h rsaid.

On Friday night, a man and woman began sexual intercourse on the skid road area pavement, cheered on by a crowd of about 100, police said. When officers tried to break through to arrest the couple, the two were spirited away.

"In one hour, I watched no less than 20 people urinate on the street," a police sergeant said.

Small circles of youths could be seen here and there, openly sharing marijuana.

Under a big-top tent, where free music and comedy routines had been presented throughout the week, the good will began wearing thin by Friday.

Foul-mouthed drunks waved and threw their empties at police, with one celebrant screaming, "let's start a riot!"

Sgt. Johnson said, "I can tell you this, if there's a Fat Tuesday celebration next year, I'm going to make sure I'm sick, or that I'm on furlough or that I'm assigned somewhere else. I will not suffer these indignities again."

DRUMS AND FIRECRACKERS at Chinese New Year celebrations in Vancouver proved too much for the delicate ears of three-year-old Angie Choo who registers her protest in the most-appropriate fashion.

QUEEN MUM PREFERS CUPPA

LONDON (Reuter) — The Queen Mother went to a champagne reception today but said that in these hard times she would rather have tea.

So the champagne was cancelled and it was tea and soft drinks for everyone at the Pharmaceutical Society of Great Britain.

Her private secretary said the Queen Mother felt that in view of Britain's economic situation she would be happier with tea.

Heavy Winds Cause Fishboat Troubles

Monday's high winds resulted in a couple of near misses at sea.

The Bamfield lifeboat was despatched when the 42-foot troller Solimar reported she was battling 85 knot winds four miles southeast of Bamfield near Pachena Point.

Aboard was skipper G. Erickson and a deckhand.

The lifeboat escorted the vessel safely into Bamfield.

A Canadian armed forces Labrador helicopter, deployed at the Tofino airport for the start of the herring season, began a search after the lighthouse keeper at Amphritite Point near Tofino reported the 30-foot dragger Josephine encountering problems.

'It was so rough she couldn't be seen for two miles. We thought she'd already gone down," a Pacific Rescue Co-ordination Centre spokesman said today.

The Josephine was finally spotted by the crew of the helicopter, making her way into calmer waters.

There were no reports of wind damage in the Greater Victoria area.

A spokesman for the Victoria weather office said winds gusted to a peak of 105 kilometers an hour recorded at Gonzales at 12:17 p.m. Monday. At the airport the peak wind speed was 70 kph.

Winds are expected to drop off over the next few days, the spokesman said.

The strong winds, registering as high as 30 knots at Vancouver airport, caused power outages in the Lower Mainland Monday night and blew down trees in Stanley Park and Lions Bay.

A B.C. Hydro spokesman said Vancouver, Burnaby and Richmond were all hit with minor power outages when the wind began gusting heavily around 5 p.m.

A large area of southeastern Vancouver was without power from 10:30 p.m. to 1:30 a.m. today.

WEIGHTY MESSAGE RECEIVED BY UIC

VANCOUVER (CP) — When the Unemployment Insurance Commission received a 30-pound parcel by special delivery Monday, a clerk became suspicious and had the city police bomb squad sent in to investigate.

The office was evacuated, and the package was gingerly opened.

Inside, was about 30 pounds of pennies.

The package was sent by an unidentified Aldergrove man who had been told the commission had overpaid him. The commission told the man that if he didn't return the money, his bank account would be garnisheed.

The package contained the overpayment. Commission officials declined to specify the amount involved.

UIC Regulation Ruled Sexist

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Federal Court judge has ruled that a section of the Unemployment Insurance Act contravenes the Bill of Rights by discriminating on the basis of sex, and is therefore invalid.

Judge Frank Collier, an Unemployment Insurance Commission (UIC) umpire, said that Section 46 of the act automatically disqualifies pregnant women or those who have just given birth from receiving regular UIC benefits, regardless of their availability for work.

"The right to equality before the law of those persons is infringed because of discrimination by reason of sex," Judge Collier said in a recent decision.

"It plainly denies benefits to certain claimants who might otherwise be covered by the entitlement provisions, even though those claimants prove themselves separated from employment, capable of and available for work, but unable to obtain suitable employment."

Judge Collier set aside a UIC board of referees decision which denied Stella Bliss, a member of the Service, Office and Retail Workers Union of Canada, regular unemployment benefits after she failed to qualify for maternity benefits.

The union and Bliss had appealed the decision by the board of referees, contending that regulations which deny a worker UIC benefits—even though she has worked for the eight-week qualifying period—discriminate between pregnant and other working women.

Bliss, an employee of Brown Bros. Ford, was fired four days before her child was born.

Amin 'Killed Bishop'

Times News Services

Idi Amin personally shot and killed Archbishop Janani Luwum during an interrogation, according to a report appearing today in the government newspaper in Dar-es-Salem.

In a report attributed to a special correspondent in Kampala, the Ugandan capital, The Daily News said Amin killed the prelate after the clergyman repeatedly refused to sign a confession admitting he plotted with former president Milton Obote to overthrow the Ugandan dictator.

The Tanzanian newspaper's report said that after Luwum was arrested in Kampala, he was taken to Nakesero Lody where Amin and several officials were waiting for him.

It said after the archbishop refused to sign the confession, he was stripped and pinned to the floor.

"Two soldiers in turn whipped the archbishop," the account continued. "While they did so the archbishop uttered prayers, but the prayers seem to have incensed Amin for he angrily shouted wildly in extremely obscene language and struck the archbishop."

Shortly after 8 p.m., the newspaper continued, there were "very bizzare, sacrilegious and obscene activities during which Amin pulled out his pistol and shot the archbishop twice on the left side of the chest."

In Ottawa, the government on Monday blocked for the second time a resolution under which the Commons would have condemned the Ugandan government for denial of civil rights and demanded an inquiry into the death of the archbishop.

James McGrath (PC—St. John's East) was unable to get the necessary unanimous consent to move a resolution as a matter of urgent and pressing importance that would have said:

"This House condemns the government of Uganda for denying due process of law to its citizens and calls upon President Amin to permit an impartial inquiry by the Commonwealth or the United Nations into the circumstances surrounding the deaths of the Archbishop of Uganda and two Ugandan cabinet ministers."

Allan MacEachen, government House leader, said Monday he could not accept the McGrath resolution because he did not want a debate on it.

Generally when the government gives the necessary consent to allow an opposition motion of urgent and pressing necessity to be put, the motion is passed without debate.

But last week the Commons used almost an hour debating such a motion — which dealt with the Garrison diversion project — and MacEachen, whose job it is to guide government business through the Commons with the least possible delay, did not want a repetition.

Last week he signalled rejection of a resolution from John Diefenbaker (PC—Prince Albert) which would have called for the expulsion of the Ugandan government from the UN and the Commonwealth.

Insurance Racket

Clemons outlined one of the group's most common schemes:

"They would buy a car with a fairly high book-sale value but which was badly damaged so they got it for just a few hundred dollars," he said. "Then they'd strip what they could from the car, burn it and claim it had been stolen." They collected insurance on the supposedly stolen auto and got additional money by selling the stripped parts, Clemons said.

In California, which has no law limiting the number of insurance companies a car owner can use, members of the group would insure the "stolen" car three or four times and collect for more than the car was worth, according to authorities.

Members of the ring also staged phoney accidents and then made multiple accident-injury claims as well as car claims, pooice said. The "accident" usually took place in a remote area at night, according to Clemons.

California Drought Breaks

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Rain and snow from the first storm in weeks has soaked the parched U.S. West Coast. And more is expected as the high pressure ridge blamed for the severe two-year drought has shifted south.

Meteorologists said Monday the ridge moved to Baja California where it normally belongs this time of year, allowing this storm and probably others to penetrate to the coast.

But forecasters doubted that the storms would bring enough water to make up for the drought which has crippled winter ski resorts, ruined crops in most Western states and forced several California communities to ration water.

California's Marin County, where strict water rationing started Feb. 1, received nearly four centimetres of rain, but officials said the dry ground soaked up the water without any of the desired runoff.

Up to 30 cm. of snow fell in the Lake Tahoe area, stranding motorists by the hundreds. The snow, when it melts, also may help fill northern California reservoirs which have been at one-quarter of their normal capacity.

In Reno, Nev., rainfall turned to snow and more than 2.5 cm. piled on the streets outside the casinos by early evening Monday.

Levesque Cleared In Man's Death

Times News Services

MONTREAL — Premier Levesque has been cleared of any criminal responsibility in the traffic death of an elderly man under a ruling by Coroner Maurice Laniel that the accident was unavoidable.

Edgar Trottier died almost instantly of a massive skull fracture and broken neck when he was struck Feb 6 by a car driven by Levesque. Trottier, a 62-year-old war veteran with a lengthy history of alcoholism, was lying in the middle of a downtown boulevard when he was run over.

Consequently, a public inquest into the incident is unnecessary, Laniel said in an interview after his report into the accident was released.

Meanwhile, in Quebec City, Justice Minister Marc-Andre Bedard said in a statement he still does not know if he will order a public inquiry.

He would study all the facts before deciding whether to pursue the matter further, he said.

Mystery Surrounds Profit For Soviet Oil Imports

OTTAWA (CP) — Energy department officials are close-lipped about imports of Soviet oil that might be providing substantial additional profits for the companies involved.

The department said Monday that 335,000 barrels of Soviet oil were imported in one shipment in mid-January, the latest in a series of shipments that have totalled about one million barrels in the last nine months.

But who got the oil and what was paid for it must be kept confidential, the department says, to avoid giving information to business competitors.

A report from Montreal had quoted observers as saying the price of the Soviet oil may have been about $9 a barrel. The department declined to confirm or deny the figure.

After payment of a $3.80-a-barrel import compensation fee by Ottawa, the cost of the crude to the buyer would be about $5.20 a barrel, well below the frozen domestic price of $9.75.

The import compensation program is designed to lower the high cost of world crude imported for use in the five eastern provinces to the domestic price level.

But the compensation is paid on a flat-fee basis and if a company can find crude at below the world price, it gets the benefit.

All the department will say publicly about the Soviet oil is that it was bought through brokers in the United Kingdom and was landed in Portland, Me., for transport by pipeline to Montreal.

It was then refined into oil products for the unidentified customer.

A department spokesman said the customer had been importing oil products such as gasoline or heating oil, but found it cheaper to import Soviet crude and pay a refinery here to process it.

Both Golden Eagle Canada Ltd. and Gulf Oil Canada Ltd. have confirmed that their Quebec refineries processed Soviet oil, but they also decline to identify the firm.

BRITON EXPELLED

SINGAPORE (UPI) — The government Monday expelled a British teacher accused of being involved in a plot "to smear the good name of our government ... apart from collaborating with people he knows to be communists."

Brian Maurice, a teacher at the United World College since 1972, was given 24 hours to leave Singapore along with his wife and two children.

The action against Maurice followed the arrest, Feb. 10, of lawyer Gopalan Raman under Singapore's tough security laws providing for detention without trial of suspected communists.

Raman wrote a confession saying he plotted to have Singapore's ruling socialist party, the People's Action Party, expelled from the Socialist International — a group of ruling Socialist parties throughout the world — and named Maurice as one of those involved in the plot.

$20M Profit Possible If Farmland Thawed

CHILLIWACK (CP) — A public inquiry was demanded Monday into dealings between Chilliwack's district municipal council and private firms that could gross $20 million by getting land excluded from the farmland freeze.

In a letter to both the provincial inspector of municipalities and Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis, the Save the Farmland Committee says it had evidence that "indicates collusion, conflict of interest and possible political patronage in the alliance of municipal authorities and developers in their persistent and continuous applications for the release of farmland from the agriclture land reserve."

And in a letter to Attorney-General Garde Gardom, Jerry Pirie, Fraser Valley agriculture critic for the B.C. Conservative Party, calls for an inquiry into the role played by former Chilliwack municipal solicitor David Hinds in the land dealings. Hinds now is a provincial court judge.

Save the Farmland Committeee chairman Joan Totten said one of the companies involved, Sardis Land and Development Ltd. (SLD), could gross $20 million if the B.C. Land Commission or provincial government allows 500 acres to be excluded from the farmland freeze.

The land is part of 1,700 acres that was kept in the farmland freeze following a cabinet decision last year.

Totten said the SLD is about to try again to have some or all of its land excluded.

The land is cut in two by the Trans-Canada Highway, with a third portion partially cut by the main road into downtown Chilliwack.

At the other end of the property south of the freeway is a McDonald's hamburger restaurant — on a one-acre site that the company sold to the chain for a little more than $200,000.

Between the two developments is farmland to which snakes a mile-long four-lane access road. All the land north of the freeway is in agriculture.

The main factor making the land valuable is a sewer line, built by Chilliwack municipality but paid for by three companies: SLD, the Fraser Valley Milk Producers' Association and Fraser Valley Frosted Foods Ltd.

The farmland committee says the sewer line was approved by council in the summer 1973, almost seven months after the former NDP government had brought in its Land Commission Act.

The $900,000 sewer line services close to 1,000 acres — Sewer District No. 10.

"What we question is why the line was allowed to be built after the land freeze was brought in," Totten said. "We also want to know why council went ahead and gave permission when almost a year before a referendum for much of the south Chilliwack area tuurned down sewers overwhelmingly."

Canadians Plan Jimmy's Backyard Tourist Resort

Washington Post

Four Canadians — Two plastic surgeons and two lawyers — have bought 190 acres in Plains, Ga., with the plan of picking up the Carter tourist trade, and the hope of getting to know the U.S. President.

"Probably about 2 million people will go to this area, and there isn't much to do there after you've walked up and down the main street once or twice," said Harry Zahoruk, a lawyer from Burlington, Ontario.

For their entertainment, he and his partners are considering putting a "creative playground," a "rustic restaurant," camping facilities and a Canadian-American friendship house possibly featuring Carter memorabilia, on the site, which adjoins Billy Carter's property.

They are calling it "Jimmy's Backyard."

Zahoruj, who says he feels "Mr. Carter will make a great Pesident — he's vaguely reminiscent of Mr. Kennedy," has also bought an acre and a half facing the president's property. He is building a "Southern colonial house" there, in which he plans to spend two or three weeks a year vacationing, and will rent the rest of the time.

"Probably I shouldn't quote her, but Miss Lillian did say, 'Jimmy'll drop in and see you — he drops in and sees all his neighbors,'" Zahoruk said. "That alone is worth the price."

The larger property includes a 5-acre manmade lake which the Canadians have named Lake Amy, and Zahoruk said he was pleased that the president's mother has requested permission to continue fishing in it. The permission was granted. She had apparently fished there when the land was used for cattle, and, before that, as a peanut farm.

The other partners are Walter and Robert Sorokolit, brothers who are both plastic surgeons, and Paul Tokiwa, a Japanese-Canadian lawyer. They own six other properties together, in Canada and the United States.

Zahoruk has also bought 41 acres near Plains with other partners, which they are thinking of re-selling.

The plans for "Jimmy's Backyard" are tentative, he said, but "We wouldn't plan anything plastic or stainless steel. We want to keep in the turn-of-the-century style of the area. It won't be an amusement park or a carnival, or anything like that," He is hoping that a corporation will sponsor $1 million worth of playground facilities.

"We're not speculators — we're sentimental," he said.

OWEN NAMED TO U.K. POST

LONDON (AP) — David Owen, a 38-year-old doctor-turned-politician, is Britain's new foreign secretary and the youngest man to hold the post since Anthony Eden in 1935.

Prime Minister James Callaghan promoted Owen, the No. 2 man at the foreign office, on Monday a few hours after the funeral of his predecessor and former chief, Anthony Crosland. Crosland, who was foreign secretary for only 10 months, died Saturday.

Owen had been acting as foreign secretary since Crosland suffered a stroke six days before his death.

Callaghan chose Owen instead of giving the post to Denis Healey, chancellor of the exchequer, who had planned to exchange with Crosland during the summer. The prime minister apparently decided he needed the experienced Healey to remain at the Treasury, the second-ranking post in the cabinet, because of Britain's grave economic condition.

The appointment was called a stroke of boldness by The Daily Mail and daring by The Daily Telegraph, both supporters of the opposition Conservative party.

Like Crosland, Owen has an American wife. She is the former Deborah Schabert, a 34-year-old literary agent whom he met in 1968 when he went to the United States to observe the New Hampshire presidential primary.

Her father is New York publisher Kyrill Schabert, one of the founders of Pantheon Books. She and Owen have two sons.

New CANDU Deal

OTTAWA (UPI) — Canada has renegotiated the sales contract for a Candu nuclear reactor to Argentina but it still stands to lose some $40 million on the deal, Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie said Monday.

The original agreement, signed before oil price increases sparked world-wide inflation, could have cost Canada $117 million. Gillespie said the new contract was "the best deal we could get. The Argentinians could have taken the position there would be no renegotiation."

The new contract was signed in Argentina by officials of Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., following almost two years of negotiations. The reactor is to be completed by 1981.

Under the agreement, Italimpianti, the Italian partners of AECL in the reactor construction, will lose about the same amount as Canada. The Canadian portion of construction is worth about $250 million.

AECL Chairman Ross Campbell said despite the Argentina loss he was confident AECL would show an overall profit and prospects for future sales are bright.

He said AECL hopes to sell a reactor to Italy and is now discussing licensing arrangements with Romania.

Canada is almost alone in the international sale of heavy water reactors.

IRELAND LIKELY CANDU BUYER

BRUSSELS (FP) — The Republic of Ireland may be interested in buying a Candu nuclear power reactor from Canada to produce power.

The possible Candu sale, if consumated, could be Canada's first direct nuclear sale into the European Economic Community, assuming that Italy and Denmark two other EEC countries with varying degrees of interest in Candu don't move first.

National Unity and the CBC

Everyone's favorite whipping-boy and all-around scapegoat, the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation is seriously besieged again in Ottawa. Unlike the recent past when MPs and Senators were roused from their slumbers every time the CBC dared to air something controversial, i.e., with sex or a satire on religion, these days it's not so frivolous.

Edging dangerously close to advocating government censorship, Ottawa is talking ominously about the CBC's failure to promote national unity. The prime minister and other members of his cabinet say that Radio-Canada (the CBC French language network) is promoting separatism and is filled with separatist commentators, new reporters, producers and such.

They don't come right out and say it, but clearly they would love to see a wholesale clear-out of these types. Of course, none of them ever seems to have any concrete evidence of separatism being promoted by Radio-Canada; names and dates and places. But that never stopped U.S. Sen. Joe McCarthy from claiming to know that communists were directing American foreign policy either.

That comparison is a bit hysterical, since there is something in what Prime Minister Trudeau and his colleagues are saying about the CBC. But they are complaining about the corporation's failure to fulfill its mandate, but for the wrong reasons.

The CBC has failed to promote national unity, all right, but the problem isn't confined to its French network. The corporation's failure extends throughout English Canada too, in its beggarly attitude toward the regions of the country.

The French language network, its headquarters in Montreal, speaking to a compact and unified audience located mostly within the borders of Quebec, reflects an exciting island of talent and creativity in the general wasteland of North American television.

The English network speaks to and for a geographically and socially much larger audience, more fragmented and isolated. That makes its job hard enough, but the English-language division of the CBC thinks national unity is served by centralizing control over programming in Toronto. If Newfies and Albertans and Manitobans wanted the Toronto viewpoint on everything, if they wanted to think like Toronto, they'd move there. They prefer their present addresses, for the reason that they are different. Does CBC English network reflect much of this diversity and difference?

Its money, resources, decision-making powers and all the rest are lodged in Ontario.

The crying need of Canadians today is to speak to each other, to listen and see what's going on elsewhere.

There have been some stellar programs as examples of this, but it is ironic that they were usually cancelled. This Hour Has Seven Days, with its French and English co-hosts, for one. For the Record documentary drama series, for another. Its initial program, The Dreamspeaker, was a beautiful example of what this country is — French-Canadian director, Claude Jutra; native Indian actor, George Clutese; and a Port Alberni playwright. But the series' latest offering on the Alberta tar sands development has been suspended, and may never be broadcast.

But the CBC could be doing so much more. Bilingualism and biculturalism is the law of the land, but when did you ever see or hear a program with those attributes on the CBC? How much has the English network told us about Quebec, its writers and singers and poets? Why Don't we see French programs on the English network? It can't be that subtitles are technically impossible — Dutch television has done it for years.

The CBC could learn from other countries as well. The BBC in England depends heavily on its regional production centres for programming. On German television, one of the most popular programs is the evening news. It is an hour-long roundup of events and developments in the entire republic, divided into short segments beamed from the German state capitals without first being filtered and translated by the central broadcasting headquarters.

In the coming debate on Confederation's future the CBC has a vital part to play, and unless it works harder to keep the country in touch with itself there won't be a CBC after the dust has settled.

Skinflint

How magnanimous of Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm, how generous and kind-hearted, to allow handicapped construction worker Bob Newmann of Vancouver to keep his $300 award from the criminal injuries compensation fund.

We're happy for Bob Neumann, but the sad thing about the case is that he got justice only when he raised a stink in the press, and in his own words and picture showed what a sleazy trick (albeit entirely legal) Vander Zalm's department was trying to carry off.

Sad is the condition of scores of other handicapped and the elderly who are being shafted by Vander Zalm's tightfisted pennypinching. He refuses to pass on increases of from $22.50 to $35 a month, which come from increased federal cost-sharing monies. This is exactly the same gambit Social Credit excoriated the NDP for doing when it was in office.

So Vander Zalm is busy piling up a revenue surplus for his department of between $50 million and $111 million (doesn't that make him just as inept as his predecessor Norman Levi?), but it's money earned by depriving the aged and the handicapped.

We agree with Liberal Leader Gordon Gibson's description of Vander Zalm's tactics — immoral.

HAROLD GREER

When a Referendum Isn't

TORONTO—It seems agreed on all sides that the next great step on the Quebec question will be the holding of "the referendum". Premier Levesque wants it as a mandate to negotiate (or try to) Quebec's independence with the federal government. Anti-separatists want it, the sooner the better, to clear the air because they are convinced the great majority of Quebecers will reject independence.

But both sides agree the "referendum," whenever held, will be a legitimate, thoroughly democratic means of resolving the issue, at least for the time being.

Levesque has been quite positive on this point. In his article in Foreign Affairs of last July, he said that "if the answer should be no, then there's nothing to do but wait for the momentum of change to keep on working."

In his famous New York speech, he said Quebecers would not be pushed into constitutional change, that all Quebecers of voting age would be entitled to vote in the referendum and that the date would be so arranged as to give "all legitimate advocates of the pro and con sufficient time to organize the great debate."

Unconstitutional

In the same vein, Levesque has said his government is preparing a basic parliamentary act to authorize the referendum under "the most equitable circumstances possible," including well-defined rules which will give everyone a chance "to push his opinion."

All this sounds so well-intentioned—and no doubt is—that one hesitates to point out that in the Canadian political system, the referendum is unconstitutional, unparliamentary and undemocratic.

The referendum, of course, is part of the political systems of many countries in western Europe, in Australia, and most of the U.S. states. While details vary, the essential idea is everywhere the same, that a referendum consists of submitting a specific question or questions directly to the electorate for decision, which decision is binding on the government.

This idea exists in Canada only on the municipal level of government, where some bylaws must be voted on by the electors directly, and on the provincial level in respect of "local option" under the liquor licensing laws. But it has never developed beyond these rather limited uses because, to put it bluntly, the courts have ruled the referendum to be unconstitutional.

This occurred soon after the Manitoba legislature, no doubt reflecting the influence of the populist Progressive movement under Theodore Roosevelt in the midwest U.S., enacted the Initiative and Referendum Act of 1916. Doubts about its constitutionality were expressed immediately, and the Manitoba government, by-passing the supreme court of Canada, asked the judicial committee of the privy council in London, for a ruling.

Briefly, the disputed act provided for petition whereby the voters could require the legislature not only to pass certain legislation but also to submit any legislation passed to the electorate for approval or disapproval, which decision the government and legislature was bound, generally speaking, to accept.

The privy council struck it down in 1919 on the ground that the system would have adversely affected the office and powers of the lieutenant-governor, and this the legislature could not do under the BNA Act. It pointed out the lieutenant-governor was constitutionally part of the legislature, with certain powers and responsibilities, and the Manitoba legislative assembly proposed to rob him of those powers and responsibilities whenever laws were decided directly by the voters, either by the initiative or by the referendum.

The Manitoba act was simply dropped from the statute books but curiously a very similar law in Alberta, The Direct Legislation Act of 1913, was carried on the statutes of that province until it was repealed in 1958. I do not believe there were ever any attempts to use it. They're just stubborn in Alberta.

Federally, there has never been a referendum in Canada and probably could not be without a constitutional amendment, since the legal reasoning which was applied in the Manitoba case concerning the lieutenant-governor would seem to apply equally to the queen and federal legislation.

What is commonly thought of as a referendum, however, occurred federally on April 27, 1942, when the voters were asked if they were in favor of releasing the government from its commitment not to conscript military personnel for overseas service. Quebec excepted, most of the voters answered "yes" but the government did not consider itself bound thereby. Indeed, it was the government's disinclination to be bound that led to Mackenzie King's famous "not necessarily conscription but conscription if necessary."

In short, the 1942 "referendum" to the voters was really a plebiscite. The two words are hardly distinguishable in the dictionary, but in constitutional practice they tend to be quite different things. A plebiscite is a consultation with the voters, a request for advice; it is the ultimate public opinion poll. A referendum is an instruction, an order—something the government must do or not do.

Is It Plebescite?

"Referendum" and "plebiscite" also are used in French but there the English meanings appear to be reversed. "Referendum" denotes consultation with the voters while "plebiscite" denotes a decree from them. It is significant Premier Levesque always uses "referendum", in English or French, which happily for him serves both worlds. To French-speaking Quebec, it suggests a consultative procedure where an initial "no" to independence would be tolerable simply because it would not be permanent and final. To English-speaking Canada, it is a much harder term, implying a degree of finality and conveying, above all, the notion that the government of Quebec already has the sole power and authority to speak for Quebecers on Confederation, whatever they may choose to say.

This of course is not true—not yet at least—and runs counter to the federal-provincial nature of Canadian democracy. What Levesque calls a "referendum" of Quebecers would undoubtedly be constitutional but that does not automatically make it democratic.

W. A. WILSON

Jack Horner's Fan Club

OTTAWA — The Jack Horner fan club is clearly becoming overcrowded with just about anybody signing on nowadays. A member could easily be jostled or find his toes being trampled in the crush.

It used to be small and exclusive. In those days its members prided themselves on special qualities of discernment, the ability to see past the facade and appreciate that the big Alberta cattle rancher, who appeared to be the Conservative party's leading maverick, was really a highly intelligent and responsible man.

Joyce Fairbairn, who works for the prime minister now as a legislative assistant, was one of the charter members of the club when it was a more exclusive group and she was a political journalist.

My own colleague, Peter Thomson, comes from a family that has been raising cattle in Manitoba for more than a hundred years and he always felt a certain occupational kinship with Horner based on a common knowledge of cows and politics.

John Turner was never quite a full-fledged member of the club until he began patching up some of the oddities of tax reform after becoming minister of finance. Early in that game, Horner made a convincing speech in the House of Commons criticizing the way the rearranged succession duties applied to family farms. The new finance minister listened with care, was impressed and after some further discussion became convinced that the Alberta Tory was indeed right.

Early Member

The outcome was that Turner sponsored the "Jack Horner amendment" to our tax laws in the house and, being a shrewd and able politician, gave the Alberta member public credit for the change. After that, the finance minister was well-established as a member of the Jack Horner fan club while it was still in its early stages.

While he was finance minister, Turner was disinclined to get into too much discussion with journalists of the monthly fluctuations in the cost of living and unemployment figures, correctly reasoning that his predecessor, Edgar Benson, had done himself nothing but harm through such involvements. From time to time, he took to slipping out the back door of the Commons chamber which opens into a hallway that is without heavy traffic and which is served by a handy staircase. On at least one occasion, he found convenient business in the nearby speaker's chambers while the press milled around in search of him. On others, it was said reliably, he slipped into Horner's office and sipped a glass of whisky peacefully until the correspondents had given up and gone away.

This writer approached the fringes of the fan club through the intervention of Miss Fairbairn. Insisting that some of my earlier impressions of him were faulty, she took me along to a two-hour meeting with Horner one day during a Conservative party convention in Niagara Falls. I found myself talking to a man of interest whose ideas, whether I happened to agree or not, were well-thought out and serious. I was not really a member of the club, though until much later, after the 1972 election, when C. M. Drury set about remedying some of the defects in the initial approach to official bilingualism. Some of the problems and some of his answers seemed familiar. I went back and re-read the speech that Horner had delivered in the Commons when the Official Languages Act was originally being debated. It was a sensible speech in which the Albertan had correctly put his finger on some of the problems that were likely and had offered solutions not unlike those Drury came to later. It seemed to me that it was, moreover, a very fair speech as well as one of considerable wisdom.

Those, so to speak, were the good old days. Now we have come to the grey flannel Jack Horner, the Tory who can pull the Liberals in to speak at his fund-raising dinners and everything is different. The entire country seems to have caught on that Horner is a serious, responsible man. The sober, well-cut suits have replaced the old shooting jacket with leather patches on the elbows that he once favored. There is a crowd around him.

The crowd is, indeed, so thick that after it became known that Turner was speaking at one of his fund-raising roasts and Bryce Mackasey at the other, one prominent Liberal was heard saying forlornly, "I wish they asked me too."

There is more goodwill across party lines in politics than usually appears on the surface but is doubtful if many Tory MPs could get Liberal ministers and ex-ministers to play key roles in fund-raising efforts to pay off the debts of a leadership contest. It does raise the question how Horner has done it.

Crowded Now

There is also, of course, the question how he managed to get as many young people working in his organization as he did when he was contesting the Conservative leadership. He is, after all, a real Conservative, political miles away from the red Tories like Gordon Fairweather and Flora Macdonald. He is not a reactionary, which is different breed of cat, but he is firmly on the right of democratic politics.

There are several reasons. At the head of the list, probably, is the fact that he is a frank and honest man who is never afraid of the unpopular position if he is satisfied that it is rght. he is politically very shrewd, alomost as shrewd as John Turner. He works hard and intelligently. And events have often proven him right. The Horner view of a problem is worth considering, not to be dismissed lightly. But other men in politics have more or less the same qualities and could not get Turner, Mackasey, Whelan and a gaggle of correspondents to help them get out of their campaign indebtedness.

Part of the explanation, I suppose, is the contradiction that marks Horner's political career. He actually did work hard at making the world think of him as the Tories' most formidable maverick. The fact that a man of worth underlay the stereotype has its appeal, no small part of which is the way in which it has permitted a certain number of people to feel pleased with the depths of their own perceptions.

Cartoons — thank the cave men for starting them. Now we can analyze the kids by their kindergarten scrawls and our greeting cards can make us love more, laugh more and get well again. Thanks to cartoons, stuffed shirts are daily punctured and tyrants of every breed are peering back over their shoulders.

And thank you, Times for Herman. Remember on Feb. 16 him saying: "See that! I forgot to tighten the nut." as his bench mate stands in blissful ignorance that the rampaging saw blade split his cap's visor before slicing into the wall above his head. Make 'Em Happy

I've got it, I've got it! After reading the reprinted letter from Fred Marshall, Do We Need Autoplan Salesmen? (Times, Feb. 12), it all suddenly became clear to me. I must inform Dr. McGeer of my brainstorm, he will be delighted.

Mr. Marshall points out that automobile insurance agents "earn commissions of $80, $100, $120 or more for . . . processing a single application." The amount is immaterial to my argument, but not to my pocket. If the amount earned by each agent was considered separately from the true insurance value, then a very clear choice could be made.

Skinflints, such as I, could go down to the motor vehicles branch, spend eight hours in a line up and yet get a tangible reward, the $80 to $120 that the insurance agent would have claimed. On the other hand, people would also have the option of choosing to have their policy "sold" to them, with all the sparkle and glamor that only a true insurance agent can provide. For this privilege they would have the honour of handing over an extra $80 to $120.

This ingenious, and yet so simple, scheme would satisfy everyone. A free choice situation would prevail — as so fervently promised during the last election, and so the government would be happy. I would save money — that always makes me happy. Those who thrill for a life of excitement could have their policies "sold" to them, and they would be happy.

Ah, the sheer beauty of it all. I wonder who wouldn't be happy.—Philip Dearden, 3054 Milgrove Street.

Super Country

We've heard plenty these past months from those small-minded people who oppose the extension of the French network Radio Canada in this province. They use arguments just like those of separatist elements in Chicoutimi who abhor English CBC expansion there. We also recall how the anglophone pilots and controllers illegally halted our nation's air traffic and crippled Air Canada's efforts to turn a profit, all to try to blackmail Ottawa into not allowing francophone pilots to use their own language in Quebec air space along with English, not to the exclusion of it. They no doubt helped Levesque to power.

My reaction to such Canadians is that they do not deserve this country! It is the best on earth and I for one do not want to see it dismembered, truncated and balkanized! Today the French aspect of our national culture is vibrant with a kind of renaissance blossoming. Canada's other official language is also second only to English in global usefulness and prestige. We've everything to lose by obliging the Quebecois to leave the union, and not just culturally. I hope our hearts are big enough for this super country, and urge other moderate Canadians to let their voices be heard, lest their apathy allow the termites to completely destroy us! — Un Canadien, Natif de Victoria.

The New Code: Do It If You Can Get Away With It

By ROBERT NIELSEN
Toronto Star

When a young couple recently returned a bag of groceries taken home by mistake, a weeping supermarket cashier was not only relieved but also surprised. She said not one shopper in 10 would have done it.

The old ideas about honesty, as a test of personal merit and as the best policy, are losing their hold on people's minds. In ways both trivial and serious, it's a vanishing virture.

Every business day, in every detectable way, Canadians are committing more dishonest acts.

The official statistics say that the rate of property crimes — theft, fraud, burglary and robbery — has more than doubled in the past 10 years.

The number of such crimes per 100,000 of population rose from 2,119 in 1965 to 4,674 in 1975.

If this trend continues unabated, the number of property crimes per year would equal the number of people in the year 2013, just 36 years from now.

And that's only the known crookedness, the kind that gets on police blotters. Much, perhaps most, of it goes unreported and uncharged. This is usually the case with employee thefts from employers, which are hushed up to protect the company's public image.

Dishonesty is so prevalent that it mocks the theory of a "criminal class" which can be blamed for most of the skulduggery. Although the bolder property crimes, such as robbery and burglary, are usually committed by poorly educated, lower-income people, these are far from being the commonest or the costliest in money value. White-collar crime nets more loot than blue-collar crime does. Property crime has risen along the whole occupational range from humble service trades to respected professions.

The facts likewise discredit the old idea that poverty is a leading cause of, and excuse for, crime. The real incomes of nearly all classes and occupations rose during the 1965-75 decade. Even at the lower income levels, convicted thieves admit that they stole for "extras" or luxuries, not out of stark need.

In general, then, crime for gain has increased with affluence, and perhaps in part as a result of it, because more money and goods are available as targets for thieves and swindlers.

But the decisive change is the spread of a moral atmosphere in which both minor and major dishonesties can flourish. The following are a few of the defaults and thieveries which have become more or less routine.

—Stealing books from libraries.

—Moving on without paying household bills and personal debts.

The coin-operated vending boxes used by the three Toronto newspapers are silent witnesses to a decline in public honesty. In the mid-1950s, when newspapers sold for a nickel, losses from open "honor boxes" were under 5 per cent. Losses began to rise when the papers went to a dime in late 1957, and by 1970 had reached 35 per cent, thereby impoverishing the independent box operators. Hence the coin-operated boxes, which have cut the loss to about 10 per cent, most of it caused by thieves who break into them to get the deposited money, not the papers.

That case also indicates that some people's tenuous grip on honesty can be broken by a price rise. Score another demerit mark to inflation.

Evidence of costlier kinds of dishonesty is all to abundant.

Shoplifting is costing Canadian merchants an estimated $1 million per average shopping day. But the security business has a rule of thumb for crime in business and industry: "One third out-house, two thirds in-house." Meaning that employees, including executives, take their companies for twice as much as outside thieves get.

"Industrial crime" in Canada is estimated to have cost $4 billion in 1975, up from $2.5 billion in 1972. This includes pilfering, embezzling, sabotage, hijacking, bribes and kickbacks. Less than half of all this gets into the crime statistics.

An example of sabotage: A department store employee secretly cuts or rips the upholstery on a sofa, and gets it declared unsaleable. Then it goes at a minimal price to a second-hand dealer — with a kickback to the saboteur.

An epidemic of income tax evasion is reported by national revenue officials. Some of the dodges used to conceal income are getting more brazen — such as knocking $1,000 off each page of the company's revenue statements — and some are getting fancier.

A company constructing a private swimming pool for an executive of another firm may say the price is $7,000, "but what we'll do is bill your company $5,000 — put it under floor-laying or office renovation to make it a business expense. Then you personally pay us $2,000 cash, which is approximately our profit on the deal."

The crooked executive gets $5,000 worth of pool for $2,000; his company's expenses have been raised by $5,000, which lowers its tax; and the construction company gets an undeclared $2,000 profit tax-free.

The thieves' profit is, of course, everybody's loss. That figure of $4 billion a year for industrial crime works out to nearly $200 for each man, woman and child in Canada. And businesses can only pass the cost on to the public in higher prices.

Anyone who looks to the rising generation to sweep away such corruption should look again. Youngsters of 12 to 14 are being arrested for such nervy offences as breaking and entering and peddling stolen goods. The Oshawa Group stores report that 52 per cent of the shoplifters they catch are juveniles. Profitable essay-selling enterprises near our major universities suggest that the state of honesty is scarcely superior among older, "better class" youth.

"There's a national climate of acceptance for corruption and dishonesty," says W. J. Fitzsimmons, former deputy commissioner of the RCMP and now deputy manager of the Insurance Crime Prevention Bureau.

Paul O'Donoghue, president of Marsh and McLennan Ltd., which must cope with a sharply rising incidence of fraudulent insurance claims in business and industry, sees moral decay "starting at the senior government level and working down. When you get to the lower levels people don't feel it's wrong: they might have 10 years ago."

Robert Gourlay, loss prevention manager for Eaton's, says "there's a trend in our whole society to be dishonest if you can get away with it."

Those are topside opinions and possibly unbalanced by a constant professional focus on dishonesty. A segment of bottomside opinion, held by persons convicted of property crimes, is remarkably similar.

"Society in North America is getting worse, and you're going to see more dishonesty in future," says Jimmy, doing time at an adult training centre for fraud and theft.

"Everything is geared to luxury and good living, and everybody wants it — and nowadays they don't expect to work themselves to the bone to get it. So they'll use any kind of devious and dishonest way to get wealth."

Convicted offenders have, of course, a psychological reason for viewing society as a mass of corruption. They like to think they are no worse than others, who have been lucky or smart enough to escape detection.

It may restore some perspective to observe that we could hardly live as comfortably as most of us do unless a great many people were giving reasonably honest value in terms of reliability and efficiency. Most contracts are honored, most commercial promises kept, if only out of self-interest. For persons and firms that want to stay in business, honesty in such matters still pays.

Also, it's an ill wind . . . Security is a growth industry, hiring many older people whose honesty is now their most marketable asset. Sales of locks, safes and all kinds of alarm systems are booming. One firm, Chubb and Mosler, sold about $27 million worth of security equipment in 1976 compared to $7 million worth 10 years earlier.

Who Needs The Pension?

By LEONARD SHIFRIN

OTTAWA — It lasted less than a minute, as a brief tangent in the discussion of another issue, but it was probably the most germane debate on Canada's welfare policy that the Commons has heard in recent years.

"I have never been one who believes in universality", announced New Westminster New Democrat Stuart Leggatt, "and I will disagree with many members of my party on that question".

Challenged immediately by fellow New Democrat Arnold Peters to justify his heresy, Leggatt replied: "H. R. MacMillan should not get a guaranteed old age pension. He is in a position to provide his own."

Did the late multimillionnaire founder of the west coast giant, MacMillan-Bloedel, really need a $140-a-month Old Age Security pension from the government?

"Probably not", conceded NDP welfare spokesman Stanley Knowles when I talked with him last week. "But universality in social security programs has always been an ideal for our party."

In fact, a week earlier he had moved in the Commons that the Guaranteed Income Supplement, which adds up to $100 a month to the pensions of low-income senior citizens, be replaced by an increase in the universal pension to $250.

It wasn't that he felt the H. R. MacMillans needed the extra money, he said, but most of the 40 per cent of senior citizens who fail to qualify for the supplement do need it.

That may well be, but if so, what it argues for is an increase in the amount of the income-tested supplement. That would extend its coverage farther up the income scale and increase the proportion of senior citizens receiving its benefits.

But that's not an argument that the NDP can make.

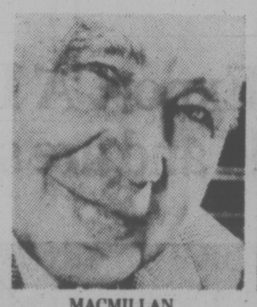
Since it refuses to accept the principle of selectivity on the grounds that it is inherently stigmatizing, it can't argue that an income cut-off is simply too low and should be raised.

Instead of making the case for a relatively inexpensive $10 increase in the supplement for low-income senior citizens, it has to argue for the patently unrealistic proposition of a several billion dollar universal boost that will give the H. R. MacMillans an extra $100 a month in order to get the poorest seniors a $10 boost.

Back in the 50s, Liberal Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent described the NDP's CCF predecessor as "Liberals in a hurry". While few NDPers will agree that they are no more than that, certainly none will admit to being less.

And yet, at the federal level, they have in fact become less than that.

It happened, I think, when the Guaranteed Income Supplement was introduced a decade ago. Although the NDP, which had been arguing for a $25 increase in the universal pension, reluctantly went along with the $30 income-tested raise proposed by the Pearson government, it remains unreconciled to the concept even today.



MACMILLAN

LEGGATT

Its opposition to selectivity had greater consequences a few years later when a Liberal effort to boost family allowances for the poor by eliminating them for the highest income 30 per cent of families went down the Parliamentary drain. It was successfully opposed by an unlikely coalition of those more concerned with the economic interests of the richest than the poorest of Canada's families and starry-eyed NDPers defending the "ideal" of universality.

While acknowledging that he is in a minority within the NDP's federal caucus, Stuart Leggatt is not at all sure that his views would be seen as heretical throughout the party.

He points out that income-tested provincial supplements to the federal old age pension were pioneered by an NDP government in British Columbia and have been adopted by NDP governments in Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

Talking to the 45-year-old Leggatt, who was first elected to the Commons in 1972, it is clear that he shares the pragmatism of his chronological peers in NDP provincial governments rather than the black-and-white "ideals" that still govern for those such as Stanley Knowles, who first entered the Commons in 1942, and Tommy Douglas, who made his first appearance even earlier.

But it is the sexagenarian generation whose thinking still dominates in Ottawa's NDP caucus. Instead of being the party of new ideas—writing the Liberal platform two elections in advance, as used to be said of the CCF — the federal NDP has becme the party of old answers that fail to fit today's new questions.

And the result is its inability to capitalize on the plummeting popularity of the Trudeau Liberals.

Although its leadership passed to a new generation with the selection of Ed Broadbent two years ago, he won that mantle by being the young man most in tune with the party's oldest ideas.

There is more than a little irony in the fact that virtually all the new generation pragmatic social democrats elected in 1972 went down to defeat in the self-destruct election forced by old-guard purists 18 months later.

It wasn't that David Lewis and the other old warriors wanted to sacrifice their most promising new recruits, but proving that New Democrats are different from Liberals and couldn't go on supporting them in office was a matter of principle.

Like H. R. MacMillan's old age pension.

Nielsen Flaunts Yet Another Report

THE SUN
An Editorial

British Columbia Environment Minister James Nielsen has played so dangerously with the truth on the Pacific Playgrounds Ltd. project at Oyster River on Vancouver Island that it raises questions about his continued usefulness as a cabinet minister.

A so-called social impact report, prepared for the provincial government nearly two years ago by academic Bentley Le Baron and made available last week to Sun reporter Moira Farrow, rejects the marine resort complex as being socially undesirable for the area, impinging on territory set aside as a provincial recreation reserve, and opposed by the public which views it as "massive and ugly," a polluting threat to swimmers, crabs and oysters and to the beauty of the beach as well as a threat to public access to the beach.

Yet when Mr. Nielsen announced approval of the project last month, he said studies on the project "have not revealed any substantive reason either environmentally or technically for denying the application."

Mr. Nielsen did not mention Dr. Le Baron's "social impact assessment," written after Dr. Le Baron held public hearings on the project in the Courtenay-Campbell River area.

Mr. Nielsen had not, at that time, made public the Le Baron report.

Mr. Nielsen did not make public the report until after it had found its way into reporter Farrow's hands.

It is, indeed, a fair question whether Mr. Nielsen would ever have made public the report if Miss Farrow had not done the job for him.

This is how the minister of — believe it or not — the environment handles a project described by its original developer as "another Coney Island" and by its current developer as "fundamentally unchanged" from what the original developer had in mind.

Mr. Nielsen's handling of it smells. In fact it stinks.

It fits, however, snugly with most else the man has been doing . . . his involvement in the Terry racetrack affair, his clownish behavior over the so-called civil service blacklist, the vindictive action by his ministry to reduce by 80 per cent the annual grant given to the Scientic Pollution and Environmental Control Society, his inept conception of what the land commission is about — going right back to the day when he was sworn in as a minister and said he didn't know anything about the environment.

He demonstrates that. Why does Premier Bennett keep him in the post?

Every year the same old routine. Winter would rise from the Arctic ice, tour down through Canada, then swing east along the same old route: North Dakota, Minneapolis, Chicago, Lake Erie, Albany, Boston.

How tired of it all Winter had become. Minneapolis! He had spent so much time in Minneapolis that he was beginning to feel like Hubert Humphrey. And Boston. He knew Boston better than Willy Loman did. No wonder Willy had chosen suicide. Winter had begun brooding about the possibility himself.

Would it not make a great play? "Death of a Season." He fancied the idea of a two-year run in New York. He never got to stay there long enough. It was always off to Albany, then on to Boston at the usual goading memo from his mother. "Time to close Logan Airport again for eighteen hours," she was always saying.

He was sick and tired of her memos. All those treacly nature writers calling her Mother Nature had turned her head. She loved those hackneyed news stories referring to "Mother Nature's icy grip." Personally, Winter hated such vulgarity of expression.

He hated, too, his mother's habit of waking him every year with her cheerful, "Rise and snow, rise and snow!" Lately, he had begun to balk. "I think I'll pass it up this year," he had said with increasing frequency. "Nonsense," his mother invariably replied. "It's time to give your old mother's icy grip a little publicity in the papers." And off she would pack him. Minneapolis, Chicago, Albany . . . . The sample cases loaded with the same old sleet and that tired old plummeting mercury. Everybody along the route was bored with it.

Last year Winter got his back up and refused to go south of Winnipeg. There was a nasty scene back home. Afterwards, Summer, who had been to college and knew where to find girls who wore practically no clothes at all, took Winter aside, "why don't you get yourself a girl to see when you go on the road?"

"I'm not interested in girls," said Winter. "They've got too much fur. A moose has got better curves."

"You are going to the wrong places," said Summer. "If you go south the fur disappears and you will never look at a moose again."

In October, Mother Nature was at it again. "Rise and snow, rise and snow!" she called. Winter hopped briskly off the Arctic ice, packed his things and did the Canada-Dakota-Minneapolis leg of the annual tour. "How do I get south?" he asked a furry woman. "Go to Cincinnati and turn left," she said.

The next day it was 25 degrees below zero in Cincinnati and he saw neither man nor woman who was fit to look at. In fact, the way these people looked made him yearn for the sight of a moose.

He went to Buffalo. At this time of year, there was bound to be a moose in Buffalo.

He spent days roaming Buffalo. Not a moose in sight. Eventually he met a woolly mammoth. "Where are the moose?" asked Winter. "Gone south to escape Nature's icy grip," said the mammoth.

Winter said he had been south all the way to Cincinnati. Not a moose in sight. "Cincinnati's not south," said the woolly mammoth. "To get south, you've got to go to New Orleans and turn left."

The next day it was so cold on the Gulf of Mexico that the citrus groves were producing instant frozen juice, and Winter saw neither man nor woman who did not look like a freshly plucked chicken. Their blue-pimpled hides made him yearn for the sight of a woolly mammoth, so he headed for Buffalo.

He spent days roaming Buffalo. Not a woolly mammoth in sight. Eventually he met Mother Nature who had come out to see what he thought he was doing going to New Orleans and making left turns, and had been marooned for a week in a snow bank.

She was furious. "Get on back to the Arctic ice and go to bed," she said, "and you're never to use the car again without my permission."

Unfortunately, however, she was not able to make herself heard, for she was already so tightly locked in her own icy grip that her larynx was suffering from tertiary frostbite. Winter, thinking that she was merely incoherent with pride at his new-found get-up-and-go, skipped off merrily toward Miami and turned left.

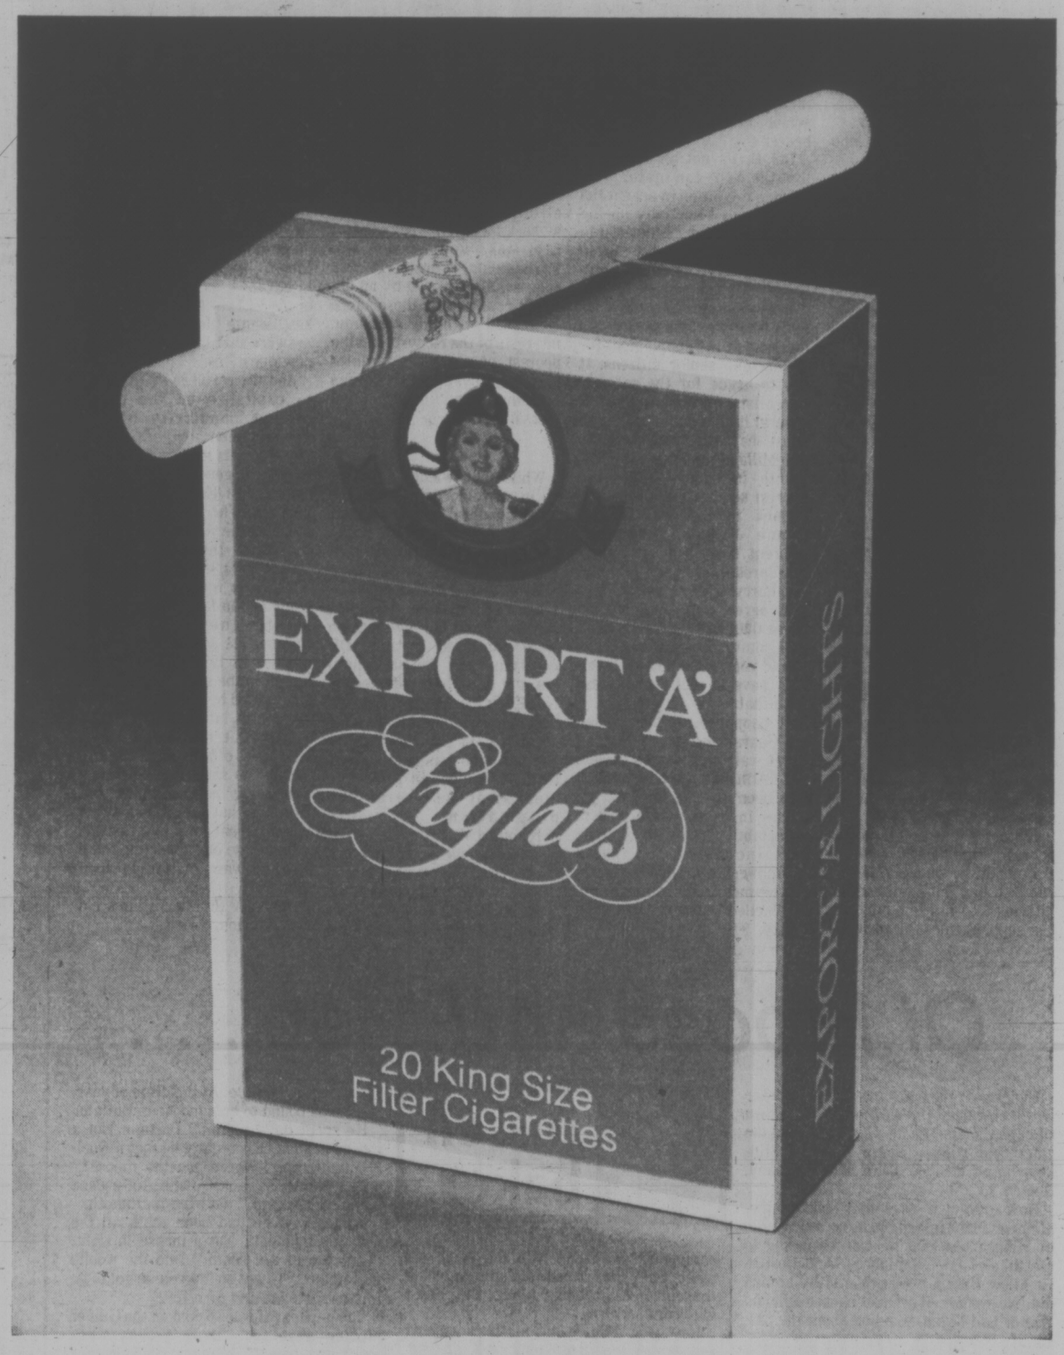
Sensational Smoking Experience

From "Gentled Tobacco" comes new Export 'A' Lights, for smokers who have gone from strong to mild and are still unsatisfied.



In all our years of cigarette making (we started in 1858), we have never made a cigarette like new Export 'A' Lights.

We took the finest, full-flavoured tobaccos available. Then gentled and blended them as never before, to produce total taste combined with a light smoke. All richness in, all harshness out. Not just another cigarette, but a truly sensational smoking experience with gentle strength.

If strong cigarettes are too much for you, and mild cigarettes not enough, you owe it to yourself to try new Export 'A' Lights.

It's the one cigarette that's just right.

KING SIZE AND REGULAR

New Export 'A' Lights.

The first just right cigarette.

Warning: Health and Welfare Canada advises that danger to health increases with amount smoked – avoid inhaling. Average per cigarette: 14mg "tar", 1.0mg nicotine.

No Quick Solutions For Ganges Sewage

There will be no easy and early solutions to the sewage disposal problem in Ganges, Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis warned Monday.

Asked when provinccial government action would be forthcoming to allay the concerns of Salt Spring Island residents, elected representatives and health officials, Curtis said:

"Notwithstanding the fact that the sewerage difficulties in Ganges have been given prominence in recent days, I have been wrestling with it for quite some time. And I don't expect any immediate solutions."

He noted that the problem of seeping effluent has taken years to develop.

"I am trying to put the whole thing together and that is not going to happen overnight."

Curtis stressed, however, that the Ganges situation is considered a priority one and said he had just concluded a staff meeting where the whole matter was reviewed.

The Ganges sewer committee has asked the provincial government to finance the installation and monitoring of two experimental treatment plants.

The plants would treat solids and liquids separately, using methods developed in Switzerland and at the University of British Columbia.

In the Colthard method, developed by a UBC professor, solids are subjected to high-temperature bacteriological treatment which destroys all harmful elements, leaving a powdery residue which can be used as fertilizer.

Dr. Henry Elder, chairman of the Ganges sewer committee, said today the plants for both systems could be accommodated in an area "twice the size of your living room."

Curtis said the proposal is being considered by ministry officials, but with conflicting opinions in some cases.

"There are some pluses and some minuses," he said. "But this whole question is very much current on my desk."

Said Georrge Heinekey, Salt Spring Island director on the Capital Region Baord: "I am holding my breath waiting."

Following a tour of inspection in Ganges last week, regional officials expressed concern about the potential health hazard from overflowing septic tanks.

Heinekey expects the subject will be discussed at Wednesday's regional board meeting.

AID FOR AGED FILING TAXES

Old-age pensioners who qualify can get assistance with their income tax returns again this year from business administration students at Camosun College.

Peter McNeil, program coordinator of the college business division, said last year's project was so successful the college has had to impose some restrictions this year.

Persons over 65, Canadian residents, having no business or rental income, and with gross earnings from all sources under $9,900, can get free assistance with their tax returns.

The work will be done by students in their second year of the business program and there will be a supervisor checking their work, McNeil said.

The students take an income tax course this semester, and the practical knowledge gained by filling out real tax forms is of great benefit to them, McNeil added.

The project runs from March 7 to 25.

The pensioner is required to bring all receipts and documents to the general office lounge of the Ewing building at the Lansdowne campus where he will be met by the student doing his return.

AIB Sticks to Rollback; Hospital Pact Cut 6%

VANCOUVER (CP) — The administrator of the federal Anti-Inflation Board program has re-affirmed an AIB rollback to eight per cent from 13.96 for the 1976 contract covering about 16,000 hospital employees union received the word Monday from administrator Donald Tansley in Ottawa.

Hospital employers and the B.C. hospital workers.

Union officials, who had referred the contract to the administrator after the original rollback by the board, were not immediately available for comment and will hold an executive meeting later this week.

They can still take a further step by appealing the decision to the AIB appeals tribunal.

Chester Hooper, spokesman for Health Labor Relations Association, representing the hospitals, described the Tansley decision as a "vote in favor of common sense" in view of inflation.

Hooper said if inflation is not controlled it "will only aggravate an already serious situation."

The original settlement was provided for in legislation that ended rotating strikes at some B.C. hospitals early last year, subject to approval by the AIB.

Hooper said the administrator's ruling also re-affirmed that the second year of the contract, which was left open by the provincial legislation, will limit the 1977 increase to the maximum AIB guideline of six per cent.

Trudeau: Unity Will Not Be Fractured

Canadians and the 220-million English-speaking Americans.

"These figures illustrate dramatically the sense of insecurity of French Canada," Trudeau said.

"But separation would not alter the arithmetic—it would merely increase the exposure."

Trudeau warned that any decision by Quebecers to leave Canada would undermine the determination of Canadians to protect cultural minorities.

"The sudden departure of Quebec would signify the tragic failure of our pluralist dream, the fracturing of our cultural mosaic, and would likely remove much of the determination of Canadians to protect their cultural minorities."

Trudeau said the problems that have led to independence aspirations by Quebecers cannot be "wished away.'

But they can be solved by institutions created for governing Canada.

'Democratic institutions belong to all Canadians, Trudeau said.

"And because these institutions are democratically structured, because their members are freely elected, they are capable of reflecting changes and of responding to the popular will."

The prime minister said he is confident of devising a society "as free of prejudice and fear, as full of understanding and generosity, as respectful of individuality and beauty, as receptive to change and innovation, as exists anywhere."

Most Canadians understand that dividing Canada would be "crime against humanism."

It would create "shock waves of disbelief among those all over the world who are committed to the proposition that among man's noblest endeavors are those communities in which persons of diverse origins live, love, work and find mutual benefit."

Trudeau also pledged to pursue closer ties between Canada and the United States, underscoring expressions of friendship and support he offered Carter during a round of private talks Monday.

Carter said Monday he prefers to see Canada united. He added that whether Quebec should separate from Canada "is a judgment for the Canadian people to make and I trust that judgment."

Asked whether his administration would recognize a sovereign state of Quebec if it separated from the rest of Canada, the president replied: "Well, I don't know how it could. We'll cross that bridge when we come to it."

TABLE-TALK CLUE

WASHINGTON (CP) — The man who came to dinner at the White House may be a clue to the biggest joint decision the leaders of Canada and the United States will make this year.

The guest, at Monday's state dinner for Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, was John G. McMillan of Salt Lake City, Utah.

He is head of the group of companies that wants to build the Alcan pipeline — a natural gas pipeline following the route of the Alaska Highway across Canada.

The decision, which Trudeau and President Jimmy Carter discussed at their meeting today, is which route such a pipeline should take.

There are three competing proposals, any of which would cost billions of dollars. Up to now, the Alcan pipeline has not been the favorite.

But Carter invited "Mr. Alcan" to the Trudeau dinner.

Food Prices Climb 3%

also been stable, except for specials. During the great toilet paper scare one year ago prices for a four-roll pack rose from $1.07 to $1.25 after reports that provincial stocks were running low.

It might have been a false alarm because shelves continued to be full and prices have not changed since that time. Paper towels rose from $1.07 to $1.13 during the same scare and have not increased since.

Fresh vegetables are not included in the Times shopping basket but some price increases have been noted. The Florida freeze-up is expected to increase produce prices by three per cent by spring but by the end of the year the prices will have levelled out.

Fresh produce prices are expected to be up only one half a percentage point by year's end. Wild swings from month to month produce distortions in the food index and therefore are excluded from the Times survey.

In practice, food buyers tend to substitute vegetables month by month and avoid those products that appear to be unrealistically high.

In the next three months the price of tomatoes is expected to soar and oranges will be somewhat more expensive.

Shoppers who switch from oranges to bananas and avoid tomatoes will experience no increase in produce prices. Cost of canned fruits and vegetables will be stable during the next four months.

Fired Workers Lost on Grizzly

development through meetings going back at least two years. Halton Green, vice-president of Westcoast Transmission Ltd., said feasibility studies on the project were completed in early August.

BCPC asked Westcoast to build the pipeline Dec. 6, Green said, four days before the official announcement.

Lechner said BCPC told the natural gas producers of its decision to build the line in a meeting Nov. 8. "All producers informed were asked not to make any public announcement," Lechner said.

Green's testimony listed almost monthly meetings during 1976 involving Westcoast, BCPC, government officials and gas producers discussing the possibility of the pipeline link.

On July 13, Green said, Westcoast sent the ministry of economic development a preliminary pipeline route map at the ministry's request. Green said this route could be changed as more research is done on the entire development.

Commission counsel Ernest Alexander said witnesses later this week will describe land transactions on possible townsites in the development area and along the pipeline right-of-way.

Opposition leader Dave Barrett did not appear at the inquiry as scheduled because "he has no factual information to offer," said lawyer Peter Leask, representing Barrett and Graham Lea (NDP — Prince Rupert).

Lea said that NDP researchers turned up "unusual trading patterns" in Quasar Petroleum and Cheyenne shares in July and early December, but added that most of the findings of a party investigation into the situation shouldn't be made public because the information hasn't been substantiated.

Premier Bill Bennett said Monday he does not intend to make any statements on the judicial inquiry into the Grizzly Valley pipeline controversy.

Asked by reporters about the revelations of the first day of testimony at the Vancouver hearings, Bennett said he would not talk about it.

TOWN TALK

Adults Only is the name of the noon-hour swim session at the Oak Bay Recreation Centre Pool on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays — and one elderly adult took the name literally.

Dressed in Bermuda shorts, a suntop and clogs (it's supposed to be swimwear only) the woman, who was in her late 60s or early 70s, stepped into one of the saunas and endured the heat for a while. Then, when it became too hot for her, she shipped off her top, baring all above the waist and chatted amiably in her European accent with everyone who came in.

It was marvelous watching the expressions of those who entered! As one man said afterward:

"It didn't seem to bother her at all. She was a lovely old dear.

Now, if we can just get some of the younger ones to follow suit . . ."

Is Greater Victoria school board trying to ensure it has a captive audience for its deliberations?

About 125 spectators at Monday's meeting had to wait most of the night before trustees got to the controversial Lansdowne junior high school issue.

Two hours went by, the coffee break, and then an hour's debate that led to the decision at 11 p.m. the parents didn't want to hear . . . no senior high school status for Lansdowne.

A refreshing twist from below the line . . .

The Washington State Food Dealers' Association is running radio commercials advising consumers how to cut down on the weekly food bill.

Example: shop after meals, not before.

Presumably, the thinking here is that customers are less likely to let their appetites be their guide if they're not ravenous.

Example: avoid "drop-in" shopping.

The idea here is that buying one big order weekly will result in a lower over-all food bill than popping in three or four times a week.

SPICER
. . . decisions, decisions

Keith Spicer, Canada's commissioner of official languages, was undecided Monday which language to use when addressing the conference of Vancouver Island French Language Teachers.

In the bastion of Canada's English presence, the Empress Hotel, he opted for English with only the odd phrase or bot mot en francais.

"This may be the only audience in the West where I won't be accused of ramming French down anyone's throat," he said for openers.

Women who have babies born at Victoria's two general hospitals today are going to get a carnation—and their babies are going to get an invitation.

Today is the birthday of Lord Robert Baden-Powell, founder of the Boy Scout and Girl Guide movements, and the carnations are a gesture to mark the occasion, explains Mrs. J. L. Nicholson, a local Guide commissioner.

The invitation to the babies? They'll be invited to come forward in seven years time to join the Brownies or Cubs.

Does B.C. Tel know something we don't?

Is the provincial government going to buy or purchase a new ferry to be called the Princess Victoria?

It would appear so from the telephone book which lists both the Princes Marguerite and the Princess Victoria as being operated by the B.C. Steamship Co. Ltd.

However, a little sleuthing reveals the government-owned company was just..covering itself in case the government went along with a suggestion to switch the Marguerite to a Victoria-Vancouver run and bring in the Queen of Surrey to operate from Victoria to Seattle.

The idea was that if the Surrey, purchased by the former NDP government for $18 million, was brought back into service, the name would be changed to Princess Victoria.

But all that planning was for naught as Transport Minister Jack Davis said late last year the Marguerite would be left on the Victoria-Seattle run.

The last word from Davis on the Queen of Surrey was that B.C. is attempting to lease it to the federal government for use on the east coast.

Never underestimate the power of the press, says H. A. Pohle of 1615 Mileva Lane.

For 10 years the Saanich resident and his family have been tormented by daily visits of seagulls, encouraged by regular feedings by a neighbor.

After his complaints to council's environment committee were reported in the press the daily bombardments have stopped.

"The feeding stopped as soon as our plight appeared in the press," Pohle reports. "The publicity really paid off. I want to thank you people."

Culduthel Road? Who knows where it is?

Saanich council was asked Monday by the B.C. Housing Management Commission, Fisher-Strong Associates Ltd. and Homefinders, Wall and Redekop to have their addresses at 577 Culduthel dumped in favor of a Douglas Street one.

A. E. Stein, Vancouver Island manager for the commission, said "Culduthel Road is unknown to one and all."

Council conceded. The building will now be known as 3440 Douglas Street.

Rear-Admiral Chester A. Richmond, of Seattle, commander of the 13th Coast Guard District, presented silver lifesaving medals to David C. Christney, coxswain of the Bamfield lifeboat, and crew members Robert M. Amos, Martin Charles and Clifford D. Charles.

The awards were in recognition of the men's action on the night of Feb. 29 when they saved the lives of three crew members of a U.S. Coast Guard helicopter and a Canadian fisherman.

The rescue took place after the 54-foot seiner Bruce I foundered and sank off Cape Beale.

The helicopter had plucked one of the survivors, Reid Dobell, from a reef when it developed engine trouble and had to be ditched.

Also rescued were pilot Lieut. Brian Mills, co-pilot Ensign Stephen Duffy and crew member D. Stesbak.

The lifeboat had previously picked up the Bruce I's skipper, Stan Beale, and crew member Randy West, who had taken to a rubber raft.

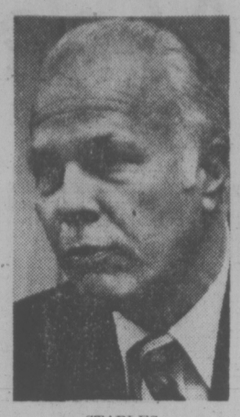
The medals given to Christney and his fellow crewmen are the second highest decoration "given to those who endanger their lives while in an effort to save others at sea."

Citations commended them for carrying out the rescue "in a snow fall and high winds among rocks and shoals".

Thomson received his award for his "extensive knowledge" that enabled him to guide the lifeboat safely through the rocks and shoals with the aid of a flashlight.

The admiral, stressing the importance of the awards, said that since the silver lifesaving medal was first struck in 1874 only 1,750 have been awarded.

Bully Probe Ordered



STABLES

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

Greater Victoria school trustees Monday instructed superintendent Allan Stables to thoroughly investigate school bullying and report back next month.

Trustees heard several delegations and some heckling from a large crowd that jammed the board room to talk about bullying in city schools.

Trustee comments on the recent incidents of bullying ranged from "isolated" to "just the tip of the iceberg."

But the decision to have the superintendent look into the problem was unanimous.

John Fraser, of 764 Transit, repeated to the board the story of his Grade 6 son being kicked unconscious while working as a crossing guard at Monterey elementary school.

And Mrs. Elva Clarke said her daughter did not want to return to Monterey after watching two boys hold her older brother while another boy began punching him while demanding the key to his bike.

When the daughter tried to interfere, the boys grabbed her and took her bicycle.

She said the principal assured her the three boys responsible would come to her home and apologize, but they never came.

The board also received a written report from Mrs. Evelyn Simpson, whose 14-year-old son was hospitalized after being kicked in the groin while he was walking home from S. J. Willis junior secondary.

Her report was not made public.

Trustee Peter Bunn said he found the reports 'upsetting and depressing. He said he is a parent who has put children through Monterey over the past 20 years.

"This is the first occasion I've heard of such a case and I've lived in the area since 1949. I hope it is an isolated situation and not general."

Trustee Lavinia Greenwood said she believes that more incidents have gone unreported because students fear reprisals from their peers.

Other parents who did not get a chance to speak were assured their written reports would be welcomed by Stables.

All the reports, however weren't negative. One woman suggested the first responsibility lies with the parents.

Another parent said that following an incident involving her family at Monterey, 11 of the 12 boys in the gang came to her home to apologize. She said they were very changed boys and praised the principal for the job he did in handling that instance.

Trustees Mark Fisher and Daphne Temple suggested much of the problem is society itself.

"If people think the major portion of the responsibility is with the school board, they are naive," Fisher said.

NURSES REJECT OFFER

Public service nurses in B.C. have voted overwhelmingly to reject a contract offer and to take strike action in a contract dispute with the B.C. Goverment Employee Relations Bureau.

The nurses' negotiating committee will meet later this week to decide future action.

On a partial return of 1,900 votes, 89 per cent favored strike action and 91 per cent rejected the bureau's final offer, nurses' spokesman Jerry Miller said in a news release.

Government negotiators proposed a two-year contract with increases averaging 10 per cent. The last contract expired Oct. 31, 1975.

Car Crash Kills Saanich Woman

RCMP have identified a 35-year-old Saanich woman killed Monday in a two-car collision six miles south of Duncan as Mrs. Lillian Shields, of 1790 Forest.

A police spokesman said Mrs. Shields and her daughter Sandra, 13, were driving south on the Trans-Canada Highway when their car collided with a northbound vehicle near the Cobble Hill turnoff.

Mrs. Shields was pronounced dead on arrival at Cowichan District Hospital. Sandra was transferred to Victoria General Hospital where she is in fair condition in the intensive care unit.

The driver and lone occupant of the second car, Walter Large, 42, of 5007 Echo Drive, was taken to Cowichan Hospital and later released.

The fatality was the first in the Duncan area this year. Police said an inquest will be held.

Less Density Asked On Roy Road Housing

The B.C. Housing Corporations' bid to build 334 housing units on 75.8 acres in Saanich's Roy Road area was rejected Monday by Saanich cil.

Aldermen, however, made it clear they would like to see the provincial government agency come up with a lower density proposal.

"I hope the department of housing will come back with something less dense," Ald. Sandy Noel said, after stressing the municipality needs the help of the government to get sewers into the area.

"We need sewers out there. I hope the next application will come back a little watered down."

In making the motion to reject the plan, Ald. David Paterson said he favored some development in the area bounded by Wilkinson, Roy, Carey and Interurban, but "I think we will be giving up too much to gain too little. The digging of Colquitz Creek and loss of flood plains is giving up too much."

Ald. Robert Cameron noted that only one citizen had spoken in favor of the project at the stormy public hearing.

Ald Ian Cass said he had "some misgivings" but would vote for rejection.

"The public hearing was influenced to a great extent by emotion and political opportunism," he observed. "I'm concerned I'm going to be party to rejecting it when we need funding for that area . . . we also have a very bad health problem there."

Municipal engineer Cliff Warren said it would cost $250,000 to bring services into the area and an additional $180,000 to service the proposed Royal Oak industrial park.

Liquor Approved

Saanich council Monday approved two more licensed liquor premises at Royal Oak.

The council agreed Class A licenses, which allow liquor to be served for any 14 hour period between 9 a.m. and 2 a.m., be allowed for the Playland Enterprises curling club at 4240 Glanford, and the Vancouver Island Netherlands Association's Holland House.

Complaining the price of temporary permits has been hiked to $10, costing the association $1,600 a year, a spokesman said, "If it keeps up we'll go down the tube."

Workers To Be Rehired

Saanich workmen laid off because of lack of work will be back on the job at the end of the week.

In an emergency move Monday, council approved capital waterworks projects so the employees can be reinstated.

Municipal engineer Cliff Warren had presented a list of projects totalling $180,000 earlier to a meeting of the public works committee but aldermen only approved $34,000, saying major expenditures should be dealt with at budget sessions.

This led to employees being laid off because of lack of work.

Ald. John Mika asked Warren if all laid-off employees will be brought back.

"Recall will be almost instantaneous. We will start recall at the end of this week," Warren replied, saying nine to 10 employees are involved.

Ald. Joe Bourque complained the committee had not been told employees would have to be laid off.

"Let's keep the people and spend the money," he said. "We're now being given a new set of circumstances. I find this damn objectionable."

Another Fight Faces Hartwig

Victoria developer Hans Hartwig, thwarted by city council last year in his plans to build a senior citizen's apartment on Wharf Street, is now preparing plans for a large waterfront hotel on the site.

And for the second time he is certain to face stiff opposition from Ald. Ron McKenzie.

An outspoken critic of the developer's past performance in the city, McKenzie said today he will urge council not to approve Hartwig's project or any other waterfront development until an over-all plan for the whole Inner Harbor has been established after full public exposure.

Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf has already indicated he is working on such a plan, possibly under the aegis of the Capital Improvement District Commission, he noted.

First word of Hartwig's hotel proposal came Monday from Ald. Bob Wright, who said he expects the developer will soon submit his firm plans to the city planning department.

Apart from McKenzie's opposition, Hartwig has to overcome two major stumbling blocks if his second attempt at developing his Wharf Street holding is to succeed.

Some of the buildings on the property are designated as heritage structures, and the entire Wharf waterfront is still covered by the provincial government's land freeze.

But McKenzie said council also has to weigh other factors, including its experiences with the developer in the construction of nearby Hartwig Court.

He said Hartwig had "disregarded the heritage value" of those buildings by making substantial structural alterations to the original, and there was "shoddy workmanship" in the actual construction.

In the past Hartwig has undertaken work without the necessary permits, he said, and his record did not inspire confidence.

Hammer Nailed Again

Regional planner Peter Hammer argued for an hour Monday but still saw the local planning and zoning committee slash his proposed operating budget by another $60,000.

The budget, which started at $455,840, was reduced in two review sessions to $329,255 and will now go to the full board for approval.

Hammer had proposed 800 man-hours be devoted to preparing a subdivision bylaw for View Royal and directors labelled this "preposterous."

They also refused funds the planner wanted to hire four more staff. Hammer said present staff numbers leave his department able only to react to situations rather than in a position to instruct developers.

Last week a committee review of Hammer's regional planning budget slashed more than $100,000 from its $421,000 total. Budget review on that part of his department's operations continues Wednesday.

Outer Area Tax Rise 'Fractional'

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

A regional committee studying municipal government for the Colwood-Langford area calculates it would cost only fractionally more — .04 mills — than taxpayers now pay there.

In an interim report to Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis next month it will ask how he feels about changing the boundaries around Colwood and Langford.

The committee has three options in mind — a new municipality to include the present Colwood and Langford, one to include somewhat less than those electoral areas and one to include more parts of both View Royal and Metchosin.

At least some ratepayers in View Royal favor separate village status for that electoral area but this is not expected to get favorable consideration from Curtis.

Metchosin is designated on the official regional plan to remain largely if not totally rural.

Meanwhile Colwood and Langford, with a population close to 30,000 are earmarked to absorb most of the growth in the Capital district over the next couple of decades.

The provincial government announced last March that it would pay for a municipal incorporation study, to be undertaken for both it and the Capital Region Board.

DRUMMOND
. . . report soon

Drummond said today he expects the committee will have an interim report ready for both regional board and Curtis next month.

It has explored financial aspects of what incorporation would bring and determined the cost would be practically the same, he said. But cost really depends on what municipal services people demand in future.

From a cost standpoint, establishing a municipal government in the so-called western seetor is "very practical," Drummond said.

If Colwood and Langford join to form a new municipality, he noted it would be bigger than either Oak Bay or Esquimalt.

When Curtis agreed last March to finance the latest look at the municipal government question, he said municipal status was not the only alternative.

He said he favors it for the urban areas to the west of Victoria in the long run but it might be accomplished with an interim stage.

Drummond said he personally favors going directly to a new municipality but the committee will be asking for responses next month from both board and the municipal affairs minister.

He said he would like to see the incorporation question go to ratepayers in a referendum in June but it might have to wait until about September.

A Celebration of Childhood Magic

A movie review by NORA HUTCHISON

Francois Truffaut's Small Change has all the charm of a bright penny found unexpectedly. It's a shiny, fresh comedy about kids, strongly-colored by their vivid pink faces and the sharp, primary shades of their clothes; that, more than anything else, celebrates some of the essential pleasures of childhood.

Truffaut has always had a special affinity for the world of children — "Even as a child, I loved children. I have very strong ideas about the world they inhabit. Morally, the child is like a wolf — outside society. In the early life of a child, there is no notion of accident . . ." Each of his films about childhood — Les Mistons (The Brats, 1958), Les Quatre Cent Coups (The 400 Blows, 1959), L'Enfant Sauve (The Wild Child, 1969), and Small Change, replays these themes. This newest film, primarily a series of sketches about the toughness and resourcefulness of children, is linked together with stories of two boys. Both the stories are slight — one works, the other doesn't.

Patrick, a shy, pudgy boy of about 12, lives with his crippled father, and, in the confusion of adolescence, needing a mother and wanting a girl friend, develops a crush on the mother of his best friend. Patrick's story is plausible enough. The boy who plays the role has an open, expressive face that records every thought and emotion, and his sequences are full of gawky charm.

Truffaut's other story about a boy abused by his witchlike mother and grandmother, is awkward and out of sync with the rest of the movie's good-humor. Truffaut uses Julien, the lonely, mistreated kid whose physical and psychic wounds are largely ignored by the well-meaning townspeople, as an example to expand his theme about the resiliency of kids, but the almost melodramatic nature of the boy's story is a heavy, distracting element.

Truffaut asks us to believe that there is a law of compensation, and that kids like Julien who have had tough childhoods will spring back all the stronger for it. It's a fine sentiment — but hasn't it proven to be mostly wishful thinking?

Apart from Julien, the kids in Truffaut's movie appear to lead charmed lives — and it's their magical existence that provides the real comedy. A little girl defies her parents and stays home from a restaurant, then stands at her window and with her father's police bullhorn cries out that she's hungry. The neighbors in the apartment hurry to her aid, and lower a mammoth basket of food to her window, complete with a roast chicken. In another sequence, a tiny boy perches on the window ledge of his mother's seventh-storey apartment, then falls out, tumbling through the air like a rag doll. The grownups, horridied and expecting the worst, rust to the spot where he has fallen. The little boy bounces up, grinning with mischevious glee, and toddles off.

Truffaut believes that children exist in a "state of grace," and in this movie he records their rough and tumble existence with a sly hint at its slapstick essence. His sunlit vision of childhood is lovely, but it's a grownup's fantasy of childhood which conveniently ignores the real and imaginary fears that kids harbor. Truffaut shows us boys who play but who never appear to fight, who joke but who are never cruel, who age dishonest but who never feel guilt.

Truffaut's movie ends when Patrick, at summer camp, gains his first girl friend. He doesn't make the first move, exactly, she selects him; but he does have the grace to take the initiative when they make their first chaste embrace. It's the symbolic completion of childhood but Truffaut turns this traditionally awkward moment into something comically sweet and full of wit.

Truffaut, I think, hoped that this movie would be more than bright fantasy, that it would articulate his concern for children's rights but it works best as a wonderfully comic analysis of the resiliency of kids, and it's the kids' brash delight in themselves that really makes this movie go.

In a very different vein, Robert Aldridge's Twilight's Last Gleaming, has its worthwhile moments, too. I've always had a sneaking regard for Aldridge because, although I don't often like his films, I admire his determination to give the audience what they're asking for without any pretension to art.

Over the past 20 years, Aldridge has developed a personal style that is notable even in his genre pictures — a style that thrives on violent collisions of images and characters. His films have ranged from a western Apache that was, finally, explicit social protest, to the horrors of Hush, Hush Sweet Charlotte, and Whatever Happened To Baby Jane, and a fascination with the world of dropouts in The Dirty Dozen and The Longest Yard.

Twilight's Last Gleaming is a tough, political thriller about a renegade general (Burt Lancaster), a veteran of Vietnam, who believes the only way he can express his rage and horror about the direction in which the U.S. foreign policy is heading is to take over a Titan missile base and activate the missiles. He'll back off, he informs the president, for $10 million, safe passage to a neutral country accompanied by the president, and a presidential disclosure of a top secret document.

Aldridge's concerns in this dridge's concerns in this movie are equally with the themes of patriotism and man's moral plight. The movie is about the con-game most governments perpetrate on their people, about the fallacious character of the democratic process, aboout dangerous truths.

Aldridge's films have always had an interesting visual identity. His images suggest an unstable world full of awkward angles and harsh transitions. In this movie he makes excellent use of the split-screen technique, which lets us in on action on several fronts concurrently. The technique's impact is to make us restless, uncomfortable, on edge. In a final ironic twist on the patriotism theme, Aldridge photographs the missile base in such a way that, with its nine concrete silos housing the Titans, it looks, from every angle, like avant-garde religious arch architecture. The missile silo as temple — Aldridge's point is not lost.

What you need is a calm, rational discussion of RSP's.

You've probably seen and heard so much about Registered Retirement Savings Plans lately, your head's spinning.

If you think you need an RSP, you probably need advice. And who better to give it than one of Canada's longest established trust companies?

At Montreal Trust we have people who'd be delighted to explain the many options we can offer you. Specialists on the subject.

They'll explain that, besides the obvious tax and retirement benefits, a Montreal Trust RSP is a very sound investment. And flexible, too. You can choose from five investment sections (including the Mortgage Section—not available with most RSP's) or spread your investment over several or all of them.

You can also transfer your investment from one section to another to take advantage of market trends. You can even choose your own portfolio of securities (Self-Directed RSP).

All sections (except Guaranteed Investment Certificates) are now subject to monthly valuation (formerly every two months), which means your money starts working faster for you.

With a Montreal Trust RSP, there's no "front-end load", or entry fee. Also, and most important, your money starts working for you quickly.

Find out more about a Montreal Trust RSP by calling an RSP officer at your nearest branch, or just drop in.

We'll tell you everything you need to know.

Calmly and rationally.

Sympathy Swelling for Clemmie

LODON — Members of Parliament urged the Labor government Monday to help the widow of Winston Churchill pay the rent after it was disclosed the 91-year-old widow of Britain's Second World War leader plans to sell family heirloons to make ends meet.

"As the greatest servant the state has ever had," declared Conservative M.P. John Stokes, "it seems incredible and quite disgraceful that Sir Winston Churchill's widow, at the age of over 90, should be in financial hardship.

"The state owes that family an immeasurable debt."

Churchill's grandson and namesake, Conservative MP Winston Churchill, disclosed Sunday that Churchill's beloved "Clemmie" Churchill has fallen on hard times and has already had to sell some furniture.

He said his ailing grandmother now plans to auction off two paintings by Sir Winston in the 1920s and three other pictures to pay nursing fees and the rent on her apartment in fashionable Knightsbridge.

The disclosure touched off widespread sympathy for Lady Churchill even though all of Britain is down on its luck because of the gravest economic crisis since the 1930s.

However, the sympathy was not total. Arthur Bottomley, a former Labor Commonwealth secretary, said in the Commons that Churchill's widow was more fortunate that many elderly widows in Britain.

She has some valuable possessions and "she might as well sell them for herself at her age rather than leave them for other members of her family," he said.

Sir Winston, who died in 1964, left £266,000 then worth about ($742,140).

About 40 per cent went for inheritance taxes. After bequests, only about one-third of what was left went to Lady Clementine. The rest was given to his son and two daughters.

"I'm sure my grandfather felt he was leaving his widow in comfortable circumstances," grandson Churchill said. "But no one could foresee the rate of inflation and taxation and the decline in the purchasing power of money."

Like other widows, Lady Spencer-Churchill receives a state pension equivalent to $26 a week. But, her grandson said, "the cost of a nurse for one night takes up the whole of her weekly state retirement pension."

Yadlin Jailed 5 Years

TEL AVIV — Asher Yadlin, former Israeli Labor party leader, was sentenced to five years in jail today after conviction on bribery and tax evasion charges.

Yadlin, nominated last September to head the Bank of Israel, also was fined about $34,000 by the district court which passed sentence.

Pleading guilty to the charges last week, Yadlin said he had taken bribes and kick-backs on land deals to help cover Labor party deficits in the 1973 elections.

FORD HINTING AT '80 BID

NEW YORK — Former U.S. president Gerald Ford said today it is possible he will seek the Republican presidential nomination in 1980, but added he is keeping the field open.

"It's possible things might develop where I would have an interest and the party would want me to do so," Ford said in the first of a two-part interview on the ABC-TV program Good Morning America.

"I just don't want one person to assume the mantle of leadership at this point," he said, declining to comment on whether he was alluding to Ronald Reagan.

Ford declined to criticize President Carter, saying that while he did not agree with every step taken by the new administration, he thought Carter "has enough problems without somebody sitting in the grandstand and second-guessing him during the early period of his presidency."

He said he and his wife Betty will be in Washington March 24-26.

RRSPs Can Surprise, Too

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

Surprise number one: interest rates change.

Typically, the interest rate changes twice per year, in June and December. However, some plans have rates that changes four times per year.

Surprise number two: The plan you buy this week may have a lower interest rate next week. Some companies changing their rates four times annually are making one of the changes on March 1. This means a quoted rate of nine per cent could be eight per cent next week — or 10 or nine. All companies are required to advise the buyer of the date of rate changes at the time the RRSP is purchased.

Surprise number three: A guaranteed interest rate cuts two ways. A company offering a fixed rate of nine per cent for the next five years will deliver that promise — but nothing more. If general interest rates go to 10 per cent or 11 per cent, as well they might, the buyer will be stuck with nine per cent until the five years are up. Likely he can withdraw his funds in anger and receive far less interest than nine per cent as a penalty. In some cases he can not withdraw his funds at all, until the five years are up. A five year guarantee is also a five-year lockup — sometimes good but often bad.

The main question facing investors is whether to take an RRSP that has changing rates or one that is locked up for five years.

The answer, of course, is it all depends.

It depends on whether interest rates are going up or down during the next five years. If rates are going down, a five-year lockup is attractive. If they are going up, the lockup will prevent the investor from profiting from the increase.

The immediate outlook is for lower rates, starting as early as March. After that, the crystal ball becomes cloudy.

Since 1934 the best bet has been that interest rates will climb.

Having a plan with interest rates changing twice or four times a year has been very profitable in recent years, better than the five-year lock-in. But the future is not always the same as the past.

Except for the question of flexible rates versus the five-year lock-in, the other RRSP questions are easy to answer.

What is the best type of RRSP? One that offers a stated interest rate, like a bank deposit, and not some fancy plan linked to mortgages, stocks or bonds.

What is an attractive interest rate? One that has a net yield of nine per cent or more.

How can the buyer determine net yield? Ask the seller. He is required to give this information. The net yield is the interest amount the plan will earn after all administration fees are deducted.

Most companies no longer quote a gross yield at all.

For example, B.C. Central Credit Union has developed a plan with a gross of 10 per cent and a net yield of 9.25 per cent. A larger number of credit unions offer this plan and they tend to tell customers the rate is 9.25 per cent and never use the gross figure. They could say "the rate is 10 per cent and the net yield is 9.25 per cent" but most of them simplify this to "the net yield is 9.25 per cent."

Some credit unions have their own plan which may offer more or less than 9.25 per cent.

Besides credit unions, RRSPs are available from trust companies, banks, other financial and investment houses and insurance companies. All of them will quote the net yield and will explain whether the funds are locked up or flexible. They will also explain when the next rate change is due but will not state whether it will be up or down. In many cases they

Labor Hoarding Under Study

By VIC PARSONS

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor hoarding, businesses maintaining labor forces larger than need, could be an important factor in relatively-weak national productivity recently, says a study prepared for the Bank of Canada.

The study, written by researcher Larry Blaine for the central bank's January review, says a productivity decline in the non-farm economy during the 1974 recession was abnormally large and anticipated improvements have failed to materialize.

Blaine writes that while evidence of labor hoarding is circumstantial, businesses might have erred significantly in estimating 1974 labor needs.

The study notes that economic growth forecasts made in late 1973 predicted real rises in the gross national product of about five per cent The actual growth was only 3.2 per cent.

The situation was even worse in 1975. Economic forecasters suggested growth would be about three per cent, but the economy grew only by six-tenths of one per cent that year.

Blaine says that in the five economic recessions occurring since the early 1950s, labor productivity recovery in the sixth quarter following the tough of the slowdowns was higher than the previous peak by an average of five per cent.

But after the 1974 recession, over-all productivity in the non-farm economy was still about 1.5 per cent below the previous peak.

Declines in output by workers during the 1974 recession were also deeper than average and combined with unusual growth in the number of persons working, the result was "an exceptionally large decline in productivity during the four quarters of the recession."

The article says a number of factors which might have lowered productivity were investigated, including the impact of higher energy prices and the use of capital investment for pollution abatement rather than being put into production.

Labor hoarding, however, is more closely related to cyclical changes than to long-term developments, it says.

"After the experience in 1973 and early 1974 when capacity utilization reached very high levels and strains developed in labor markets, it is perhaps not surprising that during the recession that followed employers were rather slow to adjust employment to the drop in production."

Some labor hoarding, such as that of skilled and non-production workers who might be costly to retrain in periods of peak demand, is intentional, the article says. Some is unintended, such as that which results when demand falls short of business expectations.

—There was a much greater drop in the length of the average work-week in manufacturing than in past recessions, suggesting hours rather than employment were being adjusted;

—Rates of unemployment among males age 25 and over have increased at a considerably lesser rate than for women and the young. "This could be interpreted as a reluctance to release experienced workers in what was forecast to be a mild recession."

Business may have erred in estimating its labor requirements through the period. The result was that an unintended accumulation could have continued into the recovery period as the rate of real economnic growth was still substantially below forecasts.

In the absence of clear evidence of significant shifts in long-term factors, "it seems reasonable to presume that cyclical factors, and in particular a rather large amount of labor hoarding, have been an important element in the weak performance of productivity," Mr. Blaine concludes.

TAX TIPS '77

The following income tax tips are provided by Revenue Canada. Readers wishing additional information may contact the Victoria office of Revenue Canada by going to 1415 Vancouver Street or by phoning 386-2176.

Q. My wife works part time in my small grocery store. Can I claim wages for her on my return?

A. If your business is a sole proprietorship, you cannot claim wages paid to your wife as an expense.

Q. What deductions may be transferred between spouses?

A. There are five deductions that may be transferred between spouses:

—Age exemption.
—Interest and dividend income deduction.
—Pension income deduction.
—Disability deduction.
—Education deduction.

If your spouse is eligible for any of the above deductions and had "nil" taxable income, the unused portion of the deductions can be transferred to your return.

To determine the transferable amount, Schedule 9 should be completed and attached to your income tax return.

Q. My wife has bond and bank interest of $600 which qualifies for the investment income deduction. She will not be taxable as that was her only income. Can I take her deduction into account and thereby claim her for full personal exemption?

A. No. The investment income deduction does not come into account in determining your exemption claim for her. You must reduce the married exemption by the excess of her income over $360. However, because she does not need to claim the investment income deduction to make her non-taxable, you may transfer the entire deduction to your return.

Q. Can I claim all the premiums which I pay for medical insurance?

A. You may only claim as a medical expense, the premiums which you pay to a non-government or hospital insurance plan.

Q. What kind of expenses are deductible for child care?

A. Deductible expenses include costs of baby-sitting and day nursery care, and up to $30 per child per week for lodging paid at a boarding school or camp. Payments for such items as food, clothing, transportation, education or medical care are not considered to be child care expenses.

Beginning this year Canadians serving abroad in the armed forces are treated as residents of Canada and are eligible to claim child care expenses.

Carter Budget Set at $459.4B

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Jimmy Carter today proposed a $19.4 billion budget increase in the 1978 Ford budget, with less emphasis on denfence and more on energy, housing and health — including price controls on hospitals.

Carter sent a message to Congress today, requesting a $459.4 billion budget for the fiscal year, which begins Oct. 1. It would replace the $440 billion package submitted by his predecessor a month ago.

In one of his most controversial decisions, Carter proposed halting 19 water resource projects including one in his home state of Georgia. Carter said the projects were too expensive and environmentally unsound.

Although Carter discussed a limit of about nine per cent a year for increased hospital fees, HEW Secretary Joseph Califano said the size of the ceiling is "negotiable."

The U.S. health bill more than tripled in the past decade and now averages $638 a year for every man, woman and child.

"Much of the increase has resulted from health cost inflation," Carter said. "Without cost restraints, federal spending for medicare and medicaid alone would climb 75 per cent between 1978 and 1982 from $38 billion to $66 billion."

He said controls would cut hospital bills by $2.4 billion in 1978, whether paid by federal, state or private insurance or by individuals who have in insurance.

Calling for slowdowns in development of the controversial B1 Bomber and strategic missiles, Carter labelled his budget proposals "important first steps toward a federal government that is more effective and responsive to our people's needs."

In other important changes, Carter proposed:

—Holding Medicare premiums at their current level of $7.20 instead of allowing them to climb to $7.70 in July and $8.10 next year as required by law.

—Adding 600 employees at the Environmental Protection Agency for supervision of poisonous substances and solid wastes.

—Continuing for another year provisions for unemployment benefits up to 26 weeks.

—A $458 million increase in aid to the Middle East with an undetermined amount going to Israel, and phasing out of the Cuban refugee program.

"The 1978 budget is essentially still President Ford's budget," said Carter, who stumped on a promise to balance federal spending and income by 1981. He previously announced there was not enough time to make major changes in the GOP proposal.

Body Found

BUFFALO (AP — The city's death toll from a blizzard that began Jan. 28 has risen to 12, report's the Erie County medical examiner's office. Officials said the body of James Ivy, 51, of Buffalo, was found in a kneeling position by two boys playing in the snow near his home.

Want a divorce from MORNING HACKING COUGHS?

The cause is often a physical phenomenon known as "Post-Nasal Drip".

Triggered by a cold or irritation, such as smoking, nasal secretions trickle down your throat throughout the night, causing congestion and those hacking coughs.

This incessant trickle can be checked with Dristan Capsules.

The special release formula of Dristan Capsules keeps them working through the night to provide continuous medication. And a consistent flow of medication gives uninterrupted relief from Post-Nasal Drip.

With Dristan Capsules, you breathe easier, so you sleep better. You wake up with a clearer throat and chest. Your cough is soothed.

WAGE-HIKE NOTICE REJECTED

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (WP) — AFL-CIO president George Meany Monday flatly rejected President Jimmy Carter's request that business and labor give advance notification to the government of proposed wage and price increases.

While asserting that the Carter administration was generally off to a good start with organized labor, Meany told reporters at the start of the AFL-CIO's mid-winter executive council meeting here that labor will not co-operate in any program of pre-notification of wage increases.

"We are absolutely opposed, absolutely, completely opposed to it even if Billy Carter wanted it."

U.S. Launches $800M Program To Study Earthquake Prediction

WASHINGTON (WP) — The U.S. government plans to embark this year on a major research effort aimed at developing, within the next decade, a reliable method for predicting all major earthquakes.

Two federal agencies, the National Science Foundation and the U.S. Geological Survey, expect to spend more than $800 million over the next 10 years on earthquake studies, including research on geological processes and observations of "precursory phenomena," such as color changes in well water and unusual animal behaviour, that may forecast quakes.

The first phase of the new initiative is reflected in the budget the Ford administration sent to Congress. It calls for $54 million in federal earthquake research spending in fiscal 1978, more than double current expenditures.

Budget officials say the new interest in earthquakes stems partly from experience in 1976, when quakes caused more than 700,000 deaths around the world — the highest total in more than four centuries.

The major reason for the increased federal effort is a new confidence on the part of earthquake experts — geologists and seismologists — that accurate prediction methods are within fairly close reach.

An advisory panel concluded last fall in a report to former presidential science adviser H. Guyford Stever that "earthquake prediction ... has emerged from the realm of soothsaying to become a serious scientific endeavor with a significant likelihood of a short-term technological breakthrough.

"The new federal funding is going to permit us to gather tha data necessary for pretty reliable prediction," Stever said. "Within a decade, if the research goes well, we should be able to predict the time, location, and magnitude of earthquakes in time to permit precautionary measures."

Canucks Can't Stand Success

Vancouver Canucks just can't stand prosperity.

Handy 5-1 winners over Atlanta Flames Saturday, the Canucks reverted to type Monday at Pacific Coliseum, and dropped a 4-0 decision to St. Louis Blues, leaders of the Smythe Division of the National Hockey League.

Result left the Canucks mired in last place in the Smythe Division, three points behind Minnesota and eight behind Colorado Rockies. The Blues lead second-place Chicago Black Hawks by eight points and are 20 points ahead of the Canucks.

Only twice this season have the Canucks won more than one game in a row and only three times have they lasted through three games without suffering defeat.

The Blues dominated the game from the start, outshooting the Canucks 13-5 in the first period, out-scoring them 2-0, and hitting the goal posts four times.

At Montreal, Atlanta Flames goalkeeper Dan Bouchard was more than a little upset at what he thought was a tainted goal that helped Montreal Canadiens to a 3-2 victory over the Flames.

Bouchard, who stopped 20 shots in the losing effort, claimed he actually stopped 21 drives, but referee Ron Wicks and goal judge Fred Gagnon disagreed and allowed a goal by Pete Mahovlich that tied the score 1-1 at 12:57 of the first period after Willi Plett posted the Flames to a short-lived lead.

Bouchard said the puck deflected off Atlanta defenceman Fat Quinn's skate, but stayed right on the line.

"The goal judge is full of it," he said. "He couldn't even see it because of a scramble behind the net, and the referee was at centre ice."

For what it was worth, a television tape of the Mahovlich goal appeared to back up Bouchard's claim that the puck did not completely cross the line.

Steve Shutt had the other two Montreal goals, giving him a league-leading total of 47. His first of the night gave the Canadiens a 2-1 lead at 16:00 of the first period and established a team record for goals by a left winger. Shutt had set the mark of 45 last season, breaking a record of 43 by former Canadien Frank Mahovlich.

Larry Romanchych had the second Atlanta goal and the Flames tested netminder Michel Larocque several times trying for the equalizer, including a 15-foot blast by Romanchych with three seconds left to play after the Flames pulled Bouchard for a sixth attacker.

The Canadiens, undefeated in 15 games, have a 44-7-10 record for 98 points, best in the Norris Division and the league, while the Flames are 25-24-11 for 61 points, third in the Patrick Division.

IT WAS FOUR TO ONE for Vancouver Canucks on this play during National Hockey League game Monday night, but it was 4-0 for St. Louis Blues on scoresheet when contest ended. Rick Bourbonnais is lone Blue in this goalmouth scramble as Canuck gang of goalie Cesare Maniago, Larry Carriere (5), Harold Snepsts (27) and Don Lever (9) work to keep puck out of net. Maniago stopped 26 of 30 St. Louis shots.

In Rugby Parlance, Violence Means 'Hard'

The weekend in review:

Speaking of violence in sport, there were just as many punches thrown in the McKechnie Cup English rugby battle at Athletic Park Saturday afternoon as there are in your average junior hockey league game at Memorial Arena. Maybe more, because many obviously went undetected judging by what was visible. So, there's a difference? Well, there is, because when the referee in charge tooted his whistle each battle ended. That doesn't happen in hockey. And if some players weren't admonished by dismissal from the game, then strictly speaking it probably wasn't that violent. Or, as they say in rugby, "it was a hard game."

It certainly was, and for a time it didn't appear as if Victoria deserved to win. The Vancouver squad had taken charge in the second half and on that performance alone the final result flattered the Tide. However, in the first half, the Tide should have put the issue beyond doubt. As it was, the kicking of Cliff Yorath saved the day with his three penalty goals, but on a better day he would have had more. Certainly the opportunities weren't lacking. But that's rugby, not hockey and it's a good thing there won't be a rematch next week. Too many scores were obviously left unresolved.

The University of Victoria Vikings came through with a strong display against University of British Columbia to qualify for a playoff with Alberta in the CWUAA men's basketball final this weekend; and a repeat performance could put them close enough for an upset triumph in the best-of-three series. At least the Vikings have the impetus going for them and if they can control the boards as well as they did here on the weekend, they might pull a shocker. Meanwhile, the Vikettes, ho-hum, ran up their 40th victory in a row over two seasons and now await their nationals. After 40 straight in league play, what's left to say except they're No. 1, again, and should be able to prove it nationally this time.

And what's a basketball playoff game with Vancouver without a hassle? The Scorpions lost two points on the scoresheet Sunday against Burnaby Bullets and have protested that defeat. And anybody reading the scoresheet can't help but note where the discrepancy occurred. The Scorpions got jobbed out of two points in the running score while their individual totals added up to 89, the same as the tally for the Bullets. Now it will be interesting to see the result of the protest. Fact is, the score was questioned during the game, and why the officials couldn't see it then is another of those mysteries of life.

Meanwhile, the Bullets are one up and a force to be reckoned with whether or not they lose the protest. Home Lumber, too, had its share of trouble with pesky Critters from Vancouver. But the lumber girls won, and that's what counts; but they may need more when they meet the Critters on the mainland this weekend. Both these series could go right down to the final seconds of the final games.

In curling, veteran Gord Carmichael finally got his due. Carmichael won the Island mixed title by beating Racquet Club's Don Matheson with almost the same shot that Matheson had used to defeat Playland's Harvey Thomson in the south Island final a week earlier. He came around a guard rock to tap Matheson back when it seemed that Matheson had buried his stone sufficiently deep to cause Carmichael a problem and perhaps force an extra end. So everything evens out. Matheson is out and Carmichael is in. And how he got his third, Lee Corke, is another story. Corke originally was set to curl with Murray Walker, but Walker, who was in the Consols at Langley, couldn't make the VCC playoff date as it conflicted with the PCCA final. So Carmichael recruited Corke just two days before the VCC playdown. He had decided on Doug Benedict and Fran Schauerte some time earlier.

Needless to say he's pleased with the result of his good fortune; and what a thrill it must be for these three teenagers.

Otherwise and elsewhere: Many a golf fan must have inwardly experienced the yips when young Tom Purtzer, until Sunday an obscure professional nonwinner, bent over that four-foot putt on the final hole of the Los Angeles Open and, after a couple of false starts, finally tapped it into the hole for victory. And some people say that golfers aren't athletes. The pressure, in front of that huge crowd and on TV in front of millions, must have been tremendous. Think about it and you'll get that same feeling. Yuck!

McCarthy Equals Record for Assists

Two Western Canada Hockey League players are closing in on scoring records and one of them is only one point away from a new standard.

Kevin McCarthy of Winnipeg Monarchs got an assist on the final goal of the game as Monarchs defeated Regina Pats 8-6 in the only league game Monday and that assist equalled a league record.

It was McCarthy's 250th assist and tied the mark set by Dale McMullin during his five years with Brandon Wheat Kings.

Meanwhile, centre Bill Derlago of the Wheat Kings must score 12 goals in the Wheat Kings' remaining 12 games if he is to break a 10-year-old scoring mark.

Derlago now has a league-leading 79 goals and is seeking to break the record of 91 set in 1966-67 by another Brandon centre, Ron Chipperfield.

Derlago is 18 years of age and if he misses this year he can try again next season.

Derlago has 144 points and is followed by his linemates, Brian Propp and Ray Allison who each have 113 points. Another Wheat King, Dan Bonar is next with 102 points and 62 goals, second only to Derlago.

Victoria Cougars are home to Saskatoon Blades in one of tonight's two games. Flin Flon is at Calgary in the other.

The Cougars need a victory if they are to challenge Portland Winter Hawks for second place as they trail the Winter Hawks by two points and are tied for third place with Kamloops Chiefs. Cougars have one game in hand over the Winter Hawks while Kamloops has two games in hand over Victoria and three over Portland.

Alberta Crew Still Unbeaten

WINNIPEG (CP) — Steady shotmaking by the foursome from Alberta skipped by Don Killips of Edmonton has paid off with the only unbeaten record after four rounds of the Canadian senior men's curling championship.

The team has been in two extra-end games, winning the other two handily, and Killips is pleased with its performance with an exception.

"The team has been curling well . . . until this last game," he said after scoring two in an extra end to beat Lawrence Carter of Amherst, N.S., in the fourth round.

"Our toughest game so far was against Saskatchewan but who knows what can happen when we meet the rest."

Killips needed a stolen point in an extra end to defeat Morrie Thompson of Saskatoon in the second round.

Thompson and Carter had 2-2 records with the Territories team, skipped by Robert Fleming of Whitehorse, was next with a 1-3 ledger.

Still looking for their first win were Northern Ontario's John Finnigan of North Bay, Charles Doyle of St. John's and Arthur Ballem of Charlottetown.

Cowichan Girls In B.C. Tourney

LADYSMITH — Lake Cowichan advanced to the B.C. "A" class high school girls' basketball tournament March 3-6 in Crenton by capturing the Island title at the weekend.

Lake Cowichan topped Ladysmith 84-50 in the final of the tourney for smaller high schools after opening with a 102-46 romp over Gulf Islands.

ROCKS ABANDON ATTEMPT TO BLOCK DRAFT CHANGE

Victoria Shamrocks have backed off from a threat to boycott a universal draft of graduating juniors from the Western Canada Major Junior "A" Lacrosse League and will take part in the Western Lacrosse Association draft on March 7.

Shamrock officials decided on this course of action when they were outvoted, 4-1, at a special league meeting in Vancouver Sunday on their request to have the league revert to the previous policy of allowing the Shamrocks to have first choice of Victoria graduates.

The rule was changed this year and Shamrock officials felt the move was discriminatory in that Victoria McDonalds had won the Minto Cup last fall and the majority of top-flight graduates would be coming from that club.

However, the Shamrocks did obtain some concessions. No player will have to sit out the season if he isn't able to come to terms with a team that drafts him, and there will be no cash deals to obtain a player's right from another club.

Western Lacrosse Association commissioner Roy Burton will announce full details of the procedure to settle any differences between drafted players and teams following the draft.

In the past, the Rocks had prior rights to Victoria grads, the three Vancouver clubs held a draft of graduating Mainland players and Nanaimo had rights to any graduating junior, regardless of residence. Nanaimo opposed the Victoria plan and also an alternative Victoria plan whereby Island clubs would have prior rights to Island players.

Nanaimo, as last-place finisher last season, will have first pick at the universal draft, with the Shamrocks as the first-place league finisher having last choice.

Jayvees Trip Giants

University of Victoria Jayvees advanced to the final of the three-team, double-loss-elimination Vancouver Island junior men's basketball championship by ousting Little Giant Bakeries 75-71 Monday night at Central Junior High School.

Jayvees now meet unbeaten Trilec Installations for the title at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Mount View gymnasium. If Jayvees win, another game will be played at 8:45 p.m. Thursday at the same site.

Steve Leung and Mike Miller set the scoring pace for Jayvees with 14 points each and Forrest Partington led Bakers with 23 points.

Meanwhile, two other teams advanced to Island finals in Victoria and District Amateur Basketball Association playoffs at Mount View.

Dibalin Construction nudged Victoria Athletic Association Turtles 45-41 in the deciding game of a best-of-three juvenile girls' series to gain a berth in the Island tournament Saturday and Sunday in Lake Cowichan.

Susan Hazel led Dibalin with 14 points and Sarah Braithwaite added 13. Turtles won the opening game 53-35, but Dibalin bounced back to force the third game by winning the second encounter 36-31 in overtime.

Lansdowne topped Belmont 58-41 to sweep the best-of-three bantam boys' championship series. Russ Mosher led Lansdowne with 19 points and Russ Thornton added 13.

The winning club, which took the opening game 52-41, now meets Duncan in a best-of-three battle for the Island title that must be completed by March 5.

TRACK RISKY FOR DOGS

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Musher Carl Huntingdom of Koyukuk, Alaska, was awarded the 1977 world sled dog racing championship Sunday after warm weather forced cancellation of the last leg of the three-day event.

Huntingdon, who had won the first two heats of the 7-mile race, held a commanding lead.

Alaska has experienced a record-warm winter. Race organizers had trucked in snow to cover the course that winds through the city. However, officials said temperatures around four degrees made the track dangerous for dogs.

Finley Expects Sale to Stand

CHICAGO (AP) — Charles O. Finley of Oakland's A's said Monday other owners would not support Bowie Kuhn if the baseball commissioner rejects Finley's sale of Paul Lindblad to Texas Rangers for $400,000.

"He hasn't got the courage or guts to cancel this deal and he knows that the owners in baseball will not vote to indemnify him this time," Finley said.

Owners voted to indemnify Kuhn after Finley sued the commissioner for $3.5 million last year. That suit followed Kuhn's decision to void the June 15 sales of three Oakland stars for $3.5 million.

Finley said he would sue Kuhn if the commissioner void the Saturday night sale of Lindblad, a 12-year veteran relief pitcher.

Kuhn plans a hearing on the sale. A spokesman for Kuhn said it will not be approved or disapproved until after the meeting. No date has been set, but Finley said he won't go unless Kuhn sends him or his lawyer a letter stating the reasons for the hearing.

Hoop Hex Snaps

Dave Speed dunked 22 points to lead James Bay to a 70-53 win over Victoria Athletics in a Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball League game at Victoria High School.

It marked the first time in five years that James Bay has beaten Athletics.

British Woman Sets Indoor Mark

DORTMUND, West Germany (AFP) — Britain's Mary Stewart set a world indoor record in the women's 1,500 metres when she clocked four minutes, 8.1 seconds at an international track meet.

Stewart's run was 1.8 seconds faster than the former world indoor mark held by Francie Larrieu-Lutz of the U.S.

Cauthen Causes Problem

NEW YORK (AP) — Teenage jockey Steve Cauthen, who rode three more winners at Aqueduct on Monday, was the object of a controversy which resulted in a complaint to track stewards.

Cauthen, the 16-year-old apprentice jockey who has 118 winners this year, has been named to ride as many as three horses in a given race. This process deprives other riders of chances at mounts and confuses bettors who get early entry lists, such as those posted at off-track betting parlors.

It also lets Cauthen wait until hours before post time before deciding which horse he wants to ride. Nevertheless, the other jockeys apparently are not personally angry with Cauthen or his agent, Lenny Goodman.

"If it was me, I'd want my agent to do the same thing," one jockey said. "But that doesn't make it right."

Pros Have Reservations About Mini-Tour Concept

Back to Work (ugh), if we must . . .

If they had their way, Vancouver Island's assistant professionals would vote in favor of abolishing the Hawaiian Open. After meeting head pros Earl (Gorge Vale) Davies, Bill (Cowichan) Wakeham, Don (Uplands) Billsborough and Norm (Nanaimo) Jackson in rapid-fire succession on the fairways at Waialae, you knew who was left behind to do all the work.

Victoria's Cec Ferguson has done well playing mini-tours operated by the National Golfers of America (NGA) and the American Golf Tour (AGT) and I was interested in knowing what Professional Golfers Association (PGA) regulars thought about the new circuits.

Virtually every pro I talked to at the Hawaiian Open had one reservation or another.

"They're okay if you don't mind playing for your own money," said Tom Watson, obviously referring to the $2,500 entry fee required to play in four NGA tournaments, each offering a minimum of $60,000 in prize money. No, Watson didn't know about the AGT, which is sponsored, demands only $100 for entry into each event, but pays only $25,000 per tournament.

Bruce Lietzke, who charged from behind to claim the winner's cheque at Waialae, was one of the most benevolent, perhaps because he has played in NGA tournaments. "There's a need for mini-tours, but without the stiff entry fee," he said. "Getting sponsors would be a help."

United Airlines sponsors the Hawaiian Open, and it's no secret that weather plays an important part in the success of the tournament. In 1975, a one-day rain-out set back the final round until the Monday (instead of Sunday) and the sponsors had to come up with $70,000 to meet all the bills. Last year, with better weather, the deficit was about $50,000. This year, the weather was glorious and they expected it to be the most successful ever.

Through men like Bill Bachran, United does an excellent job of making it a colorful show. For most of the week, you can stick fairly close to your favorite. It gets crowded when the leaders come down to the last four or five holes, and that's when you should forsake sunshine for a television set.

For the newcomer who has never been to Waialae Country Club, it's easy to tell when you're getting close to the golf course. Residents around the golf club go into the car-parking business. If the tab's $2 for the day, you still have a long hike ahead of you. If the signs read $3, it's a moderate distance. At $4, you're within two or three blocks. The $5 sign tells you that you're there.

Speaking of prices, the great golf boom in Japan is a blessing for the Hawaiian Open committee. They find it easy to line up amateurs to compete in the pro-am.

More than 200 businessmen pay $650 each to play in the pro-am. The golf-loving Japanese were very much in evidence, and some consider it a downright privilege to be able to pay that much for a round of golf.

Naturally, they would like to be paired with a "name," but it doesn't seem to matter if they draw in with one of the lesser-known players.

BOWLER OF WEEK

IMPROVING with each game, Jim Soon captured men's ten-pin award in 17th week of 14th annual Times Bowler-of-the-Week competition with 647 series at Duncan Lanes. Starting with 185 game in Wednesday Men's League, Soon followed with tallies of 206 and 256 for division-leading triple that qualifies him for Bowler-of-the-Year roll-offs.

Star-Studded Cast No Help to Knicks

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite a cast of all-stars, New York Knicks are stumbling along under .500, going nowhere fast in the National Basketball Association. If the playoffs were to start today, the Knicks would be watching them on television.

The best they could do in a weekend series with the lowly New York Nets was a split that left them three games behind second-place Boston in the race for the final Eastern Conference playoff berth.

The Knicks are a team with problems that threaten to keep them out of post-season competition for the second straight year. And if that happens, coach Red Holzman could be out of a job.

Why can't a team with Bob McAdoo, Earl Monroe and Walt Frazier do any better than a 26-31 record.

"Consistency," says Monroe. "We play two or three good games and then we go sour. I can't explain it."

Neither can Holzman, the Knicks' coach since 1967, who has one year remaining on his current contract.

"We have to get a winning streak going, and that's something we haven't been able to do because we haven't been able to win on the road," he said.

The Knicks are 19-9 at home but 7-22 on the road. Within the last two weeks they've blown a 21-point lead at Indiana and a 20-point lead at Milwaukee, losing both.

"We just collapsed," said Bill Bradley, the team's elder statesman, following a 124-123 loss at Milwaukee Friday.

Defence, the hallmark of the Knicks' championship teams in 1970 and 1973 when they had Willis Reed and Dave DeBusschere, has been almost a foreign commodity to the current squad.

McAdoo, a marvellous offensive player and shot-blocker, is not particularly sound in defensive fundamentals and can't clog the middle the way Reed did. The only man on the roster who comes close is rookie Lonnie Shelton but he has been in constant foul trouble. And the leg injury that has sidelined Spencer Haywood the last two months has added to the problem.

In Monday night's game, Adrian Dantley scored a season-high 39 points to power Buffalo Braves to a 117-106 victory over Indiana Pacers. It was the Braves' third straight win.

SILVERS FOR LOUIE

Louie finished second in both the juvenile boys' 400 and 500-metre events to Jean Pichette of Quebec.

Another club member, David Shields, set a record in the junior men's 1,500 metres but fell in the 500 and slipped in the 1,000-metre trials and missed both finals.

Meet Marks Tumble As Entry Tops Record

The biggest record-breaking performance of the annual Flying "Y" road races at Royal Roads on Sunday came in the number of participants.

Just under 500 athletes from Victoria, Duncan, Nanaimo, Richmond, North Vancouver and Washington showed up under ideal weather conditions.

Three meet records tumbled. Paul Domke of the host Flying "Y" Club ran the one-mile course in 5:43 to knock two seconds off the record set by Gordon Hall of Richmond in the tyke boys' event. David Hambleton of the "Y" cracked Derek Ellis' 1974 mark of 17:19 in the Masters (over-40) three-mile race in the time of 15:48 and Jack Rowe broke his own record of 19:06 for the three miles with a time of 18:27 in the over-50 division.

Four standards were established on the 1.5-mile course. Debbie Scott of Esquimalt Track Club ran the distance in 7:30 to win the women's open contest; Holly Ruddick of Nanaimo won the midget girls' event in 8:02; Lois Westerhove of the "Y" set a mistress (over-40) standard of 9:15 and Roy Rasmussen of Richmond, holder of the peewee mark, set a bantam boys' standard of 7:55.

Don Brown won a new event on the program, the recreational predicted time race of 1.5 miles. He underestimated his time by eight seconds, finishing in 8:50 compared to his predicted time of 8:42. All the other competitors ran faster than they expected.

Kirby and Cullin Post Double Wins

MAPLE BAY — Capital City Rowing Club members Mike Cullin and Sandy Kirby both recorded double victories Sunday in the inaugural Maple Bay rowing regatta.

Kirby won the women's elite singles with a time of eight minutes, 45 seconds over the 2,000 metres. She then teamed up with Ina Delure to capture the doubles.

Cullin took the men's singles with a time of 8:15 and joined Bruce Ford to take the doubles.

Kelly Jacklin, also of Capital City, won the women's fibreglass singles while Duncan McDonald of Brentwood took the senior "B" men's title.

A Burnaby crew, made up of four Olympic team members, edged Victoria City's crew of Delure, Linda Schaumleffel, Jacklin and Katy Burke by one second in winning the women's fours.

University of Victoria crews won both the senior "B" women's and men's fours.

Joe Roth Loses Bout With Cancer

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — University of California quarterback Joe Roth died Saturday at his apartment after a long fight against cancer.

Suffering from a rare form of cancer called malignant melanoma, Roth 21, was admitted to hospital at the Cancer Research Institute in San Francisco on Feb. 10. At his own request, he was discharged last Thursday.

Jordan Dies After Workout

Bucks in Final

Dug Berger fired two goals Monday night to lead Western Homes Buckaroos to a 6-4 win over Maple Leafs at Memorial Arena and a victory in the best-of-five South Island Big Six Hockey League playoff semi-final series.

Bucks won the series 3-2 with one game tied and now meet Victoria Athletics in a best-of-seven final scheduled to open at 8:15 Thursday night at Pearkes Arena.

Buckaroos held period leads of 2-1 and 4-3 and outshot the Leafs, 35-30.

Lansdowne Takes Swimming Title

Lansdowne captured the novice event and the over-all championship of the annual Victoria and District Junior Secondary Schools swimming meet at the Crystal Pool on the weekend while the combined Oak Bay-Central team topped the club and intermediate section with 236 points.

Lansdowne had 172 points in the novice section, four more than runner-up Cedar Hill with 168, and finished with 353½ points to top second-place Lambrick Park by 41½ points for the team championship. Lambrick had a combined total of 312.

The Dickinson and Dunn and the Archie McKinnon trophies went to Lansdowne. Oak Bay-Central took the Pendray Trophy and Lambrick Park the Royal Canadian Legion Trophy.

There were six double winners in the boys' championships. David Van Dusen of Lambrick won the novice, 14 and under, 50 metres freestyle in 32.7 seconds, and the novice, 13 and 14-year-old, 50 metres backstroke in 37.1. David Davis of Oak Bay-Central captured the intermediate, 13 and 14-year-old, 50 metres backstroke in 37.8 and the intermediate, 14 and under, 50 metres freestyle in 30.4.

Lawrence Wright of Lambrick won the club, 14 and under, 100 metres freestyle in 1:01.2 and the club, 13 and 14-year-old, 50 metres fly in 31.1. Doug Legg of Cedar Hill took the novice, 15 and 16-year-old, 50 metres backstroke in 36.8 and the 15 and 16-year-old, 50 metres freestyle in 29.00.

Graham Carlow of Oak Bay-Central captured the intermediate, 15 and 16-year-old, 50 metres breaststroke in 35.2. Neil Dressler of Mount Newton-North Saanich won the club, 15 and 16-year-old, 50 metres backstroke in 34.8 and the club, 15 and 16-year-old, 50 metres fly in 33.8.

Jane Margetts of Arbutus was first in the club, 14 and under 100 metres freestyle in 1:09.6 and also won the club, 13 and 14-year-old, 50 metres fly in 35.5.

Watt Retains British Title

GLASGOW, Scotland (AP) — Jim Watt of Glasgow retained his British lightweight boxing title Monday night by stopping Johnny Claydon of London after two minutes and 35 seconds of the 10th round.

The referee intervened to prevent further punishment to Claydon, who had beaten Watt in a non-title fight last June when Watt retired with an eyebrow injury.

Panthers Move Up

Parkland Panthers took over third place in the Greater Victoria High School Rugby League by downing Mt. Douglas Mountainmen 11-6 on Monday.

Four-Wheel 'Playday' Is Fun for Families

Two husband-wife duos, both driving modified Toyota Land Cruisers, collected top honors Sunday in the Victoria Four Wheelers "playday" for charity at the Construction Aggregate gravel pit off Metchosin Road.

Tom Oster of Nanaimo won "A" class honors in the men's obstacle race for off-road vehicles and set fast time of the day with a run of 43.2 seconds. His wife, Debbie, captured the corresponding women's event and set fast time of 47.3 seconds.

Death Stopped 'Gypsy' Dancing

Various areas of the body of a 30-year-old Victoria woman found dead near Macaulay Point in Esquimalt on Sept. 9 were bruised, B.C. Supreme Court was told Monday.

Dr. Brian Carlson and Sgt. Doug Sproxton of Esquimalt police were testifying at the first day of the trial of John Edward Aitken, 30.

Aitken is accused of first-degree murder by causing the death of Marie Alice Monique Nordelli Dhillon while committing rape.

Mrs. Dhillon, known to her friends as Gypsy, was found dead near a pathway leading from Anson Crescent to the beach close to Macaulay Point sewage pumping station and Work Point barracks.

Carlson said he was called to the scene by police and pronounced the woman dead at 12:25 p.m. Sept. 9.

He said the body was clothed in a full-length blue-grey dress, there were some bloodstains, and there were bruises about her face. He estimated she had died within the preceding 24 hours.

But in cross-examination, he agreed it was possible she had only been dead for four hours.

Sproxton said he went to the scene at 11:26 a.m. and found no pulse.

He said there was "heavy bruising" about her neck, arms and legs and scraping on one leg.

When the body was removed, a jean jacket was found underneath it. As a result of checking a drycleaning slip, he went to Dowler Place and spoke to Theresa Vickson.

He and Mrs. Vickson went to Victoria General Hospital, where she identified the body as that of Mrs. Dhillon.

Later on Sept. 9, Sproxton said, Aitken went to the Esquimalt police station, driving a 23-foot motor home. He had a half-cast on his right hand held on with a bandage.

Sproxton said he told Aitken he was seizing the motor home as evidence, which he did, placing it in the fenced compound.

The next day, Saanich police identification officers and two members of the RCMP crime laboratory in Vancouver inspected the vehicle.

Sproxton said he saw a reddish stain on the carpet on the passenger side of the motorhome, and reddish spots on the passenger door, a side door, a step and on a case of beer.

A broken fingernail was removed from under the driver's seat and certain hair was also removed, he said.

In his opening remarks to the assize jury of eight men and four women, Crown counsel J. W. Anderson, who is being assisted by Armand Petronio, said Mrs. Dhillon lived with her three children at 2549 Dowler Place.

She was married on Sept. 7 to Sirgit Singh Dhillon. Anderson described her as having a "pleasant, friendly disposition" and said she liked to dance at the Army, Navy and Air Force club on Wharf Street and she often visited the Halfway House.

The day after the marriage, said Anderson, Dhillon went to classes at Camosun College and then to a job at a bottling plant. When he finished work at 11 p.m., he couldn't locate her, at home or anywhere else.

Anderson said Mrs. Dhillon spent the morning and afternoon of Sept. 8 in her apartment with female friends and children. A "considerable amount of alcohol was consumed by these ladies," he said.

About 7 p.m. she left with a friend, Sharon Fleming, and went to the Halfway House, Anderson said.

Around 8:30 p.m. she left the Halfway House with Aitken, saying she was going dancing at the Army, Navy and Air Force Club.

Anderson said that around 9 p.m. she and Aitken arrived at her apartment on Dowler, where she changed clothes. Around 9:30 p.m. they left, with her again saying she would be dancing, and "she was not again seen alive."

About 10 p.m. he returned to the Halfway House alone, wearing a different shirt. The following day, he had a different bandage over the cast, he said.

Anderson said Mrs. Dhillon was not seen at the Army, Navy and Air Force Club Sept. 8 and she was found dead the following day at Macaulay Point.

Anderson said the prosecution would allege the cause of death was asphyxiation caused by strangulation to the throat, that there were wounds to her body indicating a "severe beating" and evidence of sexual intercourse.

He said the prosecution would allege that bloodstains found in Aitken's motor home were of the same blood type as Mrs. Dhillon, a type found in only eight or nine of every 1,000 persons.

Anderson said the prosecution would also allege that Aitken picked up his wife at the Princess Mary Restaurant in the late evening of Sept. 8, they went home, and she laundered a shirt of his which "he indicated might have some blood on it."

The trial, expected to last more than a week, is being presided over by Mr. Justice Harry McKay.

KIDS FIGHT CANCER

The Victoria branch of the Canadian Cancer Society is $250 richer because of the strong legs and spirit of the kids in COSY.

The 30 members of the organization — the City Organization Supporting Youth — raised the money through a 26-mile walkathon and plan another to be held April 17.

To date, the COSY members have raised a total of $800 for cancer research. Anyone interested in participating in the April walk should contact COSY at 479-2814 or the cancer society at 382-3414.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

Gary Gordon Grieve of 6727 Ayre Road, was cleared by Judge William Ostler after a preliminary hearing into the charge of compounding the indictable offence of causing death by criminal negligence.

The charge was in connection with a motor vehicle accident May 28 on Sooke Road in which a 38-year-old occupational therapist from the Gorge Road hospital died from internal injuries nine hours after the car-truck collision.

The collision, which resulted in the death of Karina Clare Flock, of 5587 Sooke Road, occurred in front of 5360 Sooke Road, near Cooper's Cove, and Kenneth Douglas Filgate, of 7142 Grant, is committed for higher court trial on a charge of criminal negligence.

Crown counsel Richard Anthony's case revolved around admissions concerning who drove the truck which hit the Flock vehicle, but Ostler ruled in favor of defence lawyer Ted Hanman on grounds the Crown hadn't established that the criminal negligence had occurred and that criminal negligence was not contemplated at the time Grieve was charged.

Crown counsel Robert Mulligan told Judge Fred Green entry was gained by smashing a hole through the wall of the vault.

Reynolds, currently serving a six-month sentence for another break-in, also pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana. Court was told he was arrested on Government Street at 3 a.m. Sunday.

Green remanded Reynolds until March 21 for a pre-sentence report and sentence.

A William Head inmate who failed to return after his three-day Christmas pass was extended a few hours was sentenced to an additional three months in jail.

Clarence Levain Larson, 37, changed his plea to guilty on a charge of being unlawfully at large.

Mulligan told the court Larson was serving a total of four years on robbery charges and was due for release Sept. 12, 1978, when he was given a pass from Dec. 24 to 26. The pass was later extended on request until the early hours of Dec. 27, court was told.

Defence lawyer William McElmoyle said his client received the pass so that he could see a 96-year-old grandmother who was travelling to Vancouver from Penticton.

However, McElmoyle said, while in Vancouver, Larson learned his wife had gone to live with another man and got in touch with the other man and arranged to meet him Jan. 2 at a West Hastings Street restaurant. During that meeting Larson was apprehended, said McElmoyle, who said police were probably informed by Larson's wife.

McElmoyle asked Green to consider the "good time" Larson was losing while he was at large and during the two months he spent at Wilkinson Road awaiting disposition of his case.

A 21-year-old man who had two previous convictions in the last two years for drinking-driving offences was jailed for two months after pleading guilty to impaired driving Monday.

Phillip George Hunter, of 3209 Wetherby, pleaded guilty to impaired driving Sunday and to refusing to take a breath test when ordered by Saanich police.

Court was told Hunter was stopped on the Trans-Canada Highway near Tillicum shortly after 4 a.m. after Saanich police noticed him driving erratically. Mulligan also noted that Hunter had impaired driving convictions in West Vancouver and Victoria, the last one resulting in a 16-day sentence.

On the charge of impaired driving, Green sentenced Hunter to two months at Wilkinson Road jail, placed him on six months' probation and ordered him to take any alcohol-related therapy or program as directed. On the charge of refusing a breath sample demand, Hunter received a concurrent, five-day sentence.

Two drivers received fines for having blood-alcohol contents over .08. They were: John Stephen Anderson, 25, of 1225 Rockcrest, $450; and Heike McKenzie, 20, of Sooke, $175.

In addition, Miss McKenzie was given a suspended sentence and ordered to perform 50 hours of community work service for driving while suspended.

Teen-Aged Girls Smoking Like There's No Tomorrow

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — While the majority of Canadians have cut down on cigarette consumption since 1965 as shown by Health and Welfare Canada statistics, teenage girls are smoking like there's no tomorrow.

Their intake valves are consuming smoke at a rate that's increased to 28 per cent from 18.7 per cent in 1965 despite warnings from doctors and governments that smoking is harmful.

"I can't explain what drives a girl to pick up the habit," says Dr. Boris Ragula, president of the London and Middlesex Interagency on smoking and Health.

"But it's very unsexy when a boy kisses her. All that ashtray material in her lungs smells when she breathes.

"At the same time girls will spend all kinds of money buying cologne and deodorant so the rest of their bodies smell attractive."

Dr. Ragula said there is a definite difference in attitude towards smoking between teen-age boys and girls.

The doctor pointed to specimens of smoke-ruined lung tissue which hang on the wall of his family physician's office.

"A male teen-ager will come into my office, look at the lungs on the wall, go out, come back in, look again and then get angry at himself for having smoked.

"A teen-age girl will look at the lung pictures, sigh and then go out and have a smoke."

Dr. Ragula blamed women's liberation for making girls smoke.

"Now that girls are equal they want to outdrink, outswear and outsmoke men."

Judy Nichols, a co-ordinator at the London Women's Resource Centre, said: "It's a status thing.

"Women aren't given as much freedom as men are during that period of their lives and smoking is just a way of saying, 'See, I'm grown up.' "

Statistics Canada figures show a decrease to 32.3 per cent in 1974 from 35.7 per cent in 1970 in smoking among teen-age boys.

Joyce Ruddle, co-ordinator of physical and health education for the London board of education, said the board's anti-smoking program tries to create a "Yech" attitude towards smoking.

She says the program, in effect for three years, stresses the unpleasantness of the habit.

There are three stages to the program, the first dealing with children in Grades 4 to 6.

They are told that smoking causes bad breath and yellow fingers. The health hazards also are outlined but the emphasis is on letting them make their own decision on smoking.

At the senior elementary level, the children concentrate on resisting peer pressures and at the junior secondary level tten-agers are given more sophisticated information on the harmfull effects of smoking as well as methods of kicking the habit.

Dr. Ragula said: "you might as well save your wind to blow away cigarette smoke rather than tell a teen-ager about the hazards of smoking."

Intolerance directed by the public towards smokers is the key, he said.

"People should be as ashamed to smoke in public as to appear drunk or even urinate in public. It's all on the same level."

He said that if someone burps at the dinner table he is expected to excuse himself. But a smoker can destroy everyone's appetite by smoking during a dinner — and no one will say anything.

"To me, smoking is an addiction and something to be ashamed of."

Lack of Confidence Pushes Elderly Out

WINNIPEG (CP — Once upon a time grandma and grandpa spent their twilight years in the homes of their children, rocking away the hours with grandchildren on their knees.

Today they are more likely to be in a nursing home or on the list of 1,000 names of elderly people waiting for places in institutions in Manitoba.

Sociologists explain the change in terms of the breakdown of the joint family or increased social mobility that allows children to wander far afield in search of new careers, but sometimes the explanation is far less complex.

Helen Copeland, director of health services for the Red Cross in Winnipeg, says many old people end up in nursing homes not because they aren't loved and wanted, but because their families lack the confidence to look after them.

That's the main reason the Red Cross lends equipment to Manitoba families and offers a 14-hour home nursing course to teach them how to care for the sick and elderly at home.

"Most of these things are so simple, once you learn the tricks of the trade," Mrs. Copeland said. "But how would you know them unless you were taught what to do?"

The orientation of the Red Cross programs is reflected in the Manitoba government's office of continuing care, set up in 1974 to provide services such as meal preparation, personal grooming assistance, occupational therapy and friendly visits by volunteers.

The government has recruited more than 1,600 workers, from registered nurses to volunteers, to deliver these services.

"We are able to relieve almost any need for care if the people who need the services have family support," said the office's acting director Enid Thompson. "And even where they don't it's possible to relieve some degree of the need for care."

The Victorian Order of Nurses and St. John Ambulance also have services aimed at helping families keep their elderly relatives at home.

But officials concerned about the problem feel more changes are necessary.

Herman Crewson, executive director of Manitoba Health Organizations Inc., representing more than 100 health-care facilities in the province, said doctors should devote more time to preventive medicine and home care programs.

If they made more house calls, for example more elderly people could remain at home instead of going to nursing homes.

J. P. Suderman, executive director of Lions Manor in Winnipeg, said many sons and daughters are questioning the need for changing their lifestyle to look after an aging parent, especially when the government provides an alternative.

CHILDREN JOIN AGED

TORONTO (CP) — Villa Colombo, a senior citizen's home in the Italian community, has opened an experimental day-care centre in what it says is an attempt to provide a more natural setting for its elderly residents.

"Our point is to try to create a family atmosphere," said Paolo Ariemma, executive director of the Italian Canadian Benevolent Corp., which owns and operates the home.

"It is very difficult for older people, especially Italian, to be separated from their families. They fear being institutionalized."

Grandparents are traditionally important members of Italian families, he said in an interview. But when family members do not live together or when the grandparents are dead, both generations miss the traditional roles.

Some of the women residents have already volunteered to watch the children during nap time, read stories or serve snacks.

Ariemma said the centre will be in the experimental stage for some time while children are introduced to bring it up to its capacity of 34 youngsters between the ages of 2 and 5.

Neighborhood children will be accepted at the centre on a first-come first-served basis for $35 a week.

"No one has ever placed a day-care centre in an old folks' home," he said. "We have a lot to learn."

Alcoholism not only affects the person who is so afflicted, but also every member of his family. They need spiritual assistance as much as the alcoholic himself.

The six-page folder "Purposes Of The Al-Anon Family Groups" offers hope and encouragement to families and friends of an alcoholic. Membership in local Al-Anon groups is free. During weekly meetings ways to deal with family problems are explored with people who are in the same boat.

The folder also points out that if there is no Al-Anon group in your area, you can start one yourself. The Al-Anon World Service Office will provide you with a free starter kit to help you plan and program your meetings.

Another folder "Facts About Alateen" explains the workings of a fellowship which is geared to the needs of teenaged sons and daughters of alcoholics. Members exchange experiences and encourage each other so that they are better able to cope with the situation. As a rule, each Alateen group is sponsored by a member of Al-Anon and sometimes co-sponsored by a member of Alcoholics Anonymous.

For either folder write to: Al-Anon Family Groups, Box 474, Station A, Scarborough, Ont. Please don't forget to indicate your postal zone and allow at least two to three weeks for delivery.

By LYNN and JOEL RAPP

Dear Lynn and Joel: I would like to tell you about my Grandmother Edith and her poinsettia, Beautiful You. She was given the plant last Christmas with four blooms. Starting Oct. 20 she draped the plant every afternoon at 4 p.m. This Christmas it had eight blooms, and each one was about 13 inches in diameter. If you are familiar with Florida poinsettias, this may not seem too remarkable, but my grandmother cares for Beautiful You and the rest of her plant family in a beach cottage in Rye, N.H.

My grandmother infuses all her plants with a vigor I haven't seen elsewhere. Her secret is she talks to them, telling them what marvelous example of God's work they are and that she is privileged to be the handmaiden who carries the water. The results are fantastic. — Carol B.

Dear Carol B.: Thank you for your loving letter. I would like to tell you about my grandmother, or "Gaga" as she is affectionaltely called. She has the same feeling for her plants as Grandmother Edith.

That's the only way you'll be able to determine how much you'll get out of it. Some financial institutions may offer a higher interest rate, but they may also ask for annual administration fees or initiation fees and your money may be locked in. When you buy a Registered Retirement Savings Plan in the Permanent's Guaranteed Fund, there won't be any annual administration fee or initiation fee.

As far as your money's concerned, we're very flexible. That's why, combined with interest compounded monthly and a low close-out fee, our RRSP nets out a lot better than most.

And remember, our Guaranteed Fund has out-performed those of most major companies over the last few years.

We also offer a choice of an Equity Fund or a Fixed Income Fund. You can even open a RRSP in your husband or wife's name. It's something you may like to consider.

If you're planning to open a RRSP this year or considering a transfer, come in and see us at the Permanent branch nearest you.

THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS

...it tells you how

There's a nip in the air. "Ideal weather where I live in Oregon," Ruth Hampton says, "for putting away enough luscious, juicy mincemeat for moist cakes, rich cookies and delectable pies all through the cold, stay-in-and-bake days of winter."

"Boil salted beef, lamb or venison necks in a 20-quart kettle while you peel ten quarts of firm, ruddy apples," says Ruth. "As you pare and quarter the apples, put them in ice-cold salted water and hold them until the meat is pulled from any bones and chopped (you should have about five quarts of beef or lamb or venison after it's been finely chopped or coarsely ground). Then chop the apples and combine them with the meat and the deer-or-whatever broth in the kettle."

Add two or three pounds of brown sugar, one full cup of wine vinegar and maybe one pound each of seedless raisins, dried currants and dried mixed fruit. Throw in a glass of watermelon preserves, a glass of dark jelly, half a pound of suet, about half a gallon of apple cider and some cinnamon, nutmeg, cloves and vanilla. (Start with one teaspoon each of the seasonings and don't add any more until you've cooked and tested the contents of the steaming pot.)

Simmer everything over low heat for several hours. Stir and taste until the mixture is dark and syrupy. Then ladle it into hot, sterilized jars (see any good canning book for further instructions), seal the containers . . . and you've got enough mincemeat to last your family until spring.

Doesn't Mind Stepping on 500 Toes

By NORM CRIBBENS

CANTERBURY, England (CP — Ann Wilks has been called the most persistent one-woman pressure group in Britain.

She writes more than 500 letters a year to the local council, government ministries, the post office, the gas board, the electricity board and the garbage disposal board complaining of everything from high taxes to evil smells.

"It's a kind of hobby," said the vivacious 57-year-old housewife. "I use my prerogative as a taxpayer to try to keep public authorities on their toes."

Canterbury council complains that Mrs. Wilks costs the taxpayers about 10,000 ($17,500 a year, including time spent on investigating her complaints and the expense of stationery and postage. She is unsympathetic.

"If they were properly organized and could sort things out in an orderly, constructive way, it wouldn't cost them as much," she said.

Mrs. Wilks began her campaign when local government was reorganized in 1974, abolishing many rural councils and converting her and her neighbors from Whitstable taxpayers into Canterbury taxpayers.

She agitates for better footpaths, better bus stops, better pedestrian crossings, and often gets them. Now she is conplaining about a smog that hits Whitstable whennever there is a northeast wind, bringing an unpleasant odor.

"I would much prefer to walk around this district with an acquiescent, humble mind, admiring all the lovely gardens and shutting my eyes to what is wrong," she said.

"But I'm not made that way."

She is battling with Cumbria County council, in the opposite corner of England, over the proposed establishment of a nuclear power station at Winsoale in the Lake District.

"It is too far away to affect me personally," she said. "But I am concerned with the country as a whole. After all, it is my country as much as anyone else's, even the Queen's."

Insect Diet Urged By Biologists

MEXICO CITY (Reuter) — Would you like some ant soup with a tasty main course of fried grasshoppers to follow?

That is the kind of menu recommended by a team of Mexican biologists who are urging their compatriots to imitate their Aztec forebears by eating more insects.

"Insects are the most numerous and aggressive members of the animal kingdom, but they are still not exploited rationally as a food source," said Dr. Julieta Elorduy, who has just completed a three-year investigation.

She said ants, grasshoppers, waterflies and caterpillars found in every village could take the place of milk, meat and eggs, luxury products beyond the reach of a large minority of Mexico's 64 million people.

The doctor set out on her search for a cheap new food source early in 1974 in an attempt to alleviate the chronic malnutrition which persists in many rural districts and city slums.

Many Mexicans still go hungry despite the rapid industrial growth of the last three decades and the fact that Mexico, with an annual per capita income of more than $1,000, is one of the richer developing countries.

Recent government studies have shown, for example, that one in five of 2.3 million babies born last year suffered brain damage because they were not fed enough animal protein.

And a recent study by the president's office reported that 10 million Mexicans have never tasted meat in any form.

The team concluded, in a scientific paper published by the University of Mexico's Biological Institute, that insect farming would wipe out malnutrition here.

"Insects are very cheap to breed, they taste good when properly served and they contain more valuable protein than almost any other nutrition source," Dr. Elorduy said.

Insects took pride of place in the cooking of the Aztec Indians and many remote communities used them in place of meat until early in the present century.

Only kings and high priests livened their banquets with wild game and sometimes with fish brought to the mountain capital by relays of specially trained runners.

Today most of Mexico's 30 million country dwellers live as their ancestors did 500 years ago on a diet of corn or beans eked out with cultivated vegetables like the typical hot red chillies and the shapeless but tasty Mexican tomato.

But insects are rarely eaten now, although a handful of impoverished Indian villages in central Mexico still serve them.

Friend grasshoppers, for example, are sometimes eaten as an hors d'oeuvre with the local cactus beer; they taste like meaty potato chips.

The most popular modern varieties, according to the study, are fat, brown Mexican grasshoppers, large ants and waterflies.

Some of these delicacies can still be bought in the poorer street markets of Mexico City under their Indian names.

Dr. Elorduy said the grasshopper is the piece de resistance of Mexico's insect cuisine. Cooked grasshoppers contain 75 per cent pure protein, three times the proportion of protein in the average steak.

The other common insects range from 68 to 70 per cent protein content.

She said Mexicans can save a lot of money if they take up her proposal and cut out junk food.

The average Mexican, for example, consumes more soft drinks than almost anyone else in the world. And poor families with many children depend heavily on expensive bottled baby food.

"The insects are already here. Their incorporation into the eating pattern of the masses does not demand any big investment and they reproduce themselves extraordinarily fast."

CITIZENS' ARRESTS: TAKE IT EASY

TORONTO (CP) — City police say they are encouraged by the number of residents who attempt to make citizen's arrests, but they warn that it's wiser in some cases just to report the crime.

"If someone was trying to hold an attacker back and broke his arm in doing so, he could be charged with using excessive force, even though he was trying to help the attacker's victim," said Chief Harold Adamson of the Metropolitani Toronto police.

Even policemen with special training often have a hard time restraining violent suspects, he said in an interview.

The chief said that at least two officers would be needed to hold some violent suspects without causing serious injuries. Sometimes, it is more prudent to aid the victim and describe the assailant to police.

"In the case of a purse-snatch or subway assault or even bank robbery, the witnesses might even follow the suspect and notify police where he is heading," he said.

Chief Adamson said that common sense must be used in deciding whether to jump into a conflict where someone is being attacked.

"If the attacker has a gun, six people could be dead just like that if he panicked and started firing. Interference could cause more harm than good. It's the sort of thing the police could handle."

If an over-enthusiastic citizen misinterprets a squabble between friends as a fight and arrests someone, he might also be open to civil action, the chief said.

Bingo Fanatic Breaks the Spell

LONDON (CP) — An estimated 30,000 British housewives are believed to be compulsive bingo players.

Janet Blaze, 28, is one of many who have conquered the craving. But much of her income is devoted to paying off debts she incurred in four years as a bingo fanatic.

"No longer do I have to dream up lies for my husband, the rent collector, the insurance man and all the others whose money I was spending," she said.

"When you become an addict, you are always living for the big win that will solve your problem and enable you to do all kinds of wonderful things for your family. Sooner or later, you feel sure, your luck will turn. But it never does."

Mrs. Blaze's problem came to a head when 17 pounds ($30) she borrowed from a neighbor landed her in court. She asked the magistrate for an order banning her from bingo halls.

The magistrate gave her a conditional discharge and now Mrs .Blaze works four nights a week in a factory making automobile parts, in addition to her housework.

"With all the work, life is a good deal easier for me," she said. "when I was a bingo addict, it was easy for me to spend between 5 pounds and 7 pounds at a single session."

Now, she said, her five-year-old daughter Laura helps to protect her from backsliding by warning her:

"If you go near a bingo hall, I'll tell dad, granddad and the policeman."

Gamblers Anonymous, an organization run on similar lines to Alcoholics Anonymous, has branches in many towns of England and Wales and a number of men and women say they have found a cure through organized group therapy.

A middle-aged man who operated a residential hotel in southern England said he was close to bankruptcy two years ago.

"I was squandering all our profits on gambling—backing horses, playing poker half the night and laying bets on stupid happenings. If I hadn't gone to Gamblers Anonymous in time, I'd have lost everything."

dear abby

Thorny Rose Posy

DEAR ABBY: I've always got along well with my neighbors, but listen to this. The woman next door has a lovely Peace rose bush.

Last June she planned to take a large bouquet to decorate our church, but when she came out early Sunday morning to cut the roses, she discovered that the bush had been stripped!

Meanwhile, guests whom we had for dinner on Saturday night brought me a large bouquet of Peace roses, which I had placed in our front window.

When my neighbor discovered that her roses were gone and she saw the bouquet in my window, she immediately assumed that they were hers, so she rang my doorbell and awakened me. Then she forced her way into my house, took my flowers and said some terrible things to me. I was too shocked and bewildered to respond.

Since then she's been avoiding me, but her husband still talks to my husband. Now it turns out that on the Monday following the episode, another neighbor had come to her to apologize for her preteen daughter, who had sneaked into her yard that Saturday evening and taken her roses!

My neighbor's husband says his wife is too embarrassed and ashamed to face me, and I should swallow my pride, go over there and make up with her.

Abby, I can't forget those shameful things she said to me. I feel terrible about the whole thing, but since she's in the wrong, I think she should come here and apologize to me. How can this be settled so we can be friends again? ROSE FEVER.

DEAR FEVER: She should come to you and apologize, but since she hasn't and you want to be friends again, swallow your pride (thorns and all) and make the first move. Be mature. Defer.

DEAR ABBY: I am 12. I told my father to go jump in the lake. We live by a lake, but it is frozen over now, so he should have known I didn't really mean it.

He grounded me indefinitely. How long is "indefinitely?" GROUNDED

DEAR GROUNDED: It's for as long as it takes your father to cool off. (Apologize and promise to be more respectful, and it may break the ice.)

Acid Popular

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the most widely used industrial chemicals, sulphuric acid, helps make many consumer products, says U.S. Industrial Chemicals Co. It is used to make citric acid, the additive that increases the tartness in soft drinks, processed cheese, pharmaceuticals, detergents, paper, gasoline and wet-cell batteries.

DUNG BATTLE SETTLED

SHEFFIELD, England (CP) — A battle over horse manure landed Arthur Edon and Fred Ogden in court in this Yorkshire town. Arthur felt he had priority over the manure because his horse, Apache, was the producer. Fred replied that Apache grazed on council land and anything left there was public property. He even fed Apache cabbages to help things along. Both were bound over to keep the peace.

Meteorite Fragment Found

INNISFREE, Alta. (CP) — Scientists who photographed a meteorite falling across Alberta's sky earlier this month have found a piece of the extra-terrestrial rock.

It weighs four pounds, nine ounces and was found on a farm near this community 90 miles east of Edmonton.

Astrophysicist Ian Halliday of the National Research Council said he found the fragment after combing the area where he believed the meteorite had fallen.

"The thing that makes it so special is that we have pictures of the meteorite coming down through the atmosphere," he said.

"Because of that, we know how fast and where it was coming from in the solar system.

"This is only the third time that a meteorite has been found after it was photographed coming down."

Scientists believe the meteorite is part of a planet which broke up four billion years ago.

Dr. Robert Follinsbee, professor of economic geology at the University of Alberta, said when he heard of the meteorite he called Alan Blackwell of the department of physics at the University of Saskatchewan and suggested he try developing films in automatic cameras he had placed at strategic points.

"In the camera facing Innisfree there was a really good, clear photograph," Dr. Follinsbee said.

Who Should NOT Drive a Car?

By LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

Is there any legal way that I can get my husband to stop driving his car? He's always getting into some kind of accident. I'm scared to death that one day he'll kill someone or himself. He's furious because I won't get into the car with him. He's 77. His legs are full of arthritis.—Mrs. H.R.

DearMrs. R.:

The appalling statistics of more than 50,000 deaths a year on the highway are realistic enough to justify your fright. Unfortunately, the legal restrictions on drivers before they have a major accident are not sufficient to take the handicapped driver off the road.

When I say "handicapped" I do not refer to those handicapped people who are driving cars that are specially equipped for their needs. The Bureau of Statistics has confirmed that these people are the safest and most careful drivers on the road.

The handicapped drivers I specifically referred to are those whose reflexes are diminished and therefore whose ability to manipulate steering, braking and acceleration must necessarily suffer. Ironically, these are often the very people who refuse to recognize their physical and emotional inadequacies. These are the very people who make the automobile a lethal weapon that threatens their own lives and the lives of those with whom they come in contact.

Many states now demand rigid physical and mental tests in an effort to weed out incompetent or unreliable drivers. It is shameful how many people who have been responsible for injury, and even death, are still legally permitted to drive their cars. I have often said that anyone, at any age, who has had a major accident simply because they should not have been driving in the first place should be permanently barred from getting behind the wheel of a car. Anyone who once has been convicted of drunken driving responsible for death or serious injury should, in my opinion, have his license revoked.

Doctors must play a vital role in preserving the safety of the community by suggesting that people with known impairments should not be allowed to drive in the interest of their own safety as well as that of others.

People with known neurological disease, those who suffer from sudden attack of dizziness, or people with impaired vision and deficient hearing, arthritic incapacitation of the arms and the legs, incomplete recovery from strokes, or those who are subject to convulsions should not drive a car.

Many people at the age of 77 are excellent drivers. Age alone is not the criterion. It is the physical or emotional impairment that should determine the right of the individual to continue to drive.

Police Find Stolen Art

VIENNA (Reuter) — Paintings and sculptures worth almost $7 million, stolen from churches and other buildings, have been recovered, Austrian police said Sunday. Four persons were arrested in connection with the thefts — a prominent Vienna businessman, a bar owner and two barmen. Police said they were arrested as they prepared to sell the art works in a Vienna hotel Friday.

Threats Made

BELGRADE (Reuter) — Romanian dissident Paul Goma told a western journalist in Bucharest that he has received anonymous telephone calls threatening to kill his Jewish wife. Goma and seven friends signed an open letter, which reached Belgrade last week, accusing Romania and other Soviet bloc countries of flouting human rights.

Grits Fuelling PQ Flames: Wagner

OTTAWA (CP) — Quebec Tory Claude Wagner (St. Hyacinthe) defended federalism and attacked the government in the Commons on Monday, accusing the Liberals of fueling separatist sentiments in Quebec.

"I choose to be a Canadian while remaining a Quebecer," Wagner said in French as MPs on both sides of the House banged their desks in approval.

"The future of Canada could be jeopardized if a majority of Quebecers reach the conclusion that they are no longer wanted by the rest of Canada."

Wagner and fellow frontbench Conservative Flora MacDonald (Kingston and the Islands) accused the government of contributing to federal-provincial frictions because of its tough stand in negotiating a new tax-sharing agreement bettween the two levels of government.

The year of debate leading up to tax-sharing legislation now before the Commons did not represent creative or cooperative federalism "but combative federalism," Miss MacDonald said.

The Commons was debating the propsed new Fiscal Arrangements Act, which sets out a new five-year cost-sharing plan for equalization payments to the poorer provinces and shared health and education spending with all of them.

Ottawa has agreed to transfer additional tax-raising power to the provinces worth about $6 billion, together with cash payments, to replace 50-50 dollar-matching arrangements for health and education. Those arrangements expire March 31.

Both Wagner and Miss MacDonald said Prime Minister Trudeau and Finance Minister Donald Macdonald took near-intractable stands in the negotiations that put unnecessary new strains on national unity.

Wagner went even further, suggesting a direct link between the talks and increasing separatist sentiments in Quebec.

The victory of the separatist Parti Quebecois government in Quebec elections last November signalled a constitutional crisis that has not yet reached its peak, he said.

"The Parti Qyebecois exists because it is a normal goal for people to want to reach maturity and independence and it is nothing per se," he said.

However, their desire to remain within Canada is jeopardized by excessively-tough federal attitudes on cost sharing and by "explosions of intolerance" such as the complaints in English-speaking Canada about French on food package labels, French television and the limited use of French in air traffic control over Quebec.

Pessimism Business Outlook

MONTREAL (CP) — A survey of Canadian businessmen shows a somewhat pessimistic outlook for 1977 economic prospects, the Bank of Montreal said Monday.

The bank said in a statement that it polled almost 2,500 businessmen in January, asking for their views on business activity, the future of the federal anti-inflation program and the general outlook for the Canadian economy.

The survey showed that while generally businessmen were gloomy in their outlook for the economy, those in British Columbia were the most optimistic and Quebecers the least.

Results indicated most businessmen planned to reduce or maintain last year's capital spending levels. About 69 per cent of Quebec businessmen indicated they would not increase spending this year.

However, western businessmen were more optimistic, as 60 per cent in Alberta and 53 per cent in B.C. said they would spend more during 1977 than last year.

The survey said most businessmen wanted quick dismantling of the federal anti-inflation board, although 37 per cent favored continuation of the program until its expiry date at the end of 1978.

Red Build-Up Seen Serious

OTTAWA (CP) — The chief of defence staff in Canada says the West must take the military buildup of the Warsaw pact in Europe "very, very seriously."

Gen. J. A. Dextraze says study of pact training manuals over the years shows that its strategy has neyer changed — a fast, violent, quick war using tremendous might.

"As he (the pact) gets more planes, more tanks, more ships, more submarines and so on it gives these words a hell of a lot more power."

Gen. Dextraze touched on the Warsaw pact threat in a wide-ranging interview last week. Among other subjects:

—He thinks the armed forces, after years of financial privation, now are on a sound footing and are improving with new equipment.

—He indicated he would be content with a northern military base at Resolute in the Northwest Passage although he would prefer one farther east.

—As his military career is ending — he leaves his job in June — he feels he has achieved some notable victories, not the least of which is understandable communication with "my political masters" that has seen a reversal of government attitude.

"We're well paid," Gen. Dextraze said of the military. "We are respected by the population of this country. We are well thought of by our political masters."

"I'd be happier if they'd double my budget, if they'd double the number of people in the forces."

The general, who has had to fight to overcome erosion of the forces through government budget for the five years he has been chief of defence staff, said he can contemplate his impending retirement in a happy frame of mind.

On the Warsaw pact buildup, the subject of intensified warnings in NATO circles in recent months, the general said military men must concentrate on the capabilities of a potential enemy — not his intentions.

If the enemy has the capability to attack it has to be assumed that while today he has peaceful intent, on another day he might have the desire and will to follow through.

Quebec Backing 'Homegrown' Firms

By PETER HADEKEL
Times Quebec Bureau

MONTREAL — The Quebec government will reduce the role of multinational corporations in the Quebec economy and promote more "homegrown" industry, Finance Minister Jacques Parizeau said Monday.

"The economic policies we intend to pursue are not based on attracting U.S. capital," he told a Canadian Club luncheon meeting of 800 mostly Anglophone businessmen.

"This would be too haphazard and exceedingly costly."

"Our economic policy has to rely on the instruments we have here — our own resources, initiative and entrepreneurs."

Parizeau said Quebec has been very slow in learning that heavy foreign investment is not the answer to economic problems.

While the federal government was setting up its foreign investment review agency — which Parizeau called "one of the most significant gestures by a post-war Canadian government" — Quebec was still trying up until last year to woo large U.S. corporations into the province with the promise of heavy subsidies, he said.

The Parti Quebecois proposal to establish a foreign investment code to regulate foreign participation in various sectors of the conomy is similar to what Ottawa has already instituted, said Parizeau.

Under the PQ proposals, foreign investment would be prohibited in the media and cultural fields and only minority participation would be allowed in public utilities, financial institutions and manufacturing industries.

"The new government in Quebec is not trying to create some sort of Cuba," Parizeau said.

"But we want to reappraise our relationship with the large corporations."

He said Canada and Latin America were about the only markets open to expansion by U.S. multinationals after the last war.

"But Western Europe and other markets are now wide open to U.S. capital and there is no reason why we should try to seek more foreign investment."

More than three-quarters of industrial jobs in Quebecc are in small and medium-sized industries, he noted, destroying the myth that Quebec's prosperity depends on large multinationals.

Later, Parizeau told reporters that the PQ government wants to take the asbestos industry out of the hands of U.S. multinational corporations but so far discussions have been held with only one of five major companies involved in asbestos exploitation.

The finance minister said he is not concerned by reports that the market for Quebec bonds in New York has continued to decline since Premier Rene Levesque's speech in January to the Economic Club of New York.

SEPARATISM CALLED COWARD'S WAY OUT

Premier Bill Bennett says that it would be cowardly for Quebec to leave Canada in an attempt to solve the province's problems.

Bennett said in a recent interview that Quebec should face its problems and come to terms with them within confederation.

"When you face your problems and you know that the solutions are tough . . . it would be cowardly to just separate and run because that isn't the answer to the problem," said the premier.

He said that "equally as blind to the responsibilities that . . . plague the leaders of this time" are "those that stand around wringing their hands now and say they're worried about whose going to separate, but they don't want to hear any new ideas because it might threaten their authority."

Bennett said the problems are mainly economic and can be solved by building a more flexible Canada.

Tories, Liberals 'Divisive'

TORONTO (CP) — Joe Morris, president of the Canadian Labor Congress, said Monday that Canadian political parties must be restructured to emphasize substantive alternatives rather than regional differences.

In a speech to the Canadian Club, Morris said the two major political parties, the Liberals and Progressive Conservatives, have been among the "most destructive and divisive forces in Canada."

At election time, the major parties could be found saying different things in different parts of the country, he said.

"I seriously question the historical and future role of political parties in this country which compete for power by exploiting regional disparities."

The president of the 2.3 million member labor body called for a major revamping of the political system to emphasize the bonds among Canadians — political parties grouped along ideological lines to offer real alternatives in social and economic issues.

In an interview later, Morris disputed federal Labor Minister John Munro's contention the labor movement is begining to desert the NDP.

He said the last meeting of the congress passed a resolution favoring the NDP "and that is congress policy."

Is his address, Morris repeated the CLC's call for a body bringing labor and management together to discuss the issues confronting the country.

Munro Fears Labor Unrest

OTTAWA (FP) — All levels of government must work together to phase out wage and price controls or face "the most volatile industrial relations period in our history," according to Labor Minister John Munro.

That potential and the need for a smooth transition out of controls is Munro's message to a one-day federal-provincial conference of labor ministers taking place here today.

"This year Canada is facing the heaviest collective bargaining calendar on record, and with a strained industrial relations system," says a statement released Monday by Munro's office.

The implications of de-control — a possible "bulge" in wages and prices—are a key part of today's agenda as the 10 povincial ministers look at what they might do to ease the transition to the post-controls era which could come before the 1978 deadline.

In this light, Quebec's recent dropping of controls on its public sector workers may be a key matter of discussion along with its plan to index the minimum wage to the rate of inflation.

Jacques Olivier, parliamentary secretary to Munro, told reporters Monday that Quebec's unilateral action to weaken its anti-inflation board had caused problems—its private sector was under controls but its public sector was not.

Speaking for Munro who was out of town, Olivier, MP for Longueil, said it was to Quebec's advantage to cooperate with the other governments.

Munro's statement said Ottawa was "not looking for miracles" but for "positive, progressive means of improving the labor affairs scene."

Today's conference could have "considerable significance for Canada's economic future," he said, because there are "some hard realities confronting Canada . . . as far as labor relations are concerned."

Labor ministers bore a heavy responsibility to see that the transition out of controls was done as fairly and reasonably as possible.

Quebec Finance Minister Jacques Prizeau has said the Levesque government wanted to co-operate with Ottawa and the provinces in the phasing out of controls. There was need for shared action.

The impact of controls on collective bargaining is to be explored today as well as Finance Minister Donald Macdonald's suggestion for a monitoring agency to keep watch over wage and price increases in the post-controls ra.

THE LOWEST PRICED POPULAR CAR IS HERE.

Terrific, but price isn't everything.

The Toyota Canadian definitely lives up to its name and comes equipped to give you exceptional value for your money. That's because it's a direct result of exhaustive testing by Toyota in Northern Canada and various Canadian cities under some of the coldest, meanest, toughest weather conditions that exist anywhere.

What was learned from years of this kind of testing resulted in an automobile that's built to take on the worst weather this country can dish out. And win.

The Toyota Canadian comes especially equipped with a powerful electric rear window defroster, side window defoggers, a heavy duty heater, a heavy duty battery and some very advanced rust inhibitors including plastic front fender liners, zinc coated rocker panels, corrosion and dampness resistant engine fittings...to name but a few.

The Toyota Canadian is rated at an estimated 51 miles per gallon on the highway, 33 in the city, based on TRANSPORT CANADA approved test methods. Of course, the actual mileage you get will vary according to the kind of driving you do.

Backing the Toyota Canadian are over 230 dealers right across the country and a sophisticated computerized parts system to ensure the rapid availability of virtually any part, anywhere.

The Toyota Canadian...born out of exhaustive research in this country and now part of the world's number one selling car model line...lives up to its name... terrific! TOYOTA

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

It is an accepted psychological principle that when a declarer initiates the attacking of some suit, the defenders, when they obtain the lead, will tend to shy away from leading that suit. After all, if declarer is interested in developing a suit, the defenders are certainly not going to help him.

In today's deal, the appreciation of the above psychology enabled our South declarer to fulfill a slam contract which the defenders could have defeated.

	♡ A 7
	◇ K 5 3
	♣ A Q 10 9 4
WEST		EAST
♠ A 10 5 2		♠ Q 9 8
♡ J 10 9 8		♡ 5 3 2
◇ J 10 8		◇ 9 7 6
♣ 7 2		♣ 8 6 5 3
	SOUTH
	♠ K J 7
	♡ K Q 6 4
	◇ A Q 4 2
	♣ K J

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♡	Pass
2 ♣	Pass	4 NT	Pass
5 ♡	Pass	6 NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♡.

When North rebid his clubs, South properly concluded that his K-J of clubs were worth more than their nominal 4-point value. So he bid the slam after learning that North possessed two aces.

After West had opened the heart jack, and the dummy came into view, declarer perceived that he had 11 top tricks. If the 12th trick were to be forthcoming, it had to be made in either the spade or diamond suit.

Upon winning the opening heart lead with dummy's ace, declarer led the three of spades off the board. When East followed suit with the eight, South put up the king, which West captured with his ace. As can be observed, all West had to do at this point was to return a spade, and East's queen would have taken the setting trick. But for all West knew, South might have started with the K-Q-J-9 of spades, in which case a spade return would make a winner out of South's nine-spot. So, at trick three, West made the passive, "safe" return of the ten of hearts.

Declarer, having been granted a reprieve, now made full use of his opportunity. He won the heart return with his king, after which he cashed the king and jack of clubs. He then entered dummy via the diamond king, after which he ran the board's three remaining clubs.

When it was subsequently revealed on the plays of the ace and queen of diamonds that each defender had been dealt three diamonds, South's fourth diamond became his slam-going trick.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Wednesday, February 23

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Be ready to demonstrate meanings, to illustrate beliefs. Accent on value, reevaluating, getting budget into some kind of order — change need not be equated with chaos. Know it and act as if you are aware of it. A "mystery" person could enter your life.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Highlight ability to understand family tradition, foibles — be mature, capable of making concessions without feeling weak. Element of surprise dominates. Best laid plains . . . you find that past agreements, arrangements could fly out of window. Be ready!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Perceive potential — don't wait for others to approve or disapprove of plans, actions. Be your own person. Pisces, Virgo figure in picture. Accent on secrets, backstage glimpses, hospital visits, media appearances.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Key is ability to organize, to be responsible for actions, to express love, to give of yourself without regret. Capricorn is in picture and another Cancer could also be part of your personal scenario. A wish is fulfilled in a very unorthodox manner.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Finish rather than begin — raise sights to broader horizons. One who seemed to oppose you will lay cards on table — and you might be more pleased than annoyed. Aries, Libra and Scorpio could be in picture. Past obligation is obvious — don't try to evade it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Highlight originality, independence; your personal magnetism soars. Member of opposite sex says you are wonderful and means it. Lines of communication now are more important than usual. Be careful about quotes, signatures, checks, letters of credit.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Steer clear of pipe dreams — there is much you can afford, achieve, accomplish. There is no need to cut a swath to insolvency. Check costs, performances, track records — insist on quality. Cancer, Aquarius, Leo individuals are in picture.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Surprise element is featured. You might be making a personal appearance, a speech — popularity quotient is magnified. What seemed to be a permanent commitment proves otherwise. Be flexible, versatile, willing to meet people, to make inquiries, to socialize and to laugh at your own foibles.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Some persons try to change you, sway you, cause you to feel less-than-efficient. Maintain self-esteem. Be bemused, amused by petty attempts to block your efforts. Stick to principles. You are due for vindication and reward. Hang in there.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Feelings, emotions tend to dominate. Ride with tide. Refuse to be intimidated by children or other dependents. Exult in personal desire, joy. Some, who are envious, may claim you are being "self-indulgent". Consider the source!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You settle family differences — harmony can be restored. Unorthodox procedures are highlighted. Roadblock to progress, contentment is removed. Money, gift purchase, a "semi-formal apology" — these are in picture. Taurus, Libra figure prominently.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Don't take others too seriously. You tend now to attract those who spin "tall tales." Accent on quick decisions, humorous situations involving relatives or close neighbors. Avoid making final arrangements, firm commitments. Leave yourself running room!

IF FEBRUARY 23rd IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are inquisitive, you could write, report, teach. In 1977, you will be on more solid ground, working harder, enjoying what you do and gaining profits. April could be your most significant month. Gemini, Virgo persons play important roles in your life. You are sensitive, attractive, capable of loving more than one person at a time.

WCB WORKERS SETTLE

VANCOUVER (CP) — The newly-appointed Workers' Compensation Board of B.C. has virtually resolved its most immediate problem — settling a labor dispute with its employees.

Dr. Adam Little, the new chairman, and Chuck Calhoun, vice-president of the employees' union, jointly announced an agreement Monday that has been ratified by the board and goes to the 1,000 union members for approval within the next few days.

The union is recommending acceptance of the pact which takes care of the main issue of improved vacations.

The contract will provide a 2.35-per-cent wage increase for one year from Oct. 1 which takes into account a rollback by the federal anti-inflation board which has not been paid back.

The improvement in vacations provides up to seven weeks.

The schedule will be three weeks with one to four years' service; four weeks with five to nine years; five weeks with 10 to 14 years; six weeks with 15 to 19 years; and seven weeks with 20 or more years on the job.

Solitary Confinement 'Mentally Damaging'

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Prisoners Andy Bruce, Dwight Lucas and Claire Wilson have been mentally damaged by lengthy periods of solitary confinement, a psychiatrist testified Monday.

Dr. Milton Miller made the assessment during the British Columbia Supreme Court trial of the three, each charged with unlawful confinement and trying to extort transportation.

Charges were laid after a hostage-taking June 9, 1975, at British Columbia pentinentiary. Classification officer Mary Steinhauser was fatally shot when guards stormed the area and freed 14 other hostages.

Dr. Millar, head of the psychiatry department at the University of B.C., testified that the most unbearable aspect of solitary confinement is that prisoners feel locked away from any help.

He said he found Bruce to be "an uneven man but a man with intelligence."

Bruce spent much of the period between August, 1970, and December, 1974, in segregation. He has testified that it was in fear of being returned to solitary that prompted him to take hostages.

Dr. Miller said solitary "was psychologically damaging" to Bruce and made him more embittered. He said Bruce felt he was being singled out for disdain and contempt by those guarding him.

He testified that eight months of solitary, beginning in July, 1975, did "very substantial psychological and spiritual damage" to Lucas.

Dr. Miller said solitary left Lucas with a diminished interest in anything related to his future. On release from solitary, Lucas now feels accountable only to himself, and fears "he may not be able to control himself," the doctor added.

Wilson, held in solitary for periods between November, 1974, and March, 1975, withdrew into himself and had fantasies because of himself, said Dr. Miller.

A return to solitary for Wilson would "lead to hateful, irrational, revengeful behaviour toward others and toward himself."

He said Wilson learned to survive the experience by "closing his eyes until the problem goes away," which is possible in solitary, but makes him "ill-prepared for working, relating to people and changing his values."

The trial continues.

b.c. briefs

Quakes Still Unpredictable

VANCOUVER (CP) — Unexpected earthquakes in China last year prove that scientists still cannot predict them, Dr. J. Tuzo Wilson, the director-general of the Ontario Science Centre, told a Vancouver audience at the weekend.

There is no evidence that earthquakes are occurring more frequently, Dr. Wilson said; they receive more publicity because they struck populated areas.

He said Chinese scientists were aware of the high risk of a quake occurring before last year's disaster which killed an estimated 600,000 people.

But like Western scientists using instruments to detect electro-magnetic changes along fault lines, he said, they were unable to predict it.

Busters Offshoot

VANCOUVER (CP) — Busters Auto Towing did not bid Monday for a new three-year contract to tow away cars parked illegally on city streets.

The president of the company, Carl Vanderspeck, emerged as the president of a new company, which submitted the lower of two bids for the contract.

General Auto Towing bid $13 on the basic rate for removing an illegally parked car to any lot in the city, while Unitow Services, which almost won the contract late last year, bid $16.

Vanderspeck said in an interview that General Auto Towing is a teamsters-broker organization formed three days ago to bid on the contract.

The company will act as broker for independent drivers who own or lease their own trucks, he said.

Firemen Get Parity

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — City firefighters here have been given wage parity with Vancouver firefighters in a compulsory arbitration award. City lawyer Allan Hope, appointed when the city and Local 1372 of the International Association of Firefighters failed to reach a contract for 1976, raised the salary of a first-class firefighter to $1,429 from $1,323 a month.

Conspiracy Charge

VANCOUVER (CP) — Four men were committed for trial Monday on charges of conspiracy in connection with the issue of a misleading statement regarding a development company. Errol Fisher and his company Fisher Securities Corp. of Vancouver, Leonard Zrnic, president of Canterra Development Corporation Ltd., Benson Hunter, a former police officer and Maurice Hermany were committed following a lengthy preliminary hearing in provincial court.

Sentences Appealed

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Regional Crown Counsel A. S. K. Cook said today he has appealed the sentence given to prisoners who participated in a riot at the Prince George Regional Correctional Centre Feb. 3. Eleven of the 13 prisoners charged in the riot have been handed terms ranging from four to six months and Cook said he is appealing the sentences as "inadequate."

Wet Wheat Plug-Up

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — The Canadian grain elevator here is almost plugged because of wet wheat shipments from the Prairies, Larry Demontigny, superintendent of the federally-owned elevator, said today.

He said that the terminal could reach the point of congestion if more wet wheat is received in the next two days.

Demontigny said the 2.3-million-bushel elevator now has more than one million bushels of wet wheat in storage which cannot be shipped because of high moisture content.

In the last two weeks more than 600 railway cars have been unloaded into the elevator and another 300 are expected this week, he said.

Announcing a new base for economy.
TWO NEW COLTS

Chrysler creates two new light and lively little Colts on a 92.1" wheelbase, boasting standard Colt features and outstanding fuel economy. Your Dodge and Plymouth dealers have full details on Transport Canada Mileage Ratings.

Colt Coupe: A peppy 1600 cc engine, standard, 4-speed manual transmission, power front disc brakes, bumper guards front and rear, white sidewall tires, reclining bucket seats, tilt steering column, tinted glass all around, electric heated rear window and carpeting throughout. These features are standard on Colt's new Custom Coupe. Optional extras like automatic transmission and radio are all you might consider adding.

Illustrated is the Colt Coupe offered exclusively in white, accented by red tape stripes and a red vinyl roof. We call it the "Red and White Special" and it really is something special to see.

Colt 4-door: What's good for the Coupe is good for the Sedan. So Colt has applied the same high standards to its 4-door model. It comes with an optional 'Freeway Cruise' Package which features electric clock, tachometer, velour cloth bucket seats with lumbar back support, woodgrain door trim, and exterior accent tape stripes. The 1600 cc counterbalanced "silent shaft" engine with five-speed manual transmission is also standard with the 'Freeway Cruise' Package.

All and all, it's a sweet little package making it easy to get excellent fuel economy.

...TO GO WITH

our Arrow Hatchback: Arrow Hatchback is an inspiration to those drivers who take their economy with a dash of fun. Its standard features set the standard.

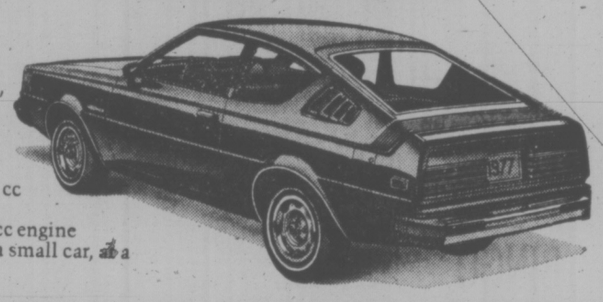
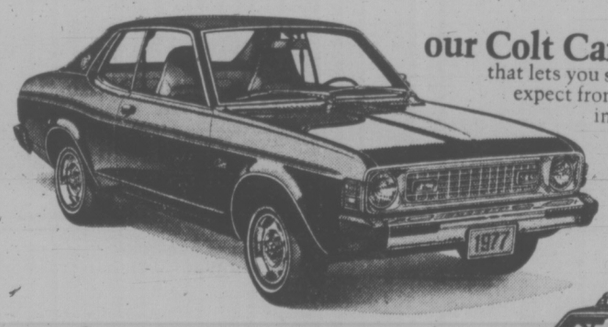
A little more luxury comes standard with Arrow GT (illustrated), featuring up-and-over stripes, sport mirrors, 1600 cc "silent shaft" engine, 5-speed manual transmission, centre console, just for starters. Add the optional "silent shaft" 2000 cc engine and you've gone about as far as you can in special features, in a small car, at a small price.



our Colt Carousel: Colt Carousel is a snappy little 2-door hardtop that lets you save money — in style. To the standards you've come to expect from Colt and Arrow, the Carousel adds blue denim cloth interior, AM/FM radio, blue denim vinyl roof and rallye road wheels with trim rings. All standard.

Optional extras give you the 2000 cc "silent shaft" engine with a manual five-on-the-floor to really get you in gear. Any way you take it, Carousel is a lot of little car.



and our Colt Wagon: With Colt Wagon big things come in small packages. The Wagon is the sub-compact with the space to carry big things — 58 cubic feet of cargo space. It has all the Colt features, easy access spare tire and counterbalanced lift gate. If you're looking for a little more, add the Estate Wagon Package (illustrated) featuring the 2000 cc "silent shaft" engine, woodgrain exterior trim, and interior features like electric clock and carpeted cargo area. After that, about the only options you'll want to consider are automatic transmission, radio and roof rack.

IMPORTANT: a previous advertisement was in error in not showing Colt wagon's roof rack as an option.

Those Pesky Weevils

During the first week of January we suggested checking begonia tubers that were in storage for evidence of weevil damage. Some gardeners failed to do this.

Now, as the tubers are taken from storage some are found to be little more than an empty shell.

The damage has been done by the strawberry (or primula) root weevil which infests most soils in this area, especially where commercial strawberry farms flourished not so many years ago.

The larvae of this weevil have a great liking for begonia tubers, and their presence within the tubers is indicated by small holes in the outer skin.

The best time to check is after the tubers have been dried and cleaned in the fall before putting them into storage. The only tool needed is a sharp pocket knife with a small blade.

Each tiny hole is enlarged with the knife blade, and many will be found to contain a fat and contented whitish grub.

Damage over winter is prevented if every suspicious hole is enlarged, the grub removed and destroyed, and the cut surfaces dusted with fine sulphur powder or powdered charcoal.

If this was not done last fall, be sure to do it now before the tubers are started into growth this spring.

Thirps, which is singular and plural, is the name of a common pest on the gladiolus. Their presence is indicated by silvery streaks in the foliage, and sometimes deformed blossoms which appear to have been scorched in a fire.

Thrips overwinter on the corms, then suck the juices from the young foliage, damaging it to a point where the manufacture of food is seriously curtailed and the plants are unable to make normal development.

Before the advent of the wonder sprays, many of which have now been removed from dealers' shelves because of their deadly side effects, we depended on naphthalene flakes to destroy this pest before planting.

Crude naphthalene, a black sticky substance, was used by commercial growers when thousands of corms had to be treated.

Slightly more expensive, but much easier to handle, the refined naphthalene was used by home gardeners. In the refined form we know it as moth flakes or moth-balls.

In February, the corms of each variety are placed in separate paper bags together with their name label, taking care not to mix the different colors nor cross the labels.

To each bag is added one teaspoonful of naphthalene flakes or one crushed moth-ball for every 12 to 20 corms. The top of the bag is securely folded and stapled, and the contents shaken to distribute the naphthalene.

It is not wise to leave the naphthalene on the corms too long, about five days is sufficient, after which the corms are returned to the shallow boxes or wire-bottomed storage trays, brushing off any particles of naphthalene that may still be adhering to the surfaces of the corms.

117 ARTS and ANTIQUES

ARE YOU ONE OF THE PEOple who believe antiques are expensive? Then you should take a drive out and compare our prices of fine, old, solid, oak, walnut and mahogany pieces to the cost of today's furniture which is usually veneer and pressed sawdust board. You'll find in most cases that your solid pieces are less expensive and will increase in value rather than decrease. Make an investment as well when you buy furniture. You won't be sorry. Where else, but Pete's Place? The bargains galore store for everybody. 786 Goldstream, phone 478-6000, open 7 days and evenings, 11-8, 15 minutes from town, 10 from Woolco.

EXCUSE ME, GOAT
A MOMENT TO SPARE?
I'd like to tell you about this beautiful listing that I have not far from Mt. Doug Park. It's a big home, only 9 years old, that was very thoughtfully designed and carefully built. Many large windows, wide hallways, high quality floor coverings, and a flowing room layout. There's 1350 sq. ft. on the main floor and over 1000 downstairs. The four bedrooms are approximately 13x13. There's a large den with brick fireplace, private sundeck off the dining room. The list of features goes on and on. How about 2 separate driveways? And there's ocean view to the front and Mt. views to the back. How much land? Approx. 11,000 sq. ft. of showplace landscaping set off by rock walls, lantern lighting, arbutus trees, and six ft. high cedar fence. Call me now to discuss this exquisite home. Price $86,500. Courthouse Move Delayed

Superior courts will not move from their temporary quarters to the Law Courts building until the fall even though upper floor renovation work is almost completed.

The holdup is that work has yet to begin on the main floor, converting the former law library into three provincial courtrooms, and this work will not be completed until around August.

Deputy public works minister George Giles said Monday it is "a matter of choice" that county and Supreme courts are not moving back shortly because the only work left on the upper floors will be finished in two or three weeks.

"In theory, the building will be ready in a month," he said.

But further construction will occur on the main floor for provincial courtrooms and "my understanding is the bench and the bar would like to stay out until that is completed, in July or August, because of the possibility of noise."

Superior courts were moved to makeshift temporary quarters at the former St. Ann's Academy, now used mostly by the education department, in the summer of 1975.

Two floors were added to the top of the Law Courts building, one to be used for the law library and the other for offices.

County and Supreme courts will move back to their former quarters on the second and third floors with no increase in courtrooms.

Creation of three provincial courtrooms on the main floor will enable this court to be consolidated with superior courts in the same building. Provincial court has three courtrooms on Fisgard Street beside the police station.

Switched Plans Annoy Saanich

Saanich wants the Municipal Act tightened to stop development plans presented at rezoning public hearings being switched later for less acceptable ones.

Ald. Fred Severson told council Monday the issue should be raised with the provincial government by the Union of B.C. Municipalities.

The most recent change of plans is for a duplex, to be built on Torquay Drive and Schellenberg Place by Gordon B. Elworthy of the Princess Mary Restaurant Ltd.

Elworthy bought the property from the original developer after the public hearing approved the zoning, based on plans shown at the hearing.

Elworthy has new plans which do not meet with council approval.

But aldermen conceded Monday they are powerless to insist the original plans be used and can only "plead" with Elworthy to use a more acceptable design.

"I agree he (Elworthy) is the innocent party, he's caught betwixt and between," Ald. John Mika said. "But I hope he will give serious consideration of what effect this will have on the area and the people there."

Mika suggested in the cases of such spot zoning, restrictive covenants should be demanded requiring plans submitted be used.

Elworthy said the duplex plans have already been used by him for two buildings in Nanaimo and another in Victoria. He asserted they were superior to the original plans because they provided affordable housing, having 1,600 feet "of useful space," compared to the original 1,064 feet.

Mayor Ed Lum asked Elworthy to "reconsider because of the general neighborhood. Our feeling is the design you have submitted does not fit in with the general neighborhood."

Elworthy said he may be able to change the exterior design a little.

"Council must protect the amenities of people already living there," Ald David Paterson told Elworthy. "The one you have presented is more of an apartment and simply doesn't blend in."

In making the move to enlist UBCM action, Severson observed people at public hearings, following which plans are changed will lose faith in aldermen.

"They're going to come back and say 'You guys cheated us'," he said.

Prairie People Not Bigots, But . . .

CALGARY (CP) — A report by two University of Calgary professors says although Prairie residents don't have very much sympathy for Indians, they are not bigots.

"Western Canadian respondents' levels of sympathy for Indians were significantly lower than those elsewhere in the country," the report prepared by Dr. Roger Gibbins and Dr. Rick Ponting said.

The professors presented their report to the Western Canadian Studies Conference during the weekend as part of a program looking back more than 100 years, since the signing of the Indian treaties.

Polls showed 19 per cent of Prairie residents thought Indians have "personality deficiences" such as laziness, lack of initiative, shyness and feelings of inferiority. This compares to 12 per cent nationally.

Only 31 per cent of people living in the Prairie provinces felt there was prejudice or discrimination against Indians, compared with 40 per cent nationally.

Strikebreaker Beef

WINNIPEG (CP) — Union members employed by Griffin Steel Foundaries Ltd. will resist company efforts to break a 22-week-old strike by hiring new workers, a union spokesman said Monday.

Pat McEvoy, regional vice-president of the Canadian Association of Industrial, Mechanical and Allied Workers, said the workers will stage a "peaceful demonstration" to try to prevent strikebreakers from reporting for work.

The 141 union members at the plant left their jobs Sept. 19 to protest a company contract proposal calling for compulsory overtime.

Drunks Protested

CALGARY (CP) — A counselling service for native alcoholics was refused accommodation in a city-owned building on the grounds people coming for counselling would be detrimental to another business, the Albertan says.

Revenues Rise

WINNIPEG (CP) — Total revenues received by the Manitoba government during the fiscal year that ended March 31, 1976, were $1.061 billion, up from $920.4 million the previous year, says the latest report of the provincial auditor.

The report, tabled Monday in the legislature, also listed expenditures of $1.072 billion and a deficit of $11 million.

Stabbing Probed

PRINCE ALBERT (CP) — Six RCMP specialists will interrogate all of the prisoners at the Saskatchewan Penitentiary here following a stabbing death during the weekend, prison director Jim O'Sullivan said Monday.

O'Sullivan said no prisoners have offered information in the death of Garth Robert Ashick, 23, a life-term prisoner at the maximum-security institution.

Ukrainians 'Free'

EDMONTON (CP) — The Soviet ambassador to Canada said Monday that Ukrainians and other ethnic minorities are not prevented from leaving his country.

Death Warning

WINNIPEG (CP) — An assize court jury was told Monday that George Joseph Peloquin, 36, killed a carpentry instructor at Stony Mountain Penitentiary one month after his classification officer had recommended he be moved to a maximum-security prison.

Judge Dies

EDMONTON (CP) — Provincial Judge John Coughlan, known for his opinions on young offenders and the poor, died Sunday in hospital after a long illness. He was 54.

Judge Coughlan, who was a defence lawyer and prosecutor before his appointment to the bench, disagreed with jailing offenders who were unable to pay fines, heavy sentences for young drug offenders, and the large work loads carried by judges.

Small Firms Quit

WINNIPEG (CP) — The national president of the Canadian Federation of Independent Business said Monday that small businesses in Manitoba are probably the most heavily taxed in Canada.

John Bulloch of Toronto said in an interview that heavy taxation is curtailing the growth of small business in Manitoba, and some small businesses are moving out of the province.

Time Short For Decals

Current vehicle licence decals expire at midnight Monday, and officials remind motorists who forget to renew face fines of $15 to $250.

Many private insurance dealers will be open evenings and Saturday this week to accommodate last-minute licence and insurance purchasers.

The Motor Vehicle Branch, 431 Menzies, will be open from 8.30 a.m.-5 p.m. Saturday, and will keep normal hours Monday.

Sykes Face Slap For Quebec Quotes

CALGARY (CP) — Council may introduce a motion of censure against Mayor Rod Sykes for remarks he made about the Quebec government on a recent television program, Ald. Ed Oman said Monday.

He said the motion of censure was a possibility and added that he would question the mayor about his comments at council's next regular meeting.

He was referring to the mayor's comments on a phone-in television program in which he said the Parti Quebecois cabinet contained "gangsters, saboteurs, murderers and jail people."

Ald. Don Hartmas said six of eleven alderman have already signed a statement dissociating themselves from the "inflammatory, deplorable, regrettable and reprehensible" comments by the mayor.

Sykes said during the program that the Quebec government "were certainly anti-business and certainly anti-English."

"They are fanatics and criminals, and by that I mean criminals," the mayor said on television.

Sauve Attacks Quebec Boycott

QUEBEC (CP) — A Quebec government decision announced Monday to boycott a federal provincial meeting of communications ministers was met with a swift rebuke from federal Communications Minister Jeanne Sauve.

Mrs. Sauve said her Quebec counterpart Louis O'Neill "is singling himself out as someone who has no respect for his mandate."

"He has no mandate to act alone," she said in a telephone interview from Montreal after hearing of the decision.

Mr. O'Neill said Monday he sent a letter last week to Allan Warrack, Alberta's minister of telephones and public services, informing him that Quebec would not be represented at the meeting in Edmonton in March.

He said the feeling of provincial civil servants who have worked on the communications file for several years is that the conference and others like it are not worth the time, energy and money.

The purpose of the boycott, he told reporters, boils down to asking Mrs. Sauve if she is prepared to discuss whether communications are a cultural affair and as such, a matter of provincial jurisdiction.

Quebec and Ottawa have been at loggerheads over cable licensing and regulatory powers for several years. The dispute and the rhetoric accompanying it have boiled over at times, particularly in the case of a Quebec-supported cable operator in the Rimouski-Mont Joli area of eastern Quebec.

Last month Quebec Court of Appeal ruled in favor of the federal government in the controversy, declaring Quebec legislation and regulations governing communications to be unconstitutional but Quebec subsequently announced it would appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Mr. O'Neill said at the time he had only a "modest hope" of winning the appeal since the Supreme Court is a federal institution and "for us, Ottawa is a foreign power."

Mr. O'Neill contended in his letter to his Alberta counterpart that the existence of the ministers' council presupposes Ottawa's jurisdiction over communications.

Pheasant Shoot Slated For N. Saanich Estate

Hunters will be able to shoot pheasants this fall on a North Saanich farm.

North Saanich council Monday approved a request by former alderman George Aylard to allow shooting of pheasants from August to March within the confines of his 300-acre Brackenhurst Farm on Wain Road.

Aylard, in his application, said the proposal is endorsed by the provincial Fish and Wildlife Branch and said the facility will provide a "good recreational outlet."

In an interview today, Aylard said he intends to either charge hunters a fee for each bird shot or form a club and restrict hunting to club members.

At present there are hardly any pheasant on his property but he hopes to buy pheasants — at $6 each — from a supplier in the Nanaimo area.

The idea is to release the birds about an hour before hunters show up and from there it's simply a game of hide and seek.

Aylard said there are two other shoots on the Island — at Cobble Hill and Qualicum and there are two or three shoots in the Fraser Valley.

Ald. George Westwood said he supports the proposal because the escapement of birds will help bring back the pheasant population on the peninsula.

Aldermen Eric Sherwood and John Lapham, however, were against it.

"I don't understand how the cold-blooded killing of animals can be considered recreational," Sherwood said.

Lapham feared if the shoot is allowed it might extend to other forms of wildlife.

But Ald. Owen Philp had the last word.

"I would find more recreation value in this than in supporting a symphony," he said.

STORE CLEAN-UP

WINNIPEG (CP) — 7-Eleven Food Stores announced plans Monday to reduce litter and improve community relations around its 32 convenience outlets in Winnipeg.

Dan Daley, district manager, told a news conference that vandal-proof litter containers are being installed on store lots and prizes will be offered to children who bring litter to the containers. The company's waste paper is already being recycled.

The company also plans to hire a fulltime community relations officer, operate a 24-hour-a-day telephone complaint service and install speed bumps on its parking lots.

A robbery prevention program put into effect last summer has seen the number of robberies and the amount of money stolen reduced considerably, Daley said.

The news conference was held shortly before Daley appeared before Winnipeg's civic environment committee to oppose a proposal to ban round-the-clock operations by convenience stores.

Lauk Raps Bennett 'Deception'

BENNETT TIMID IN OTTAWA—NDP

Premier Bill Bennett hasn't been tough enough in his negotiations with the federal government on behalf of B.C., NDP leader Dave Barrett said Monday.

Barrett said B.C. has suffered economically because it has not received its fair share of government contracts.

Barrett told the legislature that he and formerr Social Credit premier W. A. C. Bennett were often criticized for their abrasive stances in federal-provincial matters, but at least there were results.

". . . unless there's results, what is the use of going back there," Barrett said, in reference to Bennett's recent four-day visit to Ottawa.

Barrett said the fact that B.C. received none of the $500 million contract awarded for the building of new grain cars means the trip to Ottawa "was just publicity."

The NDP leader said B.C. Railway's Rail West plant at Squamish had an opportunity to contract for the building of 300 cars, but "the fact is that the federal government has shunned again."

Bennett said Rail West will be studied by the Mckenzie commission on B.C. Rail.

He said the government wanted Rail West to get an order for cars from Canadian National Railways and even suggested that the province provide a subsidy to Rail West to maintain jobs.

He said that B.C.'s bid, however, was the highest and the company was unable to secure a contract.

The premier disputed the charges that he hasn't been tough enough in negotiations with Ottawa saying that both the provincial and federal governments are involved with detailed studies of a northern transportation route for B.C.

A northern transport system for B.C. has "long been a dream of many administrations in this province," he said, adding it also is a concern of the federal government.

Premier Bill Bennett has repeatedly misled the people by misrepresenting issues through a narrow selection of the facts, Gary Lauk (NDP—Vancouver Centre), said Monday.

Lauk told the legislature that since coming to office in December, 1975, Benett has become "notorious with this selective use of information."

"How much can a man's credibility withstand?" Lauk asked. "The first minister will say anything for a front page headline."

Lauk took the premier to task on a varety of issues, beginning with a speech made by Bennett in the legislature last week criticizing Lauk.

The NDP MLA said a charge made by the premier that B.C.'s share in world trade dropped 30 per cent during the term of the NDP government was deceiving.

Lauk said that during the 1972-1975 period, Canada's share in the world trade market dropped equally and that both drops were the result of an economic world turned "topsy turvy" by the oil crisis.

The former economic development minister said that during the term of the NDP government, the value of B.C. exports actually doubled to $6.4 billion from $3.2 billion.

The premier "played a little game with the facts" on the issue, he said.

Lauk also criticized the premier for what he said were the following misrepresentations:

—A newspaper advertisement during the last election campaign which sail the NDP administration was to blame for 100,000 unemployed in B.C., when in fact there were only 80,000 unemployed;

— A denial last year by Bennett that he had no official driver, when in fact he did, as confirmed by the ministry of highways;

—The premier's assertion in early 1976 that he had obtained a copy of a proposed NDP budget that would have increased expenditures to nearly $4.8 billion. Reporters discovered that the document was not a budget, but a compilation of ministries' requests; —The premier's denial earlier this year that his office had ever handled a political blacklist.

—The premier's denial of any political interference in the handling of the M.E.I., paving versus B.C. Railway court case.

Bennett said he would not respond to Mr. Lauk's charges.

China on Show

BIRMINGHAM, England (CP) — Souvenir pieces of fine bone china and earthenware made by Wedgwood over the last 200 years, all associated with the Royal Family, were shown at the 1977 international spring fair here to mark the Queen's silver jubilee.

CABINET SEATS EMPTY

Premier Bill Bennett was asked Monday to try to have more cabinet ministers present during question period in the legislature.

NDP MLA Barbar Wallace (Cowichan-Malahat) pointed out the seven empty cabinet seats on Monday and said it is the only time MLAs get a chance to put their questions to ministers.

Bennett replied that when he was in opposition there were sometimes 10 or more empty cabinet seats.

He said ministers were often out of town and though they attempted to get back to Victoria for question period which is the first item on the agenda of the 3 p.m. sittings, travel arrangements often intervened.

Lansdowne Keeps Status

Lansdowne junior secondary high school will remain a junior secondary, Greater Victoria School Board decided Monday night.

After three years of planning to add Grades 11 and 12, the board began to back off late last year when school planner Dr. John Wiens reported enrolment expectations would not warrant the conversion.

Parents and teachers were upset and a final decision was not reached until Monday's meeting where trustees voted 7 to 3 to maintain the status quo.

The board decided to go ahead with a $1 million expansion to add senior grades at Lambrick Park secondary in Gordon Head — the one area of District 61 where school enrolment is increasing.

Gas Discovered

MEXICO CITY (AFP) — The existence of "substantial" natural gas deposits in northern Mexico has been announced by the Mexican state oil company, PEMEX.

Williams Being Undercut—NDP

Bill King (NDP—Revelstoke-Slocan) has accused Premier Bill Bennett of undercutting Labor Minister Alan Williams and creating a climate of uncertainty in labor-management negotiations.

King told the legislature Monday that the premier has been unfair and irresponsible by making comments on the labor situation in B.C. without consulting Williams.

"The premier has intruded, he has set up the condition for a major clash," said King. "It's like waving a red flag at a bull . . . it's irresponsible.

"This spells trouble on the industrial relations scene this year."

King specifically took Bennett to task for comments he made recently about duration of contracts and freedom for those on strike to seek second jobs.

Bennett told a Social Credit fund-raising dinner last month that negotiators should aim at contracts longer than one year and that he might consider, the possibility of preventing striking workers from obtaining other employment during a work stoppage.

Tri-Level Talks Pledged

Bennett gave Munroe a commitment to hold a B.C. tri-level conference in early fall, prior to the annual Union of B.C. Municipalities meeting.

At the conference, federal, provincial and municipal representatives will discuss a report on public financing drawn up by a trilevel task force. This is similar to commitments Munroe has received from all other provinces except Quebec.

B.C. Committed to Viet Aid—Bennett

Premier Bill Bennett, publicly disagreeing with deputy premier Grace McCarthy, said Monday B.C. is morally committed to provide aid to war-ravaged children of Vietnam.

"The money will have to be found," Bennett told the legislature during debate on his ministerial estimates. "There's no doubt the people of British Columbia have made a commitment in that area."

Mrs. McCarthy said Sunday the Social Credit government is not committed to send money from a $2.25 million fund to Vietnamese children because the commitment was made by the New Democratic Party government which was defeated in 1975.

She said there is no legislation governing the fund and the new government is not bound to forward the money, especially because the NDP didn't leave any money in the fund.

Progressive Conservative leader Scott Wallace, however, noted Monday the resolution establishing the fund was introduced in 1973 by Labor Minister Allan Williams, who was a Liberal opposition member at the time, and wa approved by all members of the legislature.

Bennett said there has been some diffieulty in determining what agency should get the money to ensure it is appropriately disbursed to the children of North and South Vietnam.

Describing the government as an "insensitive bunch"and "the black-ink, bottom-line boys," Wallace said the people of B.C. aren't so selfish and short-sighted that they are unable to see that some people "are going through some hellish suffering in other parts of the world.

He said a committee established to select the appropriate agency to disburse the funds had set up a pilot project using about $300,000 and four agencies to spend the money in Vietnam.

The committee was satisfied with the agencies and was about to disburse the remainder of the fund through the same agencies when the 1975 general election was called, he said.

The committee may have made the time-consuming mistake of attempting to ensure that the money didn't "finish up in the hands of some corrupt politician in Vietnam," Wallace said.

Bennett said he was unaware of the progress the committee had made in disbursing the fund until Wallace raised it in the legislature Monday.

The premier told reporters outside the legislature he will meet Health Minister Bob McClelland to review the situation.

He said if a new committee is set up it will have to make suggestions on where the funds can be found in the current budget.

Inside the house Bennett said finding the funds "will mean some adjustments, but the government is prepared to make some recommendations to the treasury board . . ."

He told reporters he didn't feel the NDP government handled the aid suggestion properly, saying they should have set the funds aside until they were ready to be sent.

'SOME' CS LAZY —VANDER ZALM

Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm said Monday his statements last week on the low productivity of civil servants were "Blown out of proportion."

Vander Zalm, at a Chamber of Commerce luncheon in Victoria, said in many sectors of the civil service productivity is down to about two or three days a week.

"In some programs, though, we're lucky to get as much as three days a week," he said.

Vander Zalm said Monday he had meant his statements to apply to only some civil servants "but it was made to servants "but it was made to appear applicable to the majority."

He said many of the employees of his own ministry "might be unhappy if they thought it applicable to them."

Doctors Say 'I'm Best' —Minister

The Victoria hospital dispute has not alienated local doctors from the ministry of health, Health Minister Bob McClelland said Monday.

"I had a group of doctors in my office last Friday and they told me I was the best health minister they've ever had," he told the legislature during question period.

NDP health critic Dennis Cocke (New Westminister) asked McClelland to explain the full page ads in Victoria newspapers explaining McClelland's position on the Helmcken Road hospital.

Cocke, the former health minister, said the taxpayers ended up paying for the ads which were part of McClelland's fight with the medical society.

Cocke charged McClelland was declaring war on the medical society which has opposed McClelland's plan to split services between Victoria General Hospital and the new Helmcken Road site.

"By declaring war through this ad he is alienating the doctors instead of getting them of his side," Cocke said.

McClelland said the ads were only an attempt to explain what had happened and what is going to happen about the Helmcken Road site.

"I felt the taxpayers of Victoria had it coming to them to know what had happened, to explain fully to Victoria what was happening," he said.

"This dispute has not alienated the doctors," McClelland said.

"We are all in agreement that a new hospital should be built as quickly as possible. And besides we have no special allegiance to and any special interest group."

Hunting Hearings Lined Up

DUNCAN — Public hearings will start March 8 on a bylaw which will standardize hunting regulations in the Cowichan Valley Regional District.

The first will be in the Lake Cowichan Community Hall at 7:30 p.m. for areas "Z", "F" and "I".

Another will be held March 15 at the same time in St. Mary's Church hall at Ladysmith. Cedar and Saltair residents should attend this meeting.

On April 14 a hearing will be held at Cobble Hill Community Hall for areas "A", "B" and "C", and on April 19 there will be another for Duncan and district residents for areas "D" and "E" in the regional district boardroom.

Canadian Unity Solid: PM to U.S.

WASHINGTON (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau told the U.S. Congress today that Canada will remain a united country despite the rise to power of a separatist government in Quebec.

"I say to you with all the certainty I can command that Canada's unity will not be fractured," he told a joint sitting of the Senate and House of Representatives in the first such speech by a Canadian prime minister.

"Accommodations will be made, revisions will take place. We shall succeed."

The speech, centrepiece of a three-day Washington visit by the prime minister, and televised across Canada, dealt at length with Trudeau's preception of independence moves by the Parti Quebecois government of Rene Levesque.

He emphasized that only a minority of Quebecers "feel they should leave Canada and strike out in a country of their own."

"The newly-elected government of that province asserts a policy that reflects that minority view despite the fact during the leection campaign that during the election campaign it sought a mandate for good government and not a mandate for separation from Canada."

Trudeau gave President Carter the same assurance that he would keep Canada united during a black-tie White House dinner Monday. Carter, in a television interview, said he preferred that Canada remain united.

In his speech, Trudeau said Canada may have to alter its constitution—the 110-year-old British North America Act—to ensure that the country's 6.5 million French-speaking Canadians feel protected against submersion by the 15.5 million English-speaking

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada today allowed Alberta's appeal over its purchase of Pacific Western Airlines.

In a 9-to-0 decision, the high court reversed a Federal Court of Appeal ruling that air regulations concerning airline purchases do apply to a provincial government.

Alberta secretly acquired control of the airline in August, 1974, through the purchase of 99 per cent of its common shares.

TOUGH NEW LEGISLATION

Salmon Poachers Face Crackdown

OTTAWA (CP) — Long-promised fisheries legislation to toughen penalties for poaching fish and polluting waterwayls was introduced in the Commons Monday.

Under the legislation, Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc can order the forfeiture of equipment belonging to anyone convicted of poaching. The legislation applies to fresh and salt water fishermen anywhere in Canada.

The bill also prohibits destruction of fish habitats and spawning grounds through construction or landfill projects. Fines for pollution also are increased.

LeBlanc promised about a year ago to bring in tougher poaching laws. While full-time fishermen could have their licences suspended if convicted of poaching, there was little to halt poachers who were not fishermen.

Now the minister will be able to order confiscation of the gear of anyone convicted of poaching. Before, many of them received light fines which were not a deterrent.

Lobster and salmon are the main targets of poachers. Fisheries officials said Monday that an estimated 2.5 million pounds of lobster worth about $3 million is taken illegally each year in the Maritimes. About 500,000 pounds of salmon, worth about $3.5 million, is taken by West Coast poachers every year.

The bill also gives fisheries officers the powers of peace officers which means they will be able to issue summonses and warrants against people they charge or arrest. The cases are heard in provincial courts.

At the same time, the officers will be able to ticket people committing minor infractions of fisheries regulations such as catching a couple of trout over the limit. Those ticketed will be able to pay fines much like motorists convicted of speeding or committing parking infractions. The move is to reduce the number of fisheries-related cases in the courts.

The fisheries officials said that, while the existing law controls pollution of waterways, the government thought it necessary to bring in protection for aquatic habitats where fish spawn or feed.

The bill allows the fisheries department either to prohibit or dictate modification to any plans that might destroy or disrupt aquatic habitats.

In less serious cases, the penalty for conviction ranges from $5,000 to $10,000 while in more serious cases, jail sentences of up to two years are provided for.

The bill expands anti-pollution laws to cover existing industries that foul waterways. The existing law places controls only on new industrial undertakings. It increases fines to a a range of $5,000 to $100,000.

Failure to report a spill could result in fines between $5,000 and $10,000. Failure to clean up as directed could result in fines between $25,000 and $50,000.

M-B EARNINGS $22 MILLION

VANCOUVER (CP) — MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. today reported net earnings for 1976 of $22.8 million or $1.07 a share, compared with a loss of $18.9 million or 89 cents a share in 1975.

Sales and other income totalled $1,523.3 million, up from $1,297.5 million in 1975. Fourth-quarter earnings were $9.4 million, up $6.1 million from the third quarter.

The company forecasts increased improvements in sales and earnings in 1977.

NAILING DRIVERS is no joke in Italy, where nail strips laid across roads were authorized recently to cut down on crime. Police outside Rome on Monday used nail strip as a roadblock.

VANDALISM $7M DRAIN

Vandalism in the provincial public school system cost B.C. taxpayers an estimated $7 million in a single year, says a report released Monday by the B.C. School Trustees Association.

But the Greater Victoria area has one of the lowest vandalism rates in the province.

This year the district has budgeted just over $100,000 for vandalism repairs — slightly more than $4 per pupil.

In the Fraser Valley, the cost per pupil is more than $25 while Vancouver Island as a whole averages $4.22 per pupil — the third lowest area in the province after the East Kootenays at $2.54 and Mainland Cariboo at $2.65.

The BCSTA said the figures include school fires which often throw the statistics out. For example excluding a large fire in Nanaimo, the Vancouver Island cost per pupil drops to $2.42.

Keith Hawkins, District 61 assistant superintendent of schools in charge of construction and maintenance, said the low incidence of vandalism in area schools is something to be proud of.

"The kids really deserve a lot of credit for the way they treat their schools," he said.

The report, which took more than six months to prepare, said fires account for almost 75 per cent of the damage, and points out that adults are responsible for $1 million worth of vandalism.

Sixty-five of the province's 75 school districts responded to the survey which covers July 1, 1975, through June 30, 1976, therefore "the results must be viewed as estimates only," researchers said.

Vandalism rates in school districts using technical preventive measures such as fences, full-time caretakers, and alarms, were only slightly lower than in districts where such measures were not in force, the study said.

Researchers examined factors thought to affect the vandalism rate, such as geographical location, size of district, discipline for offender, and economic status of community, and discovered than none of them "had any real effect on vandalism rates."

"It may be that the prophets of doom are correct; we can't do anything about the potential vandal," said the report. "Clearly, vandalism seems to occur at will, with the vandal being a creature of random habit, not tied to economic status, migratory behavior, fear of discipline."

U.S. Insurance Racket Financing PLO Tactics

By BILL RICHARDS
Washington Post

LOS ANGELES — A U.S.-wide ring of more than 100 apparent Palestine Liberation Organization sympathizers has been operating a massive auto-insurance fraud scheme that authorities here believe may have netted millions of dollars for the PLO.

More than 30 police organizations ranging from local district attorneys' offices in California to Interpol, are investigating the activities of the ring, police said.

Deputy California highway patrol chief Jerry Clemons said that members of the operation are mostly Arabs on student visas living in California, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan. Police have issued arrest warrants for a number of suspects.

Police said they based their belief that the money from the scheme was going to the PLO on separate statements by two alleged members of the ring. Both told police that millions of dollars in claims have been filed over the last five years, and that the profits ended up with the Palestinians.

"Our informants in the case have said that the money involved has been shipped out of the country," Clemons said.

Officials said the ring filed fraudulent claims with most of the nation's large insurance companies.

One fraudulent arson claim by members of the ring in Michigan was filed for more than $8 million, police here said. It was unclear whether this arson claim was paid, but police said a number of claims were rejected after insurance officials became suspicious.

GLIDING COMMUTERS NOT JUST A DREAM

WALLA WALLA, Wash. (AP) — Hang gliders, equipped with motors and propellers, may be the commuter vehicles of the future.

The idea may not be as far-fetched as it seems because, equipped with 12-horsepower engines, motorized hang gliders already are available for $1,300. They are lightweight, get 40 miles per gallon and are capable of reaching 50 miles an hour.

"Right now you can buy a powered hang glider without a pilot's licence and fly it across the United States," said Ron Petrie, 23, a hang glider enthusiast.

The gliders, even the powered variety, don't come under U.S. federal aviation administration regulations, said Petrie.

Petrie says commuters could launch their crafts by running along the ground. Takeoffs and landings would require no more room than a tennis court.

Parking would not present insurmountagle problems, either, Petrie said, since a hang glider needs little more room than an automobile.

DAM APPEAL MONDAY

A five-member cabinet committee has been established to hear the appeal against the granting of a licence to B.C. Hydro for building the Revelstoke dam, Enviroment Minister Jim Nielsen said Monday.

The B.C. Wildlife Federation, Canadian Cellulose Company, West Kootenay Outdoorsman, and the Scientific Polution and Environmental Control Society (SPEC) have appealed the decision of the water rights comptroller to grant the licence.

The organizations are appealing the decision on a variety of grounds, mainly related to safety of the project and the effect it would have on the environment.

Nielsen said the cabinet committee, which will make a recommendation to full cabinet on whether the appeal should be allowed, will hold a preliminary meeting next Monday to discuss procedures.

Council Censures Grieve

North Saanich Mayor Paul Grieve was censured by his council Monday for firing Ald. George Westwood as chairman of the zoning committee.

Only Ald. Eric Sherwood and John Lapham voted against the censure motion proposed by Westwood and seconded by Ald. Robert Thompson.

Grieve removed Westwood last week when the committee refused to give precedence to a controversial zoning bylaw.

Grieve told council his lack of confidence in Westwood "will be borne out by the productivity of the new committee."

Ex-BCPC Workers Lost On Grizzly Speculation

VANCOUVER (CP) — Both B.C. Petroleum Corp. employees fired for stock trading lost money on their speculation, BCPC chairman George Lechner said Monday.

Lechner told the Mr. Justice Walter Kirke Smith's judicial inquiry into stock and land speculation on the Grizzly Valley pipeline development that "trading in shares of companies that had involvement with the corporation was against policy."

Both employees knew it, he said, and admitted Jan. 10 they had bought and sold shares related to the line.

Weeks was fired from his post as administrative assistant to Economic Development Minister Don Phillips in December.

On Monday, Stephen Rogers (SC—Vancouver South) told the inquiry that Weeks offered friends stock and land investment information about the Grizzly Valley development before plans for the pipeline were officially announced.

Reservoir engineer Terrence Barrows purchased 600 Quasar shares at $4.75 a share on May 14, 1976, Lechner said, and sold them July 16, 1976. He received $4.25 a share for 200 shares and $4.50 a share for the rest for a net loss.

Geologist Donald R. Reid bought 1,000 Cheyenne shares Dec. 7 at $1.72 and sold them the same day for $1.56. Reid "realized he should not have done it," said Lechner. "It was almost done on a dare; it was an act of foolishness."

Lechner said that if Reid had acted on the basis of confidential information, he would have bought much earlier. Lechner learned of the two transactions Jan. 10 and demanded the men's resignations the same day.

Lechner said he also accepted the resignation of his secretary, Bruna Martinuzzi, who felt she could not sign an affidavit drawn up by company lawyers swearing she had not advised friends to trade in the stocks.

Miss Martinuzzi said she had mentioned the stock to her boyfriend, but he didn't buy any shares. Lechner said he hopes the inquiry will exonerate Miss Martinuzzi so she can be reinstated. The two other men have found other jobs.

Food Prices Climb 3% in Two Months

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Victoria food prices are up more than three per cent since December and further sharp increases are expected in selected items.

Coffee prices have been stable over the past 30 days but further increases are expected following Brazil's decision to increase bean prices. A six-ounce jar of instant coffee rose 58 cents to $3.19 from December to January and is expected to be up again before the end of March.

Victoria hot chocolate prices have been held firm despite reports of the world market being cornered by a cocoa cartel. These price increases are expected soon.

Egg prices have risen six cents per dozen locally over the past two months, from 96 to $1.02 for Grade A large, in response to higher feed prices. Producers give mixed views as to whether the next price action will be up or down.

Beef producers are expecting sharp price increases on a variety of cuts, mainly because the market is recovering from a low cycle. Beef and pork are considered to be greatly underpriced and the upward swing willl be rapid when it begins.

However, in Victoria the price of beef has actually declined two cents per pound on average during the past 30 days, making it one of the genuine bargains in the grocery order.

The Times grocery order this week cost $103.25, up 3.25 per cent from $100 for the same order in December.

Products that have increased in price include coffee, eggs, bread and canned peas.

The increase in bread prices was only one cent per loaf since December. Prices for both bread and milk have been remarkably stable during the past two months.

Products showing no change in price during the past two months include various soups, peanut butter, corn flakes and some meat cuts.

The price of canned tuna has been stable since November, having soared from 75 cents to $1.05 during the previous nine months.

TOWN TALK

Adults Only is the name of the noon-hour swim session at the Oak Bay Recreation Centre Pool on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays — and one elderly adult took the name literally.

Dressed in Bermuda shorts, a suntop and clogs (it's supposed to be swimwear only) the woman, who was in her late 60s or early 70s, stepped into one of the saunas and endured the heat for a while. Then, when it became too hot for her, she shipped off her top baring all above the waist and chatted amiably in her European accent with everyone who came in.

It was marvelous watching the expressions of those who entered! As one man said afterward:

"It didn't seem to bother her at all. She was a lovely old dear.

Now, if we can just get some of the younger ones to follow suit . . ."

Two hours went by, the coffee break, and then an hour's debate that led to the decision at 11 p.m. the parents didn't want to hear . . . no senior high school status for Lansdowne.

A refreshing twist from below the line . . .

The Washington State Food Dealers' Association is running radio commercials advising consumers how to cut down on the weekly food bill.

Example: shop after meals, not before.

Presumably, the thinking here is that customers are less likely to let their appetites be their guide if they're not ravenous.

Example: avoid "drop-in" shopping.

The idea here is that buying one big order weekly will result in a lower over-all food bill than popping in three or four times a week.

SPICER
. . . decisions, decisions

Keith Spicer, Canada's commissioner of official languages, was undecided Monday which language to use when addressing the conference of Vancouver Island French Language Teachers.

In the bastion of Canada's English presence, the Empress Hotel, he opted for English with only the odd phrase or bot mot en francais.

"This may be the only audience in the West where I won't be accused of ramming French down anyone's throat," he said for openers.

The invitation to the babies? They'll be invited to come forward in seven years time to join the Brownies or Cubs.

Does B.C. Tel know something we don't?

Is the provincial government going to buy or purchase a new ferry to be called the Princess Victoria?

It would appear so from the telephone book which lists both the Princes Marguerite and the Princess Victoria as being operated by the B.C. Steamship Co. Ltd.

MORE MORE MORE

However, a little sleuthing reveals the government-owned company was just covering itself in case the government went along with a suggestion to switch the Marguerite to a Victoria-Vancouver run and bring in the Queen of Surrey to operate from Victoria to Seattle.

The idea was that if the Surrey, purchased by the former NDP government for $18 million, was brought back into service, the name would be changed to Princess Victoria.

But all that planning was for naught as Transport Minister Jack Davis said late last year the Marguerite would be left on the Victoria-Seattle run.

The last word from Davis on the Queen of Surrey was that B.C. is attempting to lease it to the federal government for use on the east coast.

Never underestimate the power of the press, says H. A. Pohle of 1615 Mileva Lane.

For 10 years the Saanich resident and his family have been tormented by daily visits of seagulls, encouraged by regular feedings by a neighbor.

After his complaints to council's environment committee were reported in the press the daily bombardments have stopped.

"The feeding stopped as soon as our plight appeared in the press," Pohle reports. "The publicity really paid off. I want to thank you people."

U.S. Admiral Flies In To Decorate Rescuers

The awards were in recognition of the men's action on the night of Feb. 29 when they saved the lives of three crew members of a U.S. Coast Guard helicopter and a Canadian fisherman.

The rescue took place after the 54-foot seiner Bruce I foundered and sank off Cape Beale.

The helicopter had plucked one of the survivors, Reid Dobell, from a reef when it developed engine trouble and had to be ditched.

Also rescued were pilot Lieut. Brian Mills, co-pilot Ensign Stephen Duffy and crew member D. Stesbak.

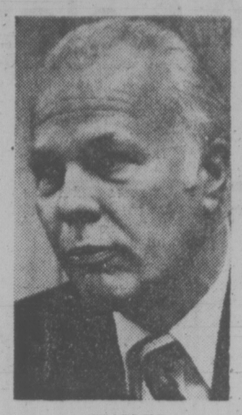
The medals given to Christney and his fellow crewmen are the second highest decoration "given to those who endanger their lives while in an effort to save others at sea."

Citations commended them for carrying out the rescue "in a snow fall and high winds among rocks and shoals".

Thomson received his award for his "extensive knowledge" that enabled him to guide the lifeboat safely through the rocks and shoals with the aid of a flashlight.

The admiral, stressing the importance of the awards, said that since the silver lifesaving medal was first struck in 1874 only 1,750 have been awarded.

Bully Probe Ordered



STABLES

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

Greater Victoria school trustees Monday instructed superintendent Allan Stables to thoroughly investigate school bullying and report back next month.

Trustees heard several delegations and some heckling from a large crowd that jammed the board room to talk about bullying in city schools.

But the decision to have the superintendent look into the problem was unanimous.

John Fraser, of 764 Transit, repeated to the board the story of his Grade 6 son being kicked unconscious while working as a crossing guard at Monterey elementary school.

And Mrs. Elva Clarke said her daughter did not want to return to Monterey after watching two boys hold her older brother while another boy repeatedly punched him while demanding the key to his bike.

She said the principal assured her the three boys responsible would come to her home and apologize, but they never came.

The board also received a written report from Mrs. Evelyn Simpson, whose 14-year-old son was hospitalized after being kicked in the groin while he was walking home from S. J. Willis junior secondary.

Her report was not made public.

Trustee Peter Bunn said he found the reports upsetting and depressing. He said he is a parent who has put children through Monterey over the past 20 years.

"This is the first occasion I've heard of such a case and I've lived in the area since 1949. I hope it is an isolated situation and not general."

Trustee Lavinia Greenwood said she believes that more incidents have gone unreported because students fear reprisals from their peers.

Other parents who did not get a chance to speak were assured their written reports would be welcomed by Stables.

All the reports, however weren't negative. One woman suggested the first responsibility lies with the parents.

Another parent said that following an incident involving her family at Monterey, 11 of the 12 boys in the gang came to her home to apologize. She said they were very changed boys and praised the principal for the job he did in handling that instance.

"If people think the major portion of the responsibility is with the school board, they are naive," Fisher said.

NURSES REJECT OFFER

Public service nurses in B.C. have voted overwhelmingly to reject a contract offer and to take strike action in a contract dispute with the B.C. Goverment Employee Relations Bureau.

The nurses' negotiating committee will meet later this week to decide future action.

On a partial return of 1,900 votes, 89 per cent favored strike action and 91 per cent rejected the bureau's final offer, nurses' spokesman Jerry Miller said in a news release.

Government negotiators proposed a two-year contract with increases averaging 10 per cent. The last contract expired Oct. 31, 1975.

Car Crash Kills Saanich Woman

RCMP have identified a 35-year-old Saanich woman killed Monday in a two-car collision six miles south of Duncan as Mrs. Lillian Shields, of 1790 Forest.

A police spokenman said Mrs. Shields and her daughter Sandra, 13, were driving south on the Trans-Canada Highway when their car collided with a northbound vehicle near the Cobble Hill turnoff.

Mrs. Shields was pronounced dead on arrival at Cowichan District Hospital. Sandra was transferred to Victoria General Hospital where she is in fair condition in the intensive care unit.

The driver and lone occupant of the second car, Walter Large, 42, of 5007 Echo Drive, was taken to Cowichan Hospital and later released.

The fatality was the first in the Duncan area this year. Police said an inquest will be held.

Less Density Asked On Roy Road Housing

The B.C. Housing Corporations' bid to build 334 housing units on 75.8 acres in Saanich's Roy Road area was rejected Monday by Saanich cil.

Aldermen, however, made it clear they would like to see the provincial government agency come up with a lower density proposal.

"I hope the department of housing will come back with something less dense," Ald. Sandy Noel said, after stressing the municipality needs the help of the government to get sewers into the area.

"We need sewers out there. I hope the next application will come back a little watered down."

In making the motion to reject the plan, Ald. David Paterson said he favored some development in the area bounded by Wilkinson, Roy, Carey and Interurban, but "I think we will be giving up too much to gain too little. The digging of Colquitz Creek and loss of flood plains is giving up too much."

Ald. Robert Cameron noted that only one citizen had spoken in favor of the project at the stormy public hearing.

Ald Ian Cass said he had "some misgivings" but would vote for rejection.

"The public hearing was influenced to a great extent by emotion and political opportunism," he observed. "I'm concerned I'm going to be party to rejecting it when we need funding for that area . . . we also have a very bad health problem there."

Municipal engineer Cliff Warren said it wou ld cost Warren said it would cost the area and an additional $180,000 to service the proposed Royal Oak industrial park.

Liquor Approved

The council agreed Class A licenses, which allow liquor to be served for any 14 hour period between 9 a.m. and 2 a.m., be allowed for the Playland Enterprises curling club at 4240 Glanford, and the Vancouver Island Netherlands Association's Holland House.

Complaining the price of temporary permits has been hiked to $10, costing the association $1,600 a year, a spokesman said, "If it keeps up we'll go down the tube."

Workers To Be Rehired

Saanich workmen laid off because of lack of work will be back on the job at the end of the week.

In an emergency move Monday, council approved capital waterworks projects so the employees can be reinstated.

Municipal engineer Cliff Warren had presented a list of projects totalling $180,000 earlier to a meeting of the public works committee but aldermen only approved $34,000, saying major expenditures should be dealt with at budget sessions.

This led to employees being laid off because of lack of work.

Ald. John Mika asked Warren if all laid-off employees will be brought back.

"Recall will be almost instantaneous. We will start recall at the end of this week," Warren replied, saying nine to 10 employees are involved.

Ald. Joe Bourque complained the committee had not been told employees would have to be laid off.

"Let's keep the people and spend the money," he said. "We're now being given a new set of circumstances. I find this damn objectionable."

Another Fight Faces Hartwig

Victoria developer Hans Hartwig, thwarted by city council last year in his plans to build a senior citizen's apartment on Wharf Street, is now preparing plans for a large waterfront hotel on the site.

And for the second time he is certain to face stiff opposition from Ald. Ron McKenzie.

An outspoken critic of the developer's past performance in the city, McKenzie said today he will urge council not to approve Hartwig's project or any other waterfront development until an over-all plan for the whole Inner Harbor has been established after full public exposure.

Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf has already indicated he is working on such a plan, possibly under the aegis of the Capital Improvement District Commission, he noted.

First word of Hartwig's hotel proposal came Monday from Ald. Bob Wright, who said he expects the developer will soon submit his firm plans to the city planning department.

Apart from McKenzie's opposition, Hartwig has to overcome two major stumbling blocks if his second attempt at developing his Wharf Street holding is to succeed.

Some of the buildings on the property are designated as heritage structures, and the entire Wharf waterfront is still covered by the provincial government's land freeze.

But McKenzie said council also has to weigh other factors, including its experiences manship" in the actual construction of nearby Hartwig Court.

He said Hartwig had "disregarded the heritage value" of those buildings by making substantial structural alterations to the original, and there was "shoddy workmanship" vn the actual construction.

In the past Hartwig has undertaken work without the necessary permits, he said, and his record did not inspire confidence.

Outer Area Tax Rise 'Fractional'

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

A regional committee studying municipal government for the Colwood-Langford area calculates it would cost only fractionally more — .04 mills — than taxpayers now pay there.

In an interim report to Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis next month it will ask how he feels about changing the boundaries around Colwood and Langford.

The committee has three options in mind — a new municipality to include the present Colwood and Langford, one to include somewhat less than those electoral areas and one to include more, parts of both View Royal and Metchosin.

At least some ratepayers in View Royal favor separate village status for that electoral area but this is not expected to get favorable consideration from Curtis.

Meanwhile Colwood and Langford, with a population close to 30,000 are earmarked to absorb most of the growth in the Capital district over the next couple of decades.

The provincial government announced last March that it would pay for a municipal incorporation study, to be undertaken for both it and the Capital Region Board.

DRUMMOND
. . . report soon

Drummond said today he expects the committee will have an interim report ready for both regional board and Curtis next month.

It has explored financial aspects of what incorporation would bring and determined the cost would be practically the same, he said. But cost really depends on what municipal services people demand in future.

From a cost standpoint, establishing a municipal government in the so-called western sector is "very practical," Drummond said.

If Colwood and Langford join to form a new municipality, he noted it would be bigger than either Oak Bay or Esquimalt.

When Curtis agreed last March to finance the latest look at the municipal government question, he said municipal status was not the only alternative.

He said he favors it for the urban areas to the west of Victoria in the long run but it might be accomplished with an interim stage.

Drummond said he personally favors going directly to a new municipality but the committee will be asking for responses next month from both board and the municipal affairs minister.

He said he would like to see the incorporation question go to ratepayers in a referendum in June but it might have to wait until about September.

Hammer Nailed Again

Regional planner Peter Hammer argued for an hour Monday but still saw the local planning and zoning committee slash his proposed operating budget by another $60,000.

The budget, which started at $455,810, was reduced in two review sessions to $329,255 and will now go to the full board for approval.

Hammer had proposed 800 man-hours be devoted to preparing a subdivision bylaw for View Royal and directors labelled this "preposterous."

They also refused funds the planner wanted to hire four more staff. Hammer said present staff numbers leave his department able only to react to situations rather than in a position to instruct developers.

Last week a committee review of Hammer's regional planning budget slashed more than $100,000 from its $421,000 total. Budget review on that part of his department's operations continues Wednesday.

Prairie People Not Bigots, But . . .

CALGARY (CP) — A report by two University of Calgary professors says although Prairie residents don't have very much sympathy for Indians, they are not bigots.

"Western Canadian respondents' levels of sympathy for Indians were significantly lower than those elsewhere in the country," the report prepared by Dr. Roger Gibbins and Dr. Rick Ponting said.

The professors presented their report to the Western Canadian Studies Conference during the weekend as part of a program looking back more than 100 years, since the signing of the Indian treaties.

Some 1,832 people selected at random throughout Canada were interviewed on their attitudes towards Indian people during a survey conducted last year.

Polls showed 19 per cent of Prairie residents thought Indians have "personality deficiences" such as laziness, lack of initiative, shyness and feelings of inferiority. This compares to 12 per cent nationally.

Only 31 per cent of people living in the Prairie provinces felt there was prejudice or discrimination against Indians, compared with 40 per cent nationally.

Strikebreaker Beef

WINNIPEG (CP) — Union members employed by Griffin Steel Foundaries Ltd. will resist company efforts to break a 22-week-old strike by hiring new workers, a union spokesman said Monday.

Pat McEvoy, regional vice-president of the Canadian Association of Industrial, Mechanical and Allied Workers, said the workers will stage a "peaceful demonstration" to try to prevent strikebreakers from reporting for work.

The 141 union members at the plant left their jobs Sept. 19 to protest a company contract proposal calling for compulsory overtime.

Drunks Protested

CALGARY (CP) — A counselling service for native alcoholics was refused accommodation in a city-owned building on the grounds people coming for counselling would be detrimental to another business, the Albertan says.

Revenues Rise

WINNIPEG (CP) — Total revenues received by the Manitoba government during the fiscal year that ended March 31, 1976, were $1.061 billion, up from $920.4 million the previous year, says the latest report of the provincial auditor.

The report, tabled Monday in the legislature, also listed expenditures of $1.072 billion and a deficit of $11 million.

Stabbing Probed

PRINCE ALBERT (CP) — Six RCMP specialists will interrogate all of the prisoners at the Saskatchewan Penitentiary here following a stabbing death during the weekend, prison director Jim O'Sullivan said Monday.

O'Sullivan said no prisoners have offered information in the death of Garth Robert Ashick, 23, a life-term prisoner at the maximum-security institution.

Ukrainians 'Free'

EDMONTON (CP) — The Soviet ambassador to Canada said Monday that Ukrainians and other ethnic minorities are not prevented from leaving his country.

Alexander Yakolev said 200 people left the Soviet Union last year to come to Canada.

Death Warning

WINNIPEG (CP) — An assize court jury was told Monday that George Joseph Peloquin, 36, killed a carpentry instructor at Stony Mountain Penitentiary one month after his classification officer had recommended he be moved to a maximum-security prison.

Judge Dies

EDMONTON (CP) — Provincial Judge John Coughlan, known for his opinions on young offenders and the poor, died Sunday in hospital after a long illness. He was 54.

Judge Coughlan, who was a defence lawyer and prosecutor before his appointment to the bench, disagreed with jailing offenders who were unable to pay fines, heavy sentences for young drug offenders, and the large work loads carried by judges.

Small Firms Quit

WINNIPEG (CP) — The national president of the Canadian Federation of Independent Business said Monday that small businesses in Manitoba are probably the most heavily taxed in Canada.

John Bulloch of Toronto said in an interview that heavy taxation is curtailing the growth of small business in Manitoba, and some small businesses are moving out of the province.

Time Short For Decals

Current vehicle licence decals expire at midnight Monday, and officials remind motorists who forget to renew face fines of $15 to $250.

Many private insurance dealers will be open evenings and Saturday this week to accommodate last-minute licence and insurance purchasers.

The Motor Vehicle Branch, 431 Menzies, will be open from 8.30 a.m.-5 p.m. Saturday, and will keep normal hours Monday.

Sykes Face Slap For Quebec Quotes

CALGARY (CP) — Council may introduce a motion of censure against Mayor Rod Sykes for remarks he made about the Quebec government on a recent television program, Ald. Ed Oman said Monday.

He said the motion of censure was a possibility and added that he would question the mayor about his comments at council's next regular meeting.

He was referring to the mayor's comments on a phone-in television program in which he said the Parti Quebecois cabinet contained "gangsters, saboteurs, murderers and jail people."

Ald. Don Hartmas said six of eleven alderman have already signed a statement dissociating themselves from the "inflammatory, deplorable, regrettable and reprehensible" comments by the mayor.

Sykes said during the program that the Quebec government "were certainly anti-business and certainly anti-English."

"They are fanatics and criminals, and by that I mean criminals," the mayor said on television.

Sauve Attacks Quebec Boycott

QUEBEC (CP) — A Quebec government decision announced Monday to boycott a federal provincial meeting of communications ministers was met with a swift rebuke from federal Communications Minister Jeanne Sauve.

Mrs. Sauve said her Quebec counterpart Louis O'Neill "is singling himself out as someone who has no respect for his mandate."

"He has no mandate to act alone," she said in a telephone interview from Montreal after hearing of the decision.

Mr. O'Neill said Monday he sent a letter last week to Allan Warrack, Alberta's minister of telephones and public services, informing him that Quebec would not be represented at the meeting in Edmonton in March.

He said the feeling of provincial civil servants who have worked on the communications file for several years is that the conference and others like it are not worth the time, energy and money.

The purpose of the boycott, he told reporters, boils down to asking Mrs. Sauve if she is prepared to discuss whether communications are a cultural affair and as such, a matter of provincial jurisdiction.

Quebec and Ottawa have been at loggerheads over cable licensing and regulatory powers for several years. The dispute and the rhetoric accompanying it have boiled over at times, particularly in the case of a Quebec-supported cable operator in the Rimouski-Mont Joli area of eastern Quebec.

Last month Quebec Court of Appeal ruled in favor of the federal government in the controversy, declaring Quebec legislation and regulations governing communications to be unconstitutional but Quebec subsequently announced it would appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Mr. O'Neill said at the time he had only a "modest hope" of winning the appeal since the Supreme Court is a federal institution and "for us, Ottawa is a foreign power."

Mr. O'Neill contended in his letter to his Alberta counterpart that the existence of the ministers' council presupposes Ottawa's jurisdiction over communications.

Pheasant Shoot Slated For Saanich Estate

Hunters will be able to shoot pheasants this fall on a North Saanich farm.

North Saanich council Monday approved a request by former alderman George Aylard to allow shooting of pheasants from August to March within the confines of his 300-acre Brackenhurst Farm on Wain Road.

Aylard, in his application, said the proposal is endorsed by the provincial Fish and Wildlife Branch and said the facility will provide a "good recreational outlet."

In an interview today, Aylard said he intends to either charge hunters a fee for each bird shot or form a club and restrict hunting to club members.

At present there are hardly any pheasant on his property but he hopes to buy pheasants — at $6 each — from a supplier in the Nanaimo area.

The idea is to release the birds about an hour before hunters show up and from there it's simply a game of hide and seek.

Aylard said there are two other shoots on the Island — at Cobble Hill and Qualicum and there are two or three clubs in the Fraser Valley.

Ald. George Westwood said he supports the proposal because the escapement of birds will help bring back the pheasant population on the peninsula.

Aldermen Eric Sherwood and John Lapham, however, were against it.

"I don't understand how the cold-blooded killing of animals can be considered recreational," Sherwood said.

Lapham feared if the shoot is allowed it might extend to other forms of wildlife.

But Ald. Owen Philp had the last word.

"I would find more recreation value in this than in supporting a symphony," he said.

STORE CLEAN-UP

WINNIPEG (CP) — 7-Eleven Food Stores announced plans Monday to reduce litter and improve community relations around its 32 convenience outlets in Winnipeg.

Dan Daley, district manager, told a news conference that vandal-proof litter containers are being installed on store lots and prizes will be offered to children who bring litter to the confainers. The company's waste paper is already being recycled.

The company also plans to hire a fulltime community relations officer, operate a 24-hour-a-day telephone complaint service and install speed bumps on its parking lots.

A robbery prevention program put into effect last summer has seen the number of robberies and the amount of money stolen reduced considerably, Daley said.

The news conference was held shortly before Daley appeared before Winnipeg's civic environment committee to oppose a proposal to ban round-the-clock operations by convenience stores.

JOHN VERNON SELLS FORDS AT PETER POLLEN FORD

Canadian Unity Solid: PM to U.S.

WASHINGTON (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau told the U.S. Congress today that Canada will remain a united country despite the rise to power of a separatist government in Quebec.

"I say to you with all the certainty I can command that Canada's unity will not be fractured," he told a joint sitting of the Senate and House of Representatives in the first such speech by a Canadian prime minister.

"Accommodations will be made, revisions will take place. We shall succeed."

The speech, centrepiece of a three-day Washington visit by the prime minister, and televised across Canada, dealt at length with Trudeau's preception of independence moves by the Parti Quebecois government of Rene Levesque.

He emphasized that only a minority of Quebecers "feel they should leave Canada and strike out in a country of their own."

"The newly-elected government of that province asserts a policy that reflects that minority view despite the fact during the election campaign that during the election campaign it sought a mandate for good government and not a mandate for separation from Canada."

Trudeau gave President Carter the same assurance that he would keep Canada united during a black-tie White House dinner Monday. Carter, in a television interview, said he preferred that Canada remain united.

In his speech, Trudeau said Canada may have to alter its constitution—the 110-year-old British North America Act—to ensure that the country's 6.5 million French-speaking Canadians feel protected against submersion by the 15.5 million English-speaking

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada today allowed Alberta's appeal over its purchase of Pacific Western Airlines.

In a 9-to-0 decision, the high court reversed a Federal Court of Appeal ruling that air regulations concerning airline purchases do apply to a provincial government.

Alberta secretly acquired control of the airline in August, 1974, through the purchase of 99 per cent of its common shares.

VANDALISM $7M DRAIN

Vandalism in the provincial public school system cost B.C. taxpayers an estimated $7 million in a single year, says a report released Monday by the B.C. School Trustees Association.

But the Greater Victoria area has one of the lowest vandalism rates in the province.

This year the district has budgeted just over $100,000 for vandalism repairs — slightly more than $4 per pupil.

In the Fraser Valley, the cost per pupil is more than $25 while Vancouver Island as a whole averages $4.22 per pupil — the third lowest area in the province after the East Kootenays at $2.54 and Mainland Cariboo at $2.65.

The BCSTA said the figures include school fires which often throw the statistics out. For example excluding a large fire in Nanaimo, the Vancouver Island cost per pupil drops to $2.42.

Keith Hawkins, District 61 assistant superintendent of schools in charge of construction and maintenance, said the low incidence of vandalism in area schools is something to be proud of.

"The kids really deserve a lot of credit for the way they treat their schools," he said.

The report, which took more than six months to prepare, said fires account for almost 75 per cent of the damage, and points out that adults are responsible for $1 million worth of vandalism.

Sixty-five of the province's 75 school districts responded to the survey which covers July 1, 1975, through June 30, 1976, therefore "the results must be viewed as estimates only," researchers said.

Vandalism rates in school districts using technical preventive measures such as fences, full-time caretakers, and alarms, were only slightly lower than in districts where such measures were not in force, the study said.

Researchers examined factors thought to affect the vandalism rate, such as geographical location, size of district, discipline for offender, and economic status of community, and discovered than none of them "had any real effect on vandalism rates."

"It may be that the prophets of doom are correct: we can't do anything about the potential vandal," said the report. "Clearly, vandalism seems to occur at will, with the vandal being a creature of random habit, not tied to economic status, migratory behavior, fear of discipline."

JUST FRIENDLY ADVICE

Weeks Maintains No Wrongdoing

VANCOUVER (CP)—Arthur Weeks, former special assistant to Economic Development Minister Don Phillips, today denied he offered a friend confidential information on land developments in northeast British Columbia.

Weeks told the judicial inquiry into land and stock speculation in connection with the Grizzly Valley pipeline that he simply offered a friend, real estate developer Larry Killam, the advice that real estate was bound to increase in value around the pipeline corridor.

The inquiry, headed by Mr. Justice Walter Kirke Smith, was ordered by Premier Bill Bennett Jan. 11, after it was revealed that Weeks, Art Cameron, Phillips' constituency secretary, and two employees of the B.C. Petroleum Corp. had traded in shares of two oil companies connected with the development.

Weeks was fired by government order-in-council Dec. 22 after he disclosed to Phillips his stock trading in Cheyenne Petroleum Ltd.

Weeks today repeated his earlier statements that he had done nothing wrong by his stock transactions.

Weeks submitted records of all his stock dealings for the last year which showed he last bought shares in August Petroleum Ltd. June 30, 1976. August changed its name to Cheyenne in August, 1976.

Weeks said he bought 15,000 August shares between May 7, 1976, and June 30 at prices ranging between 17 cents a share and 26.5 cents a share. The shares, later consolidated into 3,000 Cheyenne shares, were sold Monday and Tuesday at prices ranging between $1.85 a share and $1.95 a share.

Weeks testified that Phillips was aware of his stock transactions but was not aware of the August Petroleum purchases specifically.

"I advised him I was purchasing shares in northeast sector gas stock," said Weeks. "Mr. Phillips was aware I was trading but I cannot say with certainty he knew I had shares in August."

Phillips warned him to "be careful," said Weeks and told him "there's some thought around the building . . . civil servants make profits off the purchase of shares." Weeks said he didn't know what Phillips meant by his warning.

"I told him there were no regulations or advisories of any kind that preclude purchases," said Weeks and Phillips did not tell him to sell his holdings.

Weeks said he was "very definitely" a protagonist of the development and invested in August because it was a B.C. company that was likely to benefit from development that had been "on the table for 30 years."

Earlier in the hearings, BCPC chairman George Lechner said the two employees fired for stock trading lost money on their speculations.

Lechner told the Mr. Justice

YONKERS, N.Y. (UPI) — Two masked gunmen robbed a bank today and escaped with the weekend receipts of Yonkers Raceway in a robbery that may have netted them more than $1 million, the FBI said.

NAILING DRIVERS is no joke in Italy, where nail strips laid across roads were authorized recently to cut down on crime. Police outside Rome on Monday used nail strip as a roadblock.

M-B EARNINGS $22 MILLION

VANCOUVER (CP) — MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. today reported net earnings for 1976 of $22.8 million or $1.07 a share, compared with a loss of $18.9 million or 89 cents a share in 1975.

Sales and other income totalled $1,523.3 million, up from $1,297.5 million in 1975. Fourth-quarter earnings were $9.4 million, up $6.1 million from the third quarter.

The company forecasts increased improvements in sales and earnings in 1977.

U.S. Insurance Racket Financing PLO Tactics

By BILL RICHARDS
Washington Post

LOS ANGELES — A U.S.-wide ring of more than 100 apparent Palestine Liberation Organization sympathizers has been operating a massive auto-insurance fraud scheme that authorities here believe may have netted millions of dollars for the PLO.

More than 30 police organizations ranging from local district attorneys' offices in California to Interpol, are investigating the activities of the ring, police said.

Deputy California highway patrol chief Jerry Clemons said that members of the operation are mostly Arabs on student visas living in California, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan. Police have issued arrest warrants for a number of suspects.

Police said they based their belief that the money from the scheme was going to the PLO on separate statements by two alleged members of the ring. Both told police that millions of dollars in claims have been filed over the last five years, and that the profits ended up with the Palestinians.

"Our informants in the case have said that the money involved has been shipped out of the country," Clemons said.

Officials said the ring filed fraudulent claims with most of the nation's large insurance companies.

One fraudulent arson claim by members of the ring in Michigan was filed for more than $8 million, police here said. It was unclear whether this arson claim was paid, but police said a number of claims were rejected after insurance officials became suspicious.

DAM APPEAL MONDAY

A five-member cabinet committee has been established to hear the appeal against the granting of a licence to B.C. Hydro for building the Revelstoke dam, Enviroment Minister Jim Nielsen said Monday.

Members of the committee are Labor Minister Alan Williams, Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis, Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Rafe Mair, Highways Minister Alex Fraser and Health Minister Bob McClelland.

The B.C. Wildlife Federation, Canadian Cellulose Company, West Kootenay Outdoorsman, and the Scientific Pollution and Environmental Control Society (SPEC) have appealed the decision of the water rights comptroller to grant the licence.

The organizations are appealing the decision on a variety of grounds, mainly related to safety of the project and the effect it would have on the environment.

Nielsen said the cabinet committee, which will make a recommendation to full cabinet on whether the appeal should be allowed, will hold a preliminary meeting next Monday to discuss procedures.

Council Censures Grieve

North Saanich Mayor Paul Grieve was censured by his council Monday for firing Ald. George Westwood as chairman of the zoning committee.

Only Ald. Eric Sherwood and John Lapham voted against the censure motion proposed by Westwood and seconded by Ald. Robert Thompson.

Grieve removed Westwood last week when the committee refused to give precedence to a controversial zoning bylaw.

Grieve told council his lack of confidence in Westwood "will be borne out by the productivity of the new committee."

Ottawa Plans Crackdown On Salmon Poaching

NEWS BRIEFS

$459B U.S. Budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Jimmy Carter proposed a $459.4 billion budget today that puts less emphasis on defence and more on energy, housing and health — including price controls on hospitals. See story on page 14.

Cut-Rate Oil?

OTTAWA (CP) — Imports of Soviet oil might be providing substantial profits for some Canadian oil companies, but federal energy department officials are close-lipped about the situation. See story on page 3.

Chilliwack Probe

CHILLIWACK (CP) — A public inquiry was demanded here Monday into dealings between the Chilliwack district municipal council and private firms that stand to make $20 million by getting land excluded from the provincial farmland freeze. See story on page 3.

Quebec Barriers

MONTREAL (CP) — The Parti Quebecois government will work to reduce the role of multinational companies in Quebec and promote "home-grown" industries, Finance Minister Jacques Parizeau said Monday. See story on Page 21.

California Quake

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) A strong earthquake Monday night struck the Sierra Nevada about 60 miles southeast of Lake Tahoe, the University of Californai seismographic laboratory reported. The tremor registered 5.0 on the Richter scale.

OTTAWA (CP) — Long-promised fisheries legislation to toughen penalties for poaching fish and polluting waterways was introduced in the Commons Monday.

Under the legislation, Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc can order the forfeiture of equipment belonging to anyone convicted of poaching. The legislation applies to fresh and salt water fishermen anywhere in Canada.

The bill also prohibits destruction of fish habitats and spawning grounds through construction or landfill projects. Fines for pollution also are increased.

LeBlanc promised about a year ago to bring in tougher poaching laws. While full-time fishermen could have their licences suspended if convicted of poaching, there was little to halt poachers who were not fishermen.

Now the minister will be able to order confiscation of the gear of anyone convicted of poaching. Before, many of them received light fines which were not a deterrent.

Lobster and salmon are the main targets of poachers. Fisheries officials said Monday that an estimated 2.5 million pounds of lobster worth about $3 million is taken illegally each year in the Maritimes. About 500,000 pounds of salmon, worth about $3.5 million, is taken by West Coast poachers every year.

The bill also gives fisheries officers the powers of peace officers which means they will be able to issue summonses and warrants against people they charge or arrest. The cases are heard in provincial courts.

At the same time, the officers will be able to ticket people committing minor infractions of fisheries regulations such as catching a couple of trout over the limit. Those ticketed will be able to pay fines much like motorists convicted of speeding or committing parking infractions. The move is to reduce the number of fisheries-related cases in the courts.

The fisheries officials said that, while the existing law controls pollution of waterways, the government thought it necessary to bring in protection for aquatic habitats where fish spawn or feed.

The bill allows the fisheries department either to prohibit or dictate modification to any plans that might destroy or disrupt aquatic habitats.

GLIDING COMMUTERS NOT JUST A DREAM

WALLA WALLA, Wash. (AP) — Hang gliders, equipped with motors and propellers, may be the commuter vehicles of the future.

The idea may not be as far-fetched as it seems because, equipped with 12-horsepower engines, motorized hang gliders already are available for $1,300. They are lightweight, get 40 miles per gallon and are capable of reaching 50 miles an hour.

"Right now you can buy a powered hang glider without a pilot's licence and fly it across the United States," said Ron Petrie, 23, a hang glider enthusiast.

The gliders, even the powered variety, don't come under U.S. federal aviation administration regulations, said Petrie.

Petrie says commuters could launch their crafts by running along the ground. Takeoffs and landings would require no more room than a tennis court.

Parking would not present insurmountagle problems, either, Petrie said, since a hang glider needs little more room than an automobile.

Food Prices Climb 3% in Two Months

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Victoria food prices are up more than three per cent since December and further sharp increases are expected in selected items.

Coffee prices have been stable over the past 30 days but further increases are expected following Brazil's decision to increase bean prices. A six-ounce jar of instant coffee rose 58 cents to $3.19 from December to January and is expected to be up again before the end of March.

Victoria hot chocolate prices have been held firm despite reports of the world market being cornered by a cocoa cartel. These price inceases are expected soon.

Egg prices have risen six cents per dozen locally over the past two months, from 96 to $1.02 for Grade A large, in response to higher feed prices. Producers give mixed views as to whether the next price action will be up or down.

Beef producers are expecting sharp price increases on a variety of cuts, mainly because the market is recovering from a low cycle. Beef and pork are considered to be greatly underpriced and the upward swing wiill be rapid when it begins.

However, in Victoria the price of beef has actually declined two cents per pound on average during the past 30 days, making it one of the genuine bargains in the grocery order.

The Times grocery order this week cost $103.25, up 3.25 per cent from $100 for the same order in December.

Products that have increased in price include coffee, eggs, bread and canned peas.

The increase in bread prices was only one cent per loaf since December. Prices for both bread and milk have been remarkably stable during the past two months.

Products showing no change in price during the past two months include various soups, peanut butter, corn flakes and some meat cuts.

The price of canned tuna has been stable since November, having soared from 75 cents to $1.05 during the previous nine months.

Trudeau: Unity Will Not Be Fractured

Canadians and the 220-million English-speaking Americans.

"These figures illustrate dramatically the sense of insecurity of French Canada," Trudeau said.

"But separation would not alter the arithmetic—it would merely increase the exposure."

Trudeau warned that any decision by Quebecers to leave Canada would undermine the determination of Canadians to protect cultural minorities.

"The sudden departure of Quebec would signify the tragic failure of our pluralist dream, the fracturing of our cultural mosaic, and would likely remove much of the determination of Canadians to protect their cultural minorities."

Trudeau said the problems that have led to independence aspirations by Quebecers cannot be "wished away."

But they can be solved by institutions created for governing Canada.

Democratic institutions belong to all Canadians, Trudeau said.

"And because these institutions are democratically structured, because their members are freely elected, they are capable of reflecting changes and of responding to the popular will."

The prime minister said he is confident of devising a society "as free of prejudice and fear, as full of understanding and generosity, as respectful of individuality and beauty, as receptive to change and innovation, as exists anywhere."

It would create "shock waves of disbelief among those all over the world who are committed to the proposition that among man's noblest endeavors are those communities in which persons of diverse origins live, love, work and find mutual benefit."

Trudeau also pledged to pursue closer ties between Canada and the United States, underscoring expressions of friendship and support he offered Carter during a round of private talks Monday.

Carter said Monday he prefers to see Canada united. He added that whether Quebec should separate from Canada "is a judgment for the Canadian people to make and I trust that judgment."

Asked whether his administration would recognize a sovereign state of Quebec if it separated from the rest of Canada, the president replied: "Well, I don't know how it could. We'll cross that bridge when we come to it."

TABLE-TALK CLUE

WASHINGTON (FP) — The man who came to dinner at the White House may be a clue to the biggest joint decision the leaders of Canada and the United States will make this year.

The guest, at Monday's state dinner for Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, was John G. McMillan of Salt Lake City, Utah.

He is head of the group of companies that wants to build the Alcan pipeline — a natural gas pipeline following the route of the Alaska Highway across Canada.

The decision, which Trudeau and President Jimmy Carter discussed at their meeting today, is which route such a pipeline should take.

There are three competing proposals, any of which would cost billions of dollars. Up to now, the Alcan pipeline has not been the favorite.

But Carter invited "Mr. Alcan" to the Trudeau dinner.

also been stable, except for specials. During the great toilet paper scare one year ago prices for a four-roll pack rose from $1.07 to $1.25 after reports that provincial stocks were running low.

It might have been a false alarm because shelves continued to be full and prices have not changed since that time. Paper towels rose from $1.07 to $1.13 during the same scare and have not increased since.

Fresh vegetables are not included in the Times shopping basket but some price increases have been noted. The Florida freeze-up is expected to increase produce prices by three per cent by spring but by the end of the year the prices will have levelled out.

Fresh produce prices are expected to be up only one half a percentage point by year's end. Wild swings from month to month produce distortions in the food index and therefore are excluded from the Times survey.

In practice, food buyers tend to substitute vegetables month by month and avoid those products that appear to be unrealistically high.

In the next three months the price of tomatoes is expected to soar and oranges will be somewhat more expensive.

Shoppers who switch from oranges to bananas and avoid tomatoes will experience no increase in produce prices. Cost of canned fruits and vegetables will be stable during the next four months.

Fired Workers Lost on Grizzly

Walter Kirke Smith's judicial inquiry into stock and land speculation on the Grizzly Valley pipeline development that "trading in shares of companies that had involvement with the corporation was against policy."

Both employees knew it, he said, and admitted Jan. 10 they had bought and sold shares related to the line.

Weeks was fired from his post as administrative assistant to Economic Development Minister Don Phillips in December.

On Monday, Stephen Rogers (SC—Vancouver South) told the inquiry that Weeks offered friends stock and land investment information about the Grizzly Valley development before plans for the pipeline were officially announced.

Reservoir engineer Terrence Barrows purchased 600 Quasar shares at $4.75 a share on May 14, 1976, Lechner said, and sold them July 16, 1976. He received $4.25 a share for 200 shares and $4.50 a share for the rest for a net loss.

Geologist Donald R. Reid bought 1,000 Cheyenne shares Dec. 7 at $1.72 and sold them the same day for $1.56. Reid "realized he should not have done it," said Lechner. "It was almost done on a dare; it was an act of foolishness."

Lechner said that if Reid had acted on the basis of confidential information, he would have bought much earlier. Lechner learned of the two transactions Jan. 10 and demanded the men's resignations the same day.

Lechner said he also accepted the resignation of his secretary, Bruna Martinuzzi, who felt she could not sign an affidavit drawn up by company lawyers swearing she had not advised friends to trade in the stocks.

Miss Martinuzzi said she had mentioned the stock to her boyfriend, but he didn't buy any shares. Lechner said he hopes the inquiry will exonerate Miss Martinuzzi so she can be reinstated. The two other men have found other jobs.
